ARMS AID ARRIVE IN INDO - CHINA AS RETREAT AT HAND

40 FIGHTER PLANES ARE SENT UP RIVER TO AID

By Seymour Topping

Saigon, Vietnam, Indo - China, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A hard choice of whether to stand and fight or to fall back through enemy - held mountains appeared developing for the French garrison of Laokay today, even as fresh U. S. arms arrived here for the French fight against the Communist-led Vietminh.

A French military spokesman reported attacks on two outposts of Laokay, an isolated French fortress city on the Red river on the border of Communist China. He said Vietminh shock troops were coming in contact with Fort Hennequin, only two miles east of Laokay, and mortar fire had been brought to bear on a small French unit which is withdrawing from Banthiet, four miles farther east. The Banthelt unit was reported to have suffered no casualties.

French warplanes again raked the Vietminh—the field army of Moscow - trained Ho Chi Minh—with bombs and gunfire. Groups crossing from the east to the west bank of the Red river about 20 miles south of Laokay were among the targets.

The French aircraft carrier Dixmude slipped 60 miles upriver to this capital city with the fifth and largest shipment of American

ARMY ANNOUNCES POINT SYSTEM

Will Determine Which Enlisted Reserves Will Serve Overseas

Washington, Oct. 28. —(AP)— The army tonight announced a point system to determine which enlisted reservists—among those on active duty—will be sent overseas.

It said the same system will be used in determining the order in which additional enlisted reservists are ordered to active duty in any possible future call-up.

At the same time the army announced that no further mandatory calls to duty will be issued at this time to enlisted men of its reserve corps, except for a "limited number" of specialists in the medical and counter intelligence corps. It said this ban on further mandatory recalls does not apply to reserve officers, however.

The army called its point system governing the selection of enlisted reservists for overseas assignments a "service credit" system.

It said one service credit will be given an enlisted reservist for each year of his age over 20, one for each year of reserve service, two for each combat award he has received, four for each year of active federal service, four for each year of overseas service and eight for each dependent.

(The reservist will receive credit for less than a year of active federal service, or overseas service. If he has had three months or a major fraction of that time in active federal service, he will receive one credit. One credit also will be granted for each three months or a major fraction of that time spent in overseas service).

In determining which enlisted reservists will be ordered overseas from among the ranks of those on active duty the army said it will choose first those with the lowest scores within desired military occupational specialties.

(Reservists are classified according to their special training or skills.)

The army added:

"If at some future date enlisted reservists are again called to active duty as individuals, those with the lowest scores will be called first."

The army said the same system of scoring credits will be used when the time comes for relief from active duty, those with the

W. I. Ethridge, Sr., To Head Annual Charity Fund Campaign

FOR HUMANITY

Immediately following his acceptance of the chairmanship, Mr. Ethridge appointed J. G. Durrett, another prominent local businessman, as co-chairman.

Simultaneously with his assumption of the important campaign leadership post, Mr. Ethridge announced plans for an entirely new type of Chest appeal based upon a centralized unit plan under which half as many volunteer workers will be needed as formerly.

"This new departure in campaigning has been immensely successful over the nation and has been the definite answer to the increasing needs of the Chest agencies for more adequate operating funds," Mr. Ethridge said. "The plan has been unanimously endorsed by the Chest board and our new campaign advisory committee."

In announcing Mr. Ethridge's acceptance of the drive chairmanship, Mr. Fudickar said the Chest directors were elated over word that the Monroe leader would serve.

"We knew we had a big job to do this year," Fudickar added, "and we had to get a big man to do it. In Mr. Ethridge, we have a chairman who holds the respect of the entire Twin City business and civic community. VISHINSKY DOUBTS U. S. WOULD STOP MAKING A-BOMBS

Soviet Delegate Once-Again Rejects Majority Approved Plan Of Control

LODGE OUTLINES HOPE OF FREE WORLD PEOPLE

By Francis W. Carpenter

Lake Success, Oct. 28.—(AP)— U. S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge told Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky point-blank today the growing American military power is not meant for an offensive against the Soviet Union. He said "every child knows that" and advised the Russian bloc to "stop being afraid."

Vishinsky told the U. N. political committee he doubted that the United States would stop producing atomic bombs even if the U. N. approved the American-backed plan for atomic control.

In a 2 hours and 15 minute talk, he rejected the majority-approved control plan once more, charged the United States started the war in Korea and is using Japanese troops there now. He also accused the United States of trying to cut up Germany, with backing fascists in high posts in Austria and with building a string of military bases around the world.

The Russian foreign minister then sat stonily as Lodge answered him in 16 minutes. The American delegate, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, challenged Vishinsky to prove Americans are using Japanese troops and called on the Russian-bloc representative to stop being "conspiratorial and childish." Vishinsky grew brick red with obvious anger when Lodge advised him to stop being afraid.

Firing back at Vishinsky's charge that the United States expenditures for military purposes are fifty times those of pre-World War II days, Lodge told the committee that even if they were far greater the United States military power "would not have an offensive capability against the Soviet Union."

A World Election Editorial

Dangerous Amendments Before The Voters

The 24 proposed constitutional amendments which will be before Louisiana voters on November 7th—only a week from next Tuesday—include several which the World believes should have full approval of the electorate.

The list also includes proposals which the World believes to be among the most viciously dangerous constitutional changes proposed in this state in many a year.

On the bad side the range runs from needlessly making Louisiana the most debt ridden state in the nation through an unnecessary highway bond issue which guarantees nothing to anybody, on to a proposal for a socialistic "Little TVA" on the Sabine river which already has been rejected in its basic principles by the United States army engineers.

Because of this range from good to bad to worse, the World urges every voter to study every amendment and to go to the polls November 7th and vote. The proposed changes in the constitution, as a whole are NOT "just some more amendments."

As a service to its readers, the World will discuss each amendment in a series of editorials, of which this is the first, with others to appear before election day.

Two amendments which voters should especially mark for disapproval, in the opinion of the World are:

Number 11, proposing a $140,000,000 New Orleans bridge and state highway bond issue.

No. 19: The Sabine "Little TVA"

This amendment would create a Sabine River Authority with all of the evils and dangers of bureaucratic boondoggling and socialistic government competition with private business, that mark such federal money-wasters as TVA, but with none of the need, benefit, or safeguards that advocates ascribe to the latter.

The Authority would be an independent governmental bureau having super-power in various fields over local parish and municipal government up and down the river.

It would have authority to produce power in competition with private business, to carry on irrigation and navigation projects regardless of need or practicality, to build dams and roads when and where it saw fit without consulting the cities or parishes concerned.

To carry on this work, it would have authority to issue $25,000,000 in bonds. Undoubtedly this total would have to be increased endlessly through the years, for this project is strictly boondoggling and the money appetite of boondoggling schemes never can be satisfied.

These bonds would not have to be advertised for sale. They could be sold privately, secretly, in backroom deals or otherwise. They could bear interest up to six percent instead of the two-plus carried in most bond issues of public agencies.

No state survey by qualified persons ever has been made as to need or practicality of this Sabine plan as a whole. The only survey made on any of it was negative. The army engineers officially reported that power production on the Sabine is not practical, economically or from the engineering standpoint. With that verdict, the engineers dropped the whole thing like a hot potato.

The Authority, if created, not only could supersede municipal and parish government in its own area, but could bypass the state government at Baton Rouge. It could make private contracts with the state of Texas and with the federal government at Washington, without referring its actions back to the state legislature or to anyone else.

The World is fully sympathetic with the desire of several parishes in the Sabine valley to have more water for various purposes. But, the degree of actual need never has been specified by any competent authority, nor has any but a negative verdict been renderd anywhere as to the practically of the proposed plan.

Even if power production, navigation, and irrigation were practical, through development of the Sabine, the manner of financing the Authority and the unlimited power granted it as a super-government over cities, parishes, and state would be ample to justify a thumbs down verdict.

There is too much socialism, authoritarianism, and statism in American life from Washington these days without adding to it from our own governmental sources in Louisiana. Too much government already is injected into private business by the Washington bureaucracy without increasing it in our own state from an agency that would not be responsible even to government at the state capitol.

No. 11: The $140,000,000 Bond Issue

The highway bond amendment will be discussed in more detail later, but here is a thumbnail sketch for immediate consideration.

Passage of this amendment would mean that Louisiana would pay around $1.50 for every $1.00 in construction, bridge or highway, because of the exhorbitant system of interest payments included.

The $140,000,000 bond issue would provide only $95,000,000 for highways, the other $45,000,000 being earmarked for the New Orleans bridge and tunnel but with no guarantee when either would be built, or that either ever would be built.

Against this $95,000,000 in proposed bonds for highways, the state highway department now has $91,000,000 available, according to its most recent fiscal statement.

During the next 10 years—the period probably required to complete whatever construction the $95,000,000 in bonds would provide—the state highway department will have a total of $350,000,000 to $400,000,000 from present tax revenue, state and federal, without any boud issue.

There is not one word in the proposed bond issue amendment guaranteeing so much as one square yard of construction or repair for so much as one specific highway or road. Statements that the amendment earmarks even one

FIFTH REGIMENT

British And American Forces Advance To Chinese Red Section

NO CONFIRMATION MADE OF ESTIMATED FIGURES

By the Associated Press

Seoul, Sunday, Oct. 29.—(AP)—U.S. troops speared to within 41 miles of the Manchurian frontier today in a United Nations drive to clear all Korea before resurgent Reds can regroup a potent striking force.

Joined by some Chinese Communist troops, the Korean Reds were throwing in furious counter-attacks as U. N., forces shoved closer to the border of Manchuria. It was particularly strong in front of the Yalu river boundary of Northwestern Korea.

The fifth regiment of the U. S. 24th division reduced the border objective to 41 miles by reaching the important road junction of Taechon, U. S. eighth army headquarters announced.

These U. S. and British commonwealth brigade troops are thrusting up the Korean west coast toward the border. Eighth army headquarters said both should reach the frontier within a week.

From Taechon the U. S. fifth regiment can swing northwest about 14 miles to Kusong and get on a major inland highway leading to the Manchurian border. Kusong is 31 miles southeast of Sakchu where the highway crosses into Manchuria over a power dam across the Yalu.

British commonwealth troops were moving northwest on the main coastal road from Kasan, 60 miles southeast of the frontier.

The U. S. and British advance is into an area where Chinese prisoners reported from 30,000 to 60,000 Chinese Reds are fighting alongside the North Koreans.

General - Truman Confer

Pact Nations In Accord

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Defense ministers of the 12 north Atlantic treaty nations indicated tonight that they had agreed on the prompt appointment of a supreme commander for Western Europe's defenses.

They had apparently reached no decision as yet, however, on the controversial question of German rearmament.

The ministers recessed at 6 p. m., Eastern standard time after an all-day meeting. They will reconvene at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Some hours before the session broke up, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, widely expected to be the supreme commander of Europe's joint defenses, held a conference with President Truman.

Though no major announcement resulted from this meeting, it did nothing to dispel the belief that the general will get the big job.

"The president didn't put the question to me," Eisenhower told reporters. But he added that Mr. Truman "always knows that I am available for duty."

The defense ministers, in a cryptic communique, said the decisions they must take at the current conference "are those necessary to give immediate direction" to the north Atlantic area's "advancing" capabilities for defense.

The communique said the ministers also are required to reach agreement on "further measures to improve these defenses."

The defense committee, the document added, completed the first half of its agenda today.

Thus the defense chiefs apparently reached no decision on such questions as to what role Germany shall be given in the task of bulwalking Europe against Russia.

U. S. officials have advocated the use of German units as large as division in the international defense force. The French, traditionally fearful of a resurgence of German might, want the German units to be as small as possible and say they should be subject to a European defense minister, responsible to a European assembly.

Without mentioning France, Secretary of Defense Marshall told the defense ministers today that "realistic" action should be taken for, he said, the situation is critical.

There had been speculation that an announcement of Eisenhower's selection might be made today. But President Truman could hardly make a choice until the North Atlantic treaty organization asked him to.

And although today's communique indicated that agreement has been reached on the creation of a supreme headquarters and supreme commander in western Europe, other steps remain to be taken. The defense ministers' recommendations must be approved by the council of foreign ministers.

Moreover President Truman probably wouldn't want to give the impression that he was nudging Eisenhower toward a post that would take him temporarily out of the political picture.

The Truman - Eisenhower meeting had obvious political overtones. Eisenhower again is being proposed — by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and others —for the Republican presidential nomination. If he were nominated, President Truman might well be his opponent in 1952.

Reporters asked Eisenhower today what difference it would make politically if he accepted the western powers' defense assignment.

Smiling, he replied: "I have no intention of doing in 1952 anything

EPISCOPAL CHURCH PLANNING BAZAAR

Children Work With Mothers In Preparation Of Annual Event

Children at Grace Episcopal church are working as hard as their mothers in preparation for the annual church bazaar to be held November 16 on the grounds of the parish house, North Fourth and Glenmar.

These industrious children are busy collecting trinkets to be used in grab bags, toys, books, and other useful items. The little girls are even giving up some of their prize dolls to be sold at the bazaar.

Persons interested in getting some of their Christmas shopping out of the way will find many useful articles for the Yuletide season. Handwork and special clothing will be featured. Babies' and children's sweaters, guest towels, pillow slips, and luncheon sets may be purchased at one of the many stands open during the bazaar.

The hobby booth will sell products donated by Monroe hobbyists, including dolls, handpainted china, pictures, knitted golf socks and golf club covers, camellias azaleas and hand made toys.

The food counter will feature home made preserves, jellies, pickles, relish, relishes, fruit cakes and special quart containers of gumbo. The home made delicacies are being donated by some of the best cooks in the Twin cities.

At 9 a. m. the activities of the day will begin. Grace Episcopal church extends an invitation to the public to attend.

TO HELP WITH BAZAAR

Pictured above are three little girls, Penny Nichols, Cynthis Leigh and Anna Gayle Dunn, who are helping their parents in preparation for the annual Grace Episcopal Church bazaar to be held on November 16. It's A Slogan With Real Meaning

"What you give makes the difference!"

The Community Chest could hardly have picked a better slogan for its 1950 fund appeal. And because the slogan means what it says, you should take it to heart and give enough really to make the difference.

Does a crippled youngster receive proper medical care, or must he grow up with a twisted, tortured body? What you give makes the difference.

Does an old lady, unable to care for herself, find a haven of comfort for her last years, or must she struggle along alone, shamefully neglected? Do boys and girls of a run-down tenement neighborhood have a clean, safe playground, or must they play in a dangerous, filthy street or alley? What you give makes the difference.

If you met any of these situations personally, you would gladly give the difference that would turn despair to hope and joy. You would, at least, give all you were able. And you would see at once that what you gave did make a vast difference.

The agencies dependent on the Twin City Community Chest make it their business to help needy and deserving individuals. They find families beset with crushing problems—problems that often a few dollars and experienced guidance can overcome. They give aid and comfort wherever they can, within the limitations of their finances.

They are appealing to you, through the Community Chest campaign, to give now to enable them to make that vital difference where ill luck, tragedy and disaster strike.

What you give makes a big difference—an individual, personal difference—in the health and happiness of someone less fortunate than yourself.

And there's one other big, personal difference. It's the feeling of pride and satisfaction that comes to you from generous and unselfish giving.

Remember this when you are asked to give in the annual drive which starts here Wednesday.

Ignore Candidates' Abilities

If you asked U.S. labor leaders whether they wanted to see one-party government in this country, they'd probably answer with a horrified "no." But labor's political activities—followed to their logical conclusion—lead directly toward single party rule.

Long before the C. I. O. came on the scene it was organized labor's practice to try to reward its friends and penalized its enemies at the polls. Certainl this is a perfectly anow natural response; any group in American society seeks to do the same.

The entry of the C. I. O.'s political action committee into the political wars did not change this basic principle. It simply put it on a more militant basis. Labor began making an effort to learn the mechanics of vote-getting and campaigning, and to turn these lessons to account on election day.

Again, there can't be any quarrel with this approach, so long as no one is made to campaign against his will or contribute money similarly.

What can be complained of is the narrowness of labor's definition of its "friends." Run down the list of candidates it is supporting in major contests throughout the country, and you'll find almost invariably they are Democrats.

Admittedly, the great bulk of Republicans are conservative-minded and hence labor's attitude toward them should occasion no surprise. But there are several progressive Republicans in the fray, too, and still labor has lined up against them.

In California, for instance, Gov. Earl Warren has demonstrated through two full terms that he is forward-looking, thoroughly aware of prime social needs, energetic in pursuit of balanced legislation for all groups. His reward for this is to have the C. I. O. and A. F. L. declare against him in favor of James Roosevelt, son of the late F.D.R., who is totally without political executive experience.

Another case is Pennsylvania, where liberal Governor James H. Duff finds labor bucking him despite a four-year record which some labor officials privately concede is wholly satisfactory to them.

Duff, of course, is running for the senate. Labor's answer in his case and every other involving a senate or house seat would be that it wants Democrats in Washington who are committed to support of labor's legislative program.

As indicated, in one sense this is completely understandable; but in another, it is destructive of the health of the two-party system and the spirit of independence that ought to prevail among our lawmakers. And therefore, from the viewpoint of labor's own interests, it is shortsighted.

Labor should be concerned not alone with achieving its own selfish political aims but with preserving a sound balance of forces in the nation's political structure. It should want to see men in congress who represent the most enlightened thinking in labor's opposition, or who simply have different ideas about how labor is best served. It should have to encourage independence, not squelch it.

The greatest tip-off on the selfishness and insincerity of labor's political declarations is its willingness to see a man of Senator Taft's integrity and ability thrown into the discard for a Democrat, Joseph T. Ferguson, whom labor itself admits is no more than a minor party time-server with no real qualifications for the senate.

Until you find labor standing up for men of character and ability and farsightedness in whatever party they may be found, take with a huge does of salt any protestations of union men that they believe in two-party government.

WALTER WINCHELL

Broadway Showboat

J. Arthur Rank paid Paul Gallico $100,000 for the screen rights to his "Snow Goose," which will not be filmed. But Mary Orr got little more than $1,000 for "Wisdom of Eve" (a magazine story), which is now "All About Eve," one of the richest box-office smashes. . . . Cue mag, which shelved all radio listings (except teevy) just to see what the reaction would be soon found out. The editor reports a hurricane of lusty complaints, so they go back in the Nov. 11th issue. . . . The Theatre is reaping a golden harvest, but not all the stage news is gilt-edged. Three shows collapsed last week end, representing a 300,000 deficit. . . . Tallulah Bankhead was saying she had been to the dentist, to which Richard Maney intoned: "Why? To be defang'd?" . . . Critic Brooks Atkinson cited the acting and direction of John Steinbeck's "Burning Bright" as "superb." He added: "It is written in the form of an epic and acted like a poem." Then he punch-lined: "It is inadequate." Orchids were never thornier.

"Quo Vadis," the MGM saga being filmed in Italy, has a 9-month shooting schedule. The cost is a mere 15,000 per minute. . . . Varity's report that producer Leland Hayward's legit clicks are grossing $225,400 weekly is a remarkable testimonial to the basic vitality of entertainment's oldest medium. . . . One teevy network will gross over ten million this year and wind up in a blaze of scarlet ink. . . . Francis X. Bushman, chief of the silent screen idols, is now a voice on the "Broadway Is My Beat" radio show Friday eves. . . . Bethe Douglas hasn't her name in lights, but she may be enjoyed at three different Broadway places. At Loew's State in "Toast of New Orleans," at the Capitol in "A Life of Her Own," and at the Ziegfeld in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

No wonder the advance heralds trumpet that Joan Crawford's "Harriet Craig" is headed for hoorays. It's the film version of a great stage smash, "Craig's Wife". . . . Ruth Roman's charm manages to overcome her zany coiffure in "Three Secrets". . . . Joseph Cotten is so expert at scene-swiping because of his adroit underplaying. . . . Sample lyric from a new "love" ditty: "Slam, bam, alakazam—wonderful you met I!" Hmmmm. . . . "Season in the Sun," which is high among the hits, cost only $50,000 to stage. . . . The imitators of "The Goldbergs" have borrowed its characters and format—but they Just Can't Make It Good. . . . Jolson's last appearance (before Korea) was in August as pinch-hitter on our Sunday-nighter.

Ava Gardner's bullfighter friend in Madrid is on his way here to help exploit the picture, "Pandora's Box," and watch the photo services fall for the phony "plants". . . . Mrs. Alf Lunt (Lynn Fontanne) is not only rich, she also has a big chunk of Cole Porter's "Out of This World," and he rarely sponsors flops. . . . After being banned from all 38 Shubert temples four years, the showmen reluctantly agreed to permit our entry into "Wunderbar" only because Jolson, the star, refused to go on unless we could review it. Ours was among the nh-nhs. . . . Playwright Moss Hart is the latest to criticize the critics. He charges that they know "almost nothing about direction and pretty damned little about acting." Mr. Hart doesn't mention that they saluted his clicks. Probably because (as the line goes) we all remember the bumps and forget the caresses.

This is the type of stupidity which is a cinch to invite teevy censorship: A murder meller dealt with a sadistic 10-year-old. . . . One bingocast which hasn't lost its zing is "Stop the Music." Mitzi Mayfair and Charles Henderson's guidance being a chief reason. . . . Peggy Lee's blues style via "Once in a Lifetime" is something to pitty-cake. . . . The theory offered by a few managers that Shakespeare's cadences are over the heads of the average audience has been effectively shattered by the success of Olivier's film, "Hamlet." It netted almost 3 million to date.

There are still 8,000,000 U. S. homes beyond the reach of the coaxial cable. . . . The whodunit vogue on the air is waning. Several sleuth-happy dramas were yanked by sponsors in the last month. . . . Art Ford's all-nighter still tops the disc-jock field, so far as this Gershwin-Berlin-Rodgers & Hammerstein-Kern lover is concerned. . . . Drama reporters noted that Clive Brook, the British actor, will be making his Broadway stage debut in "Second Threshold." He was in "Fair and Warmer" 33 years ago. . . . Gertrude Lawrence and Richard Aldrich switch their Hyannis Music Circus to St. Petersburg Jan. 14th. . . . The star dressing room at the Ziegfeld still has "Bee" instead of "Star" on the door. For Bea Lillie when she played it. . . . From a Trib music review: "He seemed inclined to understate a principal melodic line, missing some essential lyricism in avoiding an inappropriate sensuousness." Whatinell does that mean?

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, both sponsored by the same cigarette firm, do not smoke cirgarettes. Bing's a pipe man, Bob's a cigar smoke blower-in-your-face. . . . Wait'll you hear Dimitri Tiompkin's score from the "Cyrano de Bergerac" sound track. A classic. . . . Bella Spewack, making her debut as a show producer (via "The Golden State" in Philly, Nov. 7th), predicts that Jocelyn Brando and John Randolph are "stars of the future." Josephine Hull and Ernest Truex have the stellar roles. . . . Kostelanetz's newest recorded album is crowded with 19 of I. Berlin's tune-toppers. . . . The most passionate love-letter in Ethel Merman's collection of mash-notes came from critic Richard Watts: "She is more than merely a woman or a star. She is a mighty natural force, and she belongs with Niagara Falls, the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone Park among our God-given natural wonders." Mebbeso, but she can't flick a chickeu.

The new season's first national Nielsen ratings are in. Radio Theatre in the lead. Irma next. The Richard Hudnut (Sunday night) News is 3rd, Jack Benny 4th, Godfrey's Talent Scouts 5th. . . . In teevy Berle leads with 62.1. Nielsen adds that the 1950 estimate of total U. S. radio homes is 40,700,000. . . . The "Call Me Madam" score is getting more repeats on the air than station identifications. . . . "Two Flags West" is packed with lusty he-men, but Linda Darnell isn't even kissed once during the whole flicker. . . . Diction is always de luxe when you're listening to Basil Rathbone. Ever hear him pronounce "extraordinary"? Makes it riple. . . . Ken Murray's blooper on his teevy stanza the other Satdee eve'g is still the laugh of the week. No, it can't be linotyped here. . . . "Breakthrough" which premieres at Warner's Hollywood (on the coast, Nov. 8th), is touted as "The Big Parade" of Hitler's War. . . . Amazing that John Garfield's starrer, "The Breaking Point," emerged from the Johnston office with its Hemingways intact. The dialog is pretty Oh-Brother in spots. . . . Reminder for Movie Directors: The greatest love scene of all (Romeo & Juliet) is performed without physical contact.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

LETTER TO CLOSED MIND

Marshal Tito
Government Palace
Belgrade, Yugoslavia

Dear Sir:

The other day, according to a dispatch from Belgrade, you abolished all special privileges enjoyed by Communist officials as regards food, housing and services. For the first time in history, your spokesman was quoted as saying, the rulers and the people were going to be treated exactly alike.

This piece of news, Your Excellency, hit me where I speculate, and so I moseyed down the Public Library this morning to see whether you really rate the No. 1 spot on the all-time Split Parade. And the answer, as I researched it, is that (a) you're a dozen centuries late, and (b) if history means anything, you're a cinch to fall flat on your postulate. Here are the pertinent precedents.

Back in the 8th century, the ruler of Tibet, a sharp conscienced gent named Muni Tsan-po, decreed that the wealth of his country be divvied up among the people, share-and-share-alike. A few years later, however, when Muni (no relation to Paul) took a turn around his baliwick to see how the plan was working, he found that in almost every case the rich had regained their riches and the poor their poverty.

Twice more he reshuffled the wealth, but when the results were the same he finally abandoned the notion and decided to devote the rest of his life to prayer—the lion, so to speak, turned into a lama.

The same thing, according to the record, has happened dozens of times in this country during the past 150 years. In 1825 an idealistic gent named Robert Owen set up an egalitarian community in New Harmony, Indiana, and saw it break up some years later because of friction between the haves and the would-like-to-gets. Then there was the Perfectionist colony in Oneida, N. Y., and Fourier's Brook Farm in Massachusetts—not to mention Joseph Baumeler's settlement in Zoar, Ohio, where everyone over 60 was entitled to quit work and consume "a reasonable amount of beer and cider at the communal tavern each day.

This last Utopia, it may interest you to know, came apart at the comradely seams because certain of its citizens surreptitiously opened bank accounts in Cincinnati and were caught smuggling in bottles of bourbon.

You can argue, of course, that these experiments don't count because they took place in the capitalistic west, but I think I can show you that geography doesn't enter into it with a final example.

Some years ago the people of a certain country gave the bum's rush to their rulers and set up a government in which everyone was to be treated equally. Fifteen years later, however, a compilation of figures released by this government indicated that 15 per cent of the population was consuming as much as the other 85 per cent. Certain "specialists" and "technicians" were earning a hundred times as much as common labor, and in addition special "Luxe" shops had been set up for wealthy

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THOMAS OF UTAH

One of the characters of the United States senate is Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, who is up for re-election this year. Mr. Thomas is a scholar, especially in Japanese, and has been an instructor in Latin and Greek. He is an author, an authority on labor problems and altogether quite a man.

In the senate, he has pursued a curious and unexplainable course. The confession of Lee Pressman as a Communist cooperator and the self-implication of John Abt and Charles Kramer make the story of Senator Elbert D. Thomas on the La Follette committee increasingly interesting.

This committee was organized by members of the Harold Ware Communist cell in Washington as an instrument for the smearing of American industry. Robert La Follette and Elbert Thomas managed the La Follette committee. The actual operators of the committee were John Abt and Charles Kramer (Krivitsky). Senator Thomas needs to explain why he tolerated that.

I think that it can be established on the record that no other United States senator has had so many dealings with Communists and with front organizations as Senator Elbert Thomas. I am not saying that he is a Marxist—I know nothing of what motives caused him to adopt his curious course. But why would Senator Thomas say this:

"Some day, when the Russian children, at Stalingrad and the Jewish children at Birobidjan have grown up into strong and splendid men and women, fully equipped to enjoy the equality of opportunity their country offers them . . ."

What equality of opportunity is possible under the Communist system? What Marxist believes in equality of opportunity? A learned man of Senator Thomas's quality would know about that. Whom was he trying to fool—the 20,000,000 slaves in Russia?

Senator Thomas was a sponsor of the American committee for protection of foreign born, a subversive organization. A man of the calibre of Senator Thomas would know the character of this organization, for it was founded as far back as January 2, 1924 by the third national convention of the Communist party (then known as the Workers Party of America).

This senator was a member of the committee for the first amendment, set up to protect the Hollywood ten. Now, the senator might say that he never was a member, but the "Daily People's World," on October 29, 1947, announced his membership, and there is no record of objection. Yet, the "Hollywood ten" have been held in contempt of a congress of which Senator Thomas is a member.

I could go on with this record, which is very long, but how does the senator explain these words, which he wrote for a Communist magazine, "The New Masses":

". . . In Russia the worth of an individual from an economic standpoint has never been discounted. This, we have always thought to be impossible under any kind of socialistic regime. Therefore, there must be in the Russian scheme an appreciation of the individual or else that individual could never have amounted to as much as he or she has under socialistic guidance. Does this not mean that leadership in Russia, while giving lip service to another type of political theory, has by action recognized the basic strength of democracy? Personally, I believe that that is the case. . . ."

When Elbert Thomas wrote that in 1943, it was false.

Senator La Follette once wrote a magazine article explaining how the Communists jobbed him on the committee But not Senator Thomas.

I want to ask Senator Thomas a few questions:

1. Did he know that when Harold Ware was killed in an automobile accident that John Abt took over Ware's job as the head of the cell in Washington and married Jessica Smith, Ware's widow, who edits the most anti-American magazine in this country, "Soviet Russia Today"?

2. If he discovered that fact, did he re-examine the work of the La Follette committee to discover what John Abt and his associates did to America?

3. Did he ever read these words: "Mr. Stripling. Mr. Abt, are you a member of the Communist party?

"Mr. Abt. Mr. Stripling, on the grounds of objection stated by my counsel and, in addition, in the exercise of the privilege extended to me under the fifth amendment of the constitution against self-incrimination, I decline to answer that question."

The senator might say that the La Follette committee once smeared me outrageously and that I am getting even with him. Senator, does that excuse you?

ECONOMIC IDIOCY

We seem to be doing our best here in the United States of America to destroy the economy that makes us strong.

ONE: Including the current fiscal year, our government has spent more than it has taken in during nineteen of the last twenty-one years. It has now become a habit, and as President Franklin D. Roosevelt well said — although he completely ignored his own warning — this habit can only "lead to the poorhouse."

TWO: During two world wars the United States has served as the source of wealth and resources to finance the preservation of democracy. This has resulted in a national debt that now amounts to 40 per cent more than the total assessed value of all the taxable property in this nation. This overpowering national debt hangs like the sword of Damocles over our economic well-being.

There has been very little, if any, effort made by the political leadership of this nation to balance the national budget or adopt a systematic plan of payment of the national debt during the past twenty years. The nation's economic safety has been subjugated to the politicians' desires for election.

THREE: One of the surest ways to destroy a nation is to debase its currency. This has been recognized for centuries by students of government, and has been particularly pointed out by the Communist advocates of world revolution in recent years. We have had a debased currency since 1933. When our government went off the gold standard that year, it violated sanctity of contract and repudiated its pledged promise to the people. In effect, it robbed everyone who had saved a dollar of forty two per cent of his savings. Since that date we have had an irredeemable paper currency.

New York Day By Day

New York In our New York suburb are many dogs and many children. This is the way we like it. Our children have grown up, married, and gone far away. Well, we knew that would happen. That was what we signed up for.

We bought this house because our children wanted a dog. We could understand that longing for an animal companion. It meant a considerable investment, but we have never regretted it. The girls grew from childhood to womanhood here and they still love to revisit the old home, which isn't so very old. Time marches on.

I read about a town in Nevada where a bounty was offered to children for bringing in dogs to be shot by the poundmaster, who makes a living (God help us!) out of shooting dogs. I would not like to know that poundmaster. I would not like to know Las Vegas, Nevada.

Let us stay away from that place.

There is a poor dog, mutt you may call him, who comes to the back stoop of our house and lies on his belly, still and watchful, until my wife opens the back door. His name is Tippy, and for a reason that is none of our business, he is always hungry. My wife gives mutt food. Fish and bacon that our little cocker will not eat, and other morsels. Tippy is happy, and wags his tail. Toby Tobias Guru Jones, our small inbred cocker, doesn't like the idea of feeding Tippy, and growls ominously. Tippy quickly devours his food, as if he were afraid of our little foolish dog, and wags gratefully, and goes away.

My wife talks to Tippy, as Saint Francis talked to the birds. She tells him that he is a good dog, but that he should not chase squirrels and bark at them all day. Tippy listens with cocked ears. Believe me, he is giving up his foolish chasing of squirrels. He wants to please this nice lady, who feeds him and befriends him.

Welfare island, in the East river, used to be called something else, and it is just as well to forget about that. It was a place where criminals, paupers and castaways were sent. An expression grew into general use: "He went to the island."

It is now a large area of hospitals owned by the City of New York and served largely by physicians and surgeons who enjoy their work and make no charges.

These hospitals are of the most modern and efficient design. One of them, in which I have spent some time as a visitor, is entered from the roof. You drive along the Triboro bridge and turn off at a designated spot. An elevator takes you and your car down through the roof of the tall building. Hundreds of sick people are there, without money, but with clean sheets and expert care. You come away with a feeling of great compassion. but also with the thought, "This is a great country."

They are making plans for a new hospital for Welfare Island. It is to be for tuberculosis and chronic diseases, and will cost more than $21,000,000. Eleven stories high, this new hospital may also have roof entrance; that is not decided. But thousands of sick people who cannot afford to pay for treatment will be taken care of there.

A visit to Welfare Island is not conductive to pleasantries. But I always come away with this thought: "Much better than Moscow."

BASCOM TIMMONS

By Charles Gridley

There is plenty of confusion on every hand about transition from civil defense (c) no competent dipeacetime existence to a state of semi-preparedness, but in no sector is it more opparent than in planning for civil defense. In large measure, that is due to absence of any precedent in the United States for defense against aerial attack. To a lesser degree, it can be attributed to a complete lack of experienced direction, and to inexperience of those appointed to head up a national civil defense program.

Reports from major cities, which would be the most logical targets for attacks by air from Russian bases, indicate that efforts to get civil defense programs under way are hampered by (a) general indifference of the population (b) disagreement as to the best way to go about setting up adequate rection from Washington.

One city which practically all of the inhabitants feel would be a major A-bomb target is Detroit, yet reports from there indicate no progress of consequence to prepare for such an eventuality. Asked what Detroiters think about it, a prominent resident of the auto said:

"Most of them just hope there will be enough warning so they can get across the river to Canada.

The jam which would occur if most of the population of Detroit tried to flee to safety to Canada, with foreign bombers overhead or on the way is not pleasant to contemplate, but it is an example of the unimaginative thinking of people who may, within the next three or four years face that peril.

England had to revise constantly her plans for civil defense as hordes of Nazi bombers struck at London and other key points during the blitz. She found, for example, that 230,000 beds made available in "the City the central business section of London, were unnecessary because the casualties, far below estimates, could be cared for in London hospitals. It was not long before civil defense directors in Britain were telling the well disciplined people of that island to go about business as usual when the bombers came.

A study of Japanese bombings indicates that on several occasions, the effect of mass bombing by "block busters and fire bombs was equal to that of an atomic bomb, and the casualties about the same. The advanced Bikini A-bomb would do tremendous damage to property, but would cause casualties no more casualties than concentrated attack with tons of heavy explosive.

It is not generally recalled that after the first blitzes on London and the tremendous fire damage, the British sent civil defense representatives here to study the "platoon system (nothing to do with football) of U. S. metropolitan fire departments, put it into effect in London and other British cities. We are now reviewing the way it was used to fight bombing fires in anticipation of using the same system, with British improvements, in civil defense.

The hesitancy of U. S. cities to set up civil defense councils and embark upon a program of local instruction is in part due to a lack of "awareness of what a major bombing attack is like. A score of unrelated ideas have been advanced. One is to have every child of school age wear "dog tags like soldiers, as a means of making their parents conscious of the threat of aerial attack and resultant confusion. The tremendous task of typing everyones blood has not gone beyond the suggestion stage. And mayors of major east coast and central industrial cities say that civil defense training is the biggest headache that could possibly be thrust upon them.

The constant beating which the state department has taken from the Republican side of congress does not hinder it in coming up with the right men for important jobs. Latest to step from obscurity into a key post is 54 year old Walter J. Donnelly, a native of New Haven, Conn., who has become the first high commissioner for administration of United States occupation affairs in Austria.

He will succeed Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, who succeeded Gen. Mark Clark as administrator in 1947. Donnelly has been in the foreign service since the early 20s, was once ambassador to Costa Rica. His important service has been almost entirely confined to Latin America (he married a Chilean) which led some to question his background for Austria, the European tinder box, which the Russians would like to get behind the iron curtain with the other satellites.

Part of the state departments confidence in Donnelly is due to his training under Jefferson Caffrey, now ambassador to Egypt, and one of the departments three or four most able diplomats. Donnelly served with him for 16 years. Caffrey knows Egypt, but is too valuable at the momet to be spared for the Austrian job.

It's A Slogan With Real Meaning

"What you give makes the difference!"

The Community Chest could hardly have picked a better slogan for its 1950 fund appeal. And because the slogan means what it says, you should take it to heart and give enough really to make the difference.

Does a crippled youngster receive proper medical care, or must he grow up with a twisted, tortured body? What you give makes the difference.

Does an old lady, unable to care for herself, find a haven of comfort for her last years, or must she struggle along alone, shamefully neglected? Do boys and girls of a run-down tenement neighborhood have a clean, safe playground, or must they play in a dangerous, filthy street or alley? What you give makes the difference.

If you met any of these situations personally, you would gladly give the difference that would turn despair to hope and joy. You would, at least, give all you were able. And you would see at once that what you gave did make a vast difference.

The agencies dependent on the Twin City Community Chest make it their business to help needy and deserving individuals. They find families beset with crushing problems—problems that often a few dollars and experienced guidance can overcome. They give aid and comfort wherever they can, within the limitations of their finances.

They are appealing to you, through the Community Chest campaign, to give now to enable them to make that vital difference where ill luck, tragedy and disaster strike.

What you give makes a big difference—an individual, personal difference—in the health and happiness of someone less fortunate than yourself.

And there's one other big, personal difference. It's the feeling of pride and satisfaction that comes to you from generous and unselfish giving.

Ignore Candidates' Abilities

If you asked U.S. labor leaders whether they wanted to see one-party government in this country, they'd probably answer with a horrified "no." But labor's political activities —followed to their logical conclusion—lead directly toward single party rule.

Long before the C. I. O. came on the scene it was organized labor's practice to try to reward its friends and penized its enemies at the polls. Certainl this is a perfectly anow natural response; any group in American society seeks to do the same.

The entry of the C. I. O.'s political action committee into the political wars did not change this basic principle. It simply put it on a more militant basis. Labor began making an effort to learn the mechanics of vote-getting and campaigning, and to turn these lessons to account on election day.

Again, there can't be any quarrel with this approach, so long as no one is made to campaign against his will or contribute money similarly.

What can be complained of is the narrowness of labor's definition of its "friends." Run down the list of candidates it is supporting in major contests throughout the country, and you'll find almost invariably they are Democrats.

Admittedly, the great bulk of Republicans are conservative-minded and hence labor's attitude toward them should occasion no surprise. But there are several progressive Republicans in the fray, too, and still labor has lined up against them.

In California, for instance, Gov. Earl Warren has demonstrated through two full terms that he is forward-looking, thoroughly aware of prime social needs, energetic in pursuit of balanced legislation for all groups. His reward for this is to have the C. I. O. and A. F. L. declare against him in favor of James Roosevelt, son of the late F.D.R., who is totally without political executive experience.

Another case is Pennsylvania, where liberal Governor James H. Duff finds labor bucking him despite a four-year record which some labor officials privately concede is wholly satisfactory to them.

Duff, of course, is running for the senate. Labor's answer in his case and every other involving a senate or house seat would be that it wants Democrats in Washington who are committed to support of labor's legislative program.

As indicated, in one sense this is completely understandable; but in another, it is destructive of the health of the two-party system and the spirit of independence that ought to prevail among our lawmakers. And therefore, from the viewpoint of labor's own interests, it is shortsighted.

Labor should be concerned not alone with achieving its own selfish political aims but with preserving a sound balance of forces in the nation's political structure. It should want to see men in congress who represent the most enlightened thinking in labor's opposition, or who simply have different ideas about how labor is best served. It should have to encourage independence, not squelch it.

The greatest tip-off on the selfishness and insincerity of labor's political declarations is its willingness to see a man of Senator Taft's integrity and ability thrown into the discard for a Democrat, Joseph T. Ferguson, whom labor itself admits is no more than a minor party time-server with no real qualifications for the senate.

Until you find labor standing up for men of character and ability and farsightedness in whatever party they may be found, take with a huge does of salt any protestations of union men that they believe in two-party government.

Broadway Showboat

J. Arthur Rank paid Paul Gallico $100,000 for the screen rights to his "Snow Goose," which will not be filmed. But Mary Orr got little more than $1,000 for "Wisdom of Eve" (a magazine story), which is now "All About Eve," one of the richest box-office smashes. . . . Cue mag, which shelved all radio listings (except teevy) just to see what the reaction would be soon found out. The editor reports a hurricane of lusty complaints, so they go back in the Nov. 11th issue. . . . The Theatre is reaping a golden harvest, but not all the stage news is gilt-edged. Three shows collapsed last week end, representing a 300,000 deficit. . . . Tallulah Bankhead was saying she had been to the dentist, to which Richard Maney intoned: "Why? To be defang'd?" . . . Critic Brooks Atkinson cited the acting and direction of John Steinbeck's "Burning Bright" as "superb." He added: "It is written in the form of an epic and acted like a poem." Then he punch-lined: "It is inadequate." Orchids were never thornier.

"Quo Vadis," the MGM saga being filmed in Italy, has a 9-month shooting schedule. The cost is a mere 15,000 per minute. . . . Varity's report that producer Leland Hayward's legit clicks are grossing $225,400 weekly is a remarkable testimonial to the basic vitality of entertainment's oldest medium. . . . One teevy network will gross over ten million this year and wind up in a blaze of scarlet ink. . . . Francis X. Bushman, chief of the silent screen idols, is now a voice on the "Broadway Is My Beat" radio show Friday eves. . . . Bethe Douglas hasn't her name in lights, but she may be enjoyed at three different Broadway places. At Loew's State in "Toast of New Orleans," at the Capitol in "A Life of Her Own," and at the Ziegfeld in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

No wonder the advance heralds trumpet that Joan Crawford's "Harriet Craig" is headed for hoorays. It's the film version of a great stage smash, "Craig's Wife". . . . Ruth Roman's charm manages to overcome her zany coiffure in "Three Secrets". . . . Joseph Cotten is so expert at scene-swiping because of his adroit underplaying. . . . Sample lyric from a new "love" ditty: "Slam, bam, alakazam—wonderful you met I!" Hmmmm. . . . "Season in the Sun," which is high among the hits, cost only $50,000 to stage. . . . The imitators of "The Goldbergs" have borrowed its characters and format—but they Just Can't Make It Good. . . . Jolson's last appearance (before Korea) was in August as pinch-hitter on our Sunday-nighter.

Ava Gardner's bullfighter friend in Madrid is on his way here to help exploit the picture, "Pandora's Box," and watch the photo services fall for the phony "plants". . . . Mrs. Alf Lunt (Lynn Fontanne) is not only rich, she also has a big chunk of Cole Porter's "Out of This World," and he rarely sponsors flops. . . . After being banned from all 38 Shubert temples four years, the showmen reluctantly agreed to permit our entry into "Wunderbar" only because Jolson, the star, refused to go on unless we could review it. Ours was among the nh-nhs. . . . Playwright Moss Hart is the latest to criticize the critics. He charges that they know "almost nothing about direction and pretty damned little about acting." Mr. Hart doesn't mention that they saluted his clicks. Probably because (as the line goes) we all remember the bumps and forget the caresses.

This is the type of stupidity which is a cinch to invite teevy censorship: A murder meller dealt with a sadistic 10-year-old. . . . One bingocast which hasn't lost its zing is "Stop the Music." Mitzi Mayfair and Charles Henderson's guidance being a chief reason. . . . Peggy Lee's blues style via "Once in a Lifetime" is something to p.tty-cake. . . . The theory offered by a few managers that Shakespeare's cadences are over the heads of the average audience has been effectively shattered by the success of Olivier's film, "Hamlet." It netted almost $ million to date.

There are still 8,000,000 U. S. homes beyond the reach of the coaxial cable. . . . The whodunit vogue on the air is waning. Several sleuth-happy dramas were yanked by sponsors in the last month. . . . Art Ford's all-nighter still tops the disc-jock field, so far as this Gershwin-Berlin-Rodgers & Hammerstein-Kern lover is concerned. . . . Drama reporters noted that Clive Brook, the British actor, will be making his Broadway stage debut in "Second Threshold." He was in "Fair and Warmer" 33 years ago. . . . Gertrude Lawrence and Richard Aldrich switch their Hyannis Music Circus to St. Petersburg Jan. 14th. . . . The star dressing room at the Ziegfeld still has "Bee" instead of "Star" on the door. For Bea Lillie when she played it. . . . From a Trib music review: "He seemed inclined to understate a principal melodic line, missing some essential lyricism in avoiding an inappropriate sensuousness." Whatinell does that mean?

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, both sponsored by the same cigarette firm, do not smoke cirgarettes. Bing's a pipe man, Bob's a cigar smoke blower-in-your-face. . . . Wait'll you hear Dimitri Tiompkin's score from the "Cyrano de Bergerac" sound track. A classic. . . . Bella Spewack, making her debut as a show producer (via "The Golden State" in Philly, Nov. 7th), predicts that Jocelyn Brando and John Randolph are "stars of the future." Josephine Hull and Ernest Truex have the stellar roles. . . . Kostelanetz's newest recorded album is crowded with 19 of I. Berlin's tune-toppers. . . . The most passionate love-letter in Ethel Merman's collection of mash-notes came from critic Richard Watts: "She is more than merely a woman or a star. She is a mighty natural force, and she belongs with Niagara Falls, the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone Park among our God-given natural wonders." Mebbeso, but she can't flick a chickeu.

The new season's first national Nielsen ratings are in. Radio Theatre in the lead. Irma next. The Richard Hudnut (Sunday night) News is 3rd, Jack Benny 4th, Godfrey's Talent Scouts 5th. . . . In teevy Berle leads with 62.1. Nielsen adds that the 1950 estimate of total U. S. radio homes is 40,700,000. . . . The "Call Me Madam" score is getting more repeats on the air than station identifications. . . . "Two Flags West" is packed with lusty he-men, but Linda Darnell isn't even kissed once during the whole flicker. . . . Diction is always de luxe when you're listening to Basil Rathbone. Ever hear him pronounce "extraordinary"? Makes it riple. . . . Ken Murray's blooper on his teevy stanza the other Satdee eve'g is still the laugh of the week. No, it can't be linotyped here. . . . "Breakthrough" which premieres at Warner's Hollywood (on the coast, Nov. 8th), is touted as "The Big Parade" of Hitler's War. . . . Amazing that John Garfield's starrer, "The Breaking Point," emerged from the Johnston office with its Hemingways intact. The dialog is pretty Oh-Brother in spots. . . . Reminder for Movie Directors: The greatest love scene of all (Romeo & Juliet) is performed without physical contact.

THESE DAYS

THOMAS OF UTAH

One of the characters of the United States senate is Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, who is up for re-election this year. Mr. Thomas is a scholar, especially in Japanese, and has been an instructor in Latin and Greek. He is an author, an authority on labor problems and altogether quite a man.

In the senate, he has pursued a curious and unexplainable course. The confession of Lee Pressman as a Communist cooperator and the self-implication of John Abt and Charles Kramer make the story of Senator Elbert D. Thomas on the La Follette committee increasingly interesting.

This committee was organized by members of the Harold Ware Communist cell in Washington as an instrument for the smearing of American industry. Robert La Follette and Elbert Thomas managed the La Follette committee. The actual operators of the committee were John Abt and Charles Kramer (Krivitsky). Senator Thomas needs to explain why he tolerated that.

I think that it can be established on the record that no other United States senator has had so many dealings with Communists and with front organizations as Senator Elbert Thomas. I am not saying that he is a Marxist—I know nothing of what motives caused him to adopt his curious course. But why would Senator Thomas say this:

"Some day, when the Russian children, at Stalingrad and the Jewish children at Birobidjan have grown up into strong and splendid men and women, fully equipped to enjoy the equality of opportunity their country offers them . . ."

What equality of opportunity is possible under the Communist system? What Marxist believes in equality of opportunity? A learned man of Senator Thomas's quality would know about that. Whom was he trying to fool—the 20,000,000 slaves in Russia?

Senator Thomas was a sponsor of the American committee for protection of foreign born, a subversive organization. A man of the calibre of Senator Thomas would know the character of this organization, for it was founded as far back as January 2, 1924 by the third national convention of the Communist party (then known as the Workers Party of America).

This senator was a member of the committee for the first amendment, set up to protect the Hollywood ten. Now, the senator might say that he never was a member, but the "Daily People's World," on October 29, 1947, announced his membership, and there is no record of objection. Yet, the "Hollywood ten" have been held in contempt of a congress of which Senator Thomas is a member.

I could go on with this record, which is very long, but how does the senator explain these words, which he wrote for a Communist magazine, "The New Masses":

". . . In Russia the worth of an individual from an economic standpoint has never been discounted. This, we have always thought to be impossible under any kind of socialistic regime. Therefore, there must be in the Russian scheme an appreciation of the individual or else that individual could never have amounted to as much as he or she has under socialistic guidance. Does this not mean that leadership in Russia, while giving lip service to another type of political theory, has by action recognized the basic strength of democracy? Personally, I believe that that is the case. . . ."

When Elbert Thomas wrote that in 1943, it was false.

Senator La Follette once wrote a magazine article explaining how the Communists jobbed him on the committee But not Senator Thomas.

I want to ask Senator Thomas a few questions:

1. Did he know that when Harold Ware was killed in an automobile accident that John Abt took over Ware's job as the head of the cell in Washington and married Jessica Smith, Ware's widow, who edits the most anti-American magazine in this country, "Soviet Russia Today"?

2. If he discovered that fact, did he re-examine the work of the La Follette committee to discover what John Abt and his associates did to America?

3. Did he ever read these words: "Mr. Stripling, Mr. Abt, are you a member of the Communist party?

"Mr. Abt. Mr. Stripling, on the grounds of objection stated by my counsel and, in addition, in the exercise of the privilege extended to me under the fifth amendment of the constitution against self-incrimination, I decline to answer that question."

The senator might say that the La Follette committee once smeared me outrageously and that I am getting even with him. Senator, does that excuse you?

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

LETTER TO CLOSED MIND

Marshal Tito
Government Palace
Belgrade, Yugoslavia

Dear Sir:

The other day, according to a dispatch from Belgrade, you abolished all special privileges enjoyed by Communist officials as regards food, housing and services. For the first time in history, your spokesman was quoted as saying, the rulers and the people were going to be treated exactly alike.

This piece of news, Your Excellency, hit me where I speculate, and so I moseyed down the Public Library this morning to see whether you really rate the No. 1 spot on the all-time Split Parade. And the answer, as I researched it, is that (a) you're a dozen centuries late, and (b) if history means anything, you're a cinch to fall flat on your postulate. Here are the pertinent precedents.

Back in the 8th century, the ruler of Tibet, a sharp conscienced gent named Muni Tsan-po, decreed that the wealth of his country be divvied up among the people, share-and-share-alike. A few years later, however, when Muni (no relation to Paul) took a turn around his baliwick to see how the plan was working, he found that in almost every case the rich had regained their riches and the poor their poverty.

Twice more he reshuffled the wealth, but when the results were the same he finally abandoned the notion and decided to devote the rest of his life to prayer—the lion, so to speak, turned into a lama.

The same thing, according to the record, has happened dozens of times in this country during the past 150 years. In 1825 an idealistic gent named Robert Owen set up an egalitarian community in New Harmony, Indiana, and saw it break up some years later because of friction between the haves and the would-like-to-gets. Then there was the Perfectionist colony in Oneida, N. Y., and Fourier's Brook Farm in Massachusetts—not to mention Joseph Baumeler's settlement in Zoar, Ohio, where everyone over 60 was entitled to quit work and consume "a reasonable amount of beer and cider at the communal tavern each day.

This last Utopia, it may interest you to know, came apart at the comradely seams because certain of its citizens surreptitiously opened bank accounts in Cincinnati and were caught smuggling in bottles of bourbon.

You can argue, of course, that these experiments don't count because they took place in the capitalistic west, but I think I can show you that geography doesn't enter into it with a final example.

Some years ago the people of a certain country gave the bum's rush to their rulers and set up a government in which everyone was to be treated equally. Fifteen years later, however, a compilation of figures released by this government indicated that 15 per cent of the population was consuming as much as the other 85 per cent. Certain "specialists" and "technicians" were earning a hundred times as much as common labor, and in addition special "Luxe" shops had been set up for wealthy

We seem to be doing our best here in the United States of America to destroy the economy that makes us strong.

ONE: Including the current fiscal year, our government has spent more than it has taken in during nineteen of the last twenty-one years. It has now become a habit, and as President Franklin D. Roosevelt well said — although he completely ignored his own warning — this habit can only "lead to the poorhouse."

TWO: During two world wars the United States has served as the source of wealth and resources to finance the preservation of democracy. This has resulted in a national debt that now amounts to 40 per cent more than the total assessed value of all the taxable property in this nation. This overpowering national debt hangs like the sword of Damocles over our economic well-being.

There has been very little, if any, effort made by the political leadership of this nation to balance the national budget or adopt a systematic plan of payment of the national debt during the past twenty years. The nation's economic safety has been subjugated to the politicians' desires for election.

THREE: One of the surest ways to destroy a nation is to debase its currency. This has been recognized for centuries by students of government, and has been particularly pointed out by the Communist advocates of world revolution in recent years. We have had a debased currency since 1933. When our government went off the gold standard that year, it violated sanctity of contract and repudiated its pledged promise to the people. In effect, it robbed everyone who had saved a dollar of forty two per cent of his savings. Since that date we have had an irredeemable paper currency.

Charles B. Driscoll:

New York Day By Day

New York In our New York suburb are many dogs and many children. This is the way we like it. Our children have grown up, married, and gone far away. Well, we knew that would happen. That was what we signed up for.

We bought this house because our children wanted a dog. We could understand that longing for an animal companion. It meant a considerable investment, but we have never regretted it. The girls grew from childhood to womanhood here and they still love to revisit the old home, which isn't so very old. Time marches on.

I read about a town in Nevada where a bounty was offered to children for bringing in dogs to be shot by the poundmaster, who makes a living (God help us!) out of shooting dogs. I would not like to know that poundmaster. I would not like to know Las Vegas, Nevada.

Let us stay away from that place.

There is a poor dog, mutt you may call him, who comes to the back stoop of our house and lies on his belly, still and watchful, until my wife opens the back door. His name is Tippy, and for a reason that is none of our business, he is always hungry. My wife gives mutt food. Fish and bacon that our little cocker will not eat, and other morsels. Tippy is happy, and wags his tail. Toby Tobias Guru Jones, our small inbred cocker, doesn't like the idea of feeding Tippy, and growls ominously. Tippy quickly devours his food, as if he were afraid of our little foolish dog, and wags gratefully, and goes away.

My wife talks to Tippy, as Saint Francis talked to the birds. She tells him that he is a good dog, but that he should not chase squirrels and bark at them all day. Tippy listens with cocked ears. Believe me, he is giving up his foolish chasing of squirrels. He wants to please this nice lady, who feeds him and befriends him.

Welfare island, in the East river, used to be called something else, and it is just as well to forget about that. It was a place where criminals, paupers and castaways were sent. An expression grew into general use: "He went to the island."

It is now a large area of hospitals owned by the City of New York and served largely by physicians and surgeons who enjoy their work and make no charges.

These hospitals are of the most modern and efficient design. One of them, in which I have spent some time as a visitor, is entered from the roof. You drive along the Triboro bridge and turn off at a designated spot. An elevator takes you and your car down through the roof of the tall building. Hundreds of sick people are there, without money, but with clean sheets and expert care. You come away with a feeling of great compassion, but also with the thought, "This is a great country."

They are making plans for a new hospital for Welfare Island. It is to be for tuberculosis and chronic diseases, and will cost more than $21,000,000. Eleven stories high, this new hospital may also have roof entrance; that is not decided. But thousands of sick people who cannot afford to pay for treatment will be taken care of there.

A visit to Welfare Island is not conductive to pleasantries. But I always come away with this thought: "Much better than Moscow."

BASCOM TIMMONS

By Charles Gridley

There is plenty of confusion on every hand about transition from civil defense (c) no competent dipeacetime existence to a state of semi-preparedness, but in no sector is it more opparent than in planning for civil defense. In large measure, that is due to absence of any precedent in the United States for defense against aerial attack. To a lesser degree, it can be attributed to a complete lack of experienced direction, and to inexperience of those appointed to head up a national civil defense program.

Reports from major cities, which would be the most logical targets for attacks by air from Russian bases, indicate that efforts to get civil defense programs under way are hampered by (a) general indifference of the population (b) disagreement as to the best way to go about setting up adequate rection from Washington.

One city which practically all of the inhabitants feel would be a major A-bomb target is Detroit, yet reports from there indicate no progress of consequence to prepare for such an eventuality. Asked what Detroiters think about it, a prominent resident of the auto said:

"Most of them just hope there will be enough warning so they can get across the river to Canada.

The jam which would occur if most of the population of Detroit tried to flee to safety to Canada, with foreign bombers overhead or on the way is not pleasant to contemplate, but it is an example of the unimaginative thinking of people who may, within the next three or four years face that peril.

England had to revise constantly her plans for civil defense as hordes of Nazi bombers struck at London and other key points during the blitz. She found, for example, that 230,000 beds made available in "the City the central business section of London, were unnecessary because the casualties, far below estimates, could be cared for in London hospitals. It was not long before civil defense directors in Britain were telling the well disciplined people of that island to go about business as usual when the bombers came.

A study of Japanese bombings indicates that on several occasions, the effect of mass bombing by "block busters and fire bombs was equal to that of an atomic bomb, and the casualties about the same. The advanced Bikini A-bomb would do tremendous damage to property, but would cause casualties no more casualties than concentrated attack with tons of heavy explosive.

It is not generally recalled that after the first blitzes on London and the tremendous fire damage, the British sent civil defense representatives here to study the "platoon system (nothing to do with football) of U. S. metropolitan fire departments, put it into effect in London and other British cities. We are now reviewing the way it was used to fight bombing fires in anticipation of using the same system, with British improvements, in civil defense.

The hesitancy of U. S. cities to set up civil defense councils and embark upon a program of local instruction is in part due to a lack of "awareness of what a major bombing attack is like. A score of unrelated ideas have been advanced. One is to have every child of school age wear "dog tags like soldiers, as a means of making their parents conscious of the threat of aerial attack and resultant confusion. The tremendous task of typing everyones blood has not gone beyond the suggestion stage. And mayors of major east coast and central industrial cities say that civil defense training is the biggest headache that could possibly be thrust upon them.

The constant beating which the state department has taken from the Republican side of congress does not hinder it in coming up with the right men for important jobs. Latest to step from obscurity into a key post is 54 year old Walter J. Donnelly, a native of New Haven, Conn., who has become the first high commissioner for administration of United States occupation affairs in Austria.

He will succeed Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, who succeeded Gen. Mark Clark as administrator in 1947. Donnelly has been in the foreign service since the early 20s, was once ambassador to Costa Rica. His important service has been almost entirely confined to Latin America (he married a Chilean) which led some to question his background for Austria, the European tinder box, which the Russians would like to get behind the iron curtain with the other satellites.

Part of the state departments confidence in Donnelly is due to his training under Jefferson Caffrey, now ambassador to Egypt, and one of the departments three or four most able diplomats. Donnelly served with him for 16 years. Caffrey knows Egypt, but is too valuable at the momet to be spared for the Austrian job.

Looking Ahead

IN WASHINGTON

By the Associated Press

Washington—The United States is thinking about helping Turkey to get her army in top-notch condition within a year, instead of the four or five years contemplated under the present program.

The Pentagon has been told that the Turkish army could become a strong flank anchor for the western powers' defense line in case Russia starts war. It could immobilize a substantial part of Soviet forces.

But at present the Turks have a hodge-podge of weapons and equipment of Czech and other origin. These are gradually being replaced by U. S. materiel. The soldiers also would require a lot more intensive training.

Puzzled

Washington—(AP)—Politicians are puzzled by President Truman's insistence on congressional action this year on statehood for Hawaii and Alaska. Passed by the house, the statehood bills face a lot of controversy in the senate. In fact, they could generate a filibuster by southerners who don't want the size of the senate increased by four members who almost certainly would vote for civil rights proposals. The politicians don't think the president has much to gain politically by pushing the statehood bills at this time.

Strangers Arriving

Washington—(AP)—A dozen new faces could show up in congress when it convenes next month. Six new members are assured in the house. Four new senators are assured, and this would be increased to six if two incumbents, now serving by appointment, were defeated. They are Senators Benton (D.-Conn.) and Dworshak (R.-Idaho).

The Nov. 7 election will fill six vacancies in the house. Winners in the contest for these seats will be entitled to take office as soon as congress reconvenes.

In the senate four unexpired terms are being filled—in Rhode Island, Connecticut, North Carolina and Idaho. All of these seats are being held by appointees, including Benton and Dworshak; and they will lose office unless elected Nov. 7. The Rhode Island and North Carolina appointees are not candidates in the election.

Whoever is elected to the vacant senate seats for Kentucky and Kansas can take office to fill out the remaining month or more of the terms of Alben W. Barkley, who resigned to become vice-president, and Clyde Reed, who died.

All other incumbent senators, since they are not appointees, will be entitled to their seats as lame ducks if they are defeated. And all defeated representatives also will hold office until the 82nd congress opens on Jan. 3.

Farmer Ike

Manpower

Washington—(AP)—The labor shortage crisis will come in April or May, says the new office of defense manpower in the labor department. Then industry will feel the full impact of the draft, the calling up of reserves and the normal seasonal upturn in demand for workers.

Manpower Chief Robert C. Goodwin is counting on labor and management representatives to help shift labor around so as to supply war industries. But the Taft-Hartley act may indirectly impede such a movement, at least so far as skilled American Federation of Labor craftsmen are concernd. That act prohibitd the closed shop and limited the union shop. A. F. L. men don't like to toil alongside non-union workers.

Two Plans

Washington—(AP)—The American council on education doesn't like the plan for draft deferment of college students which was recently submitted by the advisory committee of selective service. It has proposed a plan of its own to Draft Director Hershey, which would make possible the deferment of two or three times as many draftees as the other plan would.

ADD LOOKING AHEAD MS

Hershey is considering both proposals. He will make his recommendation to the president, who before spring is likely to change selective service regulations to con form to one or the other of them.

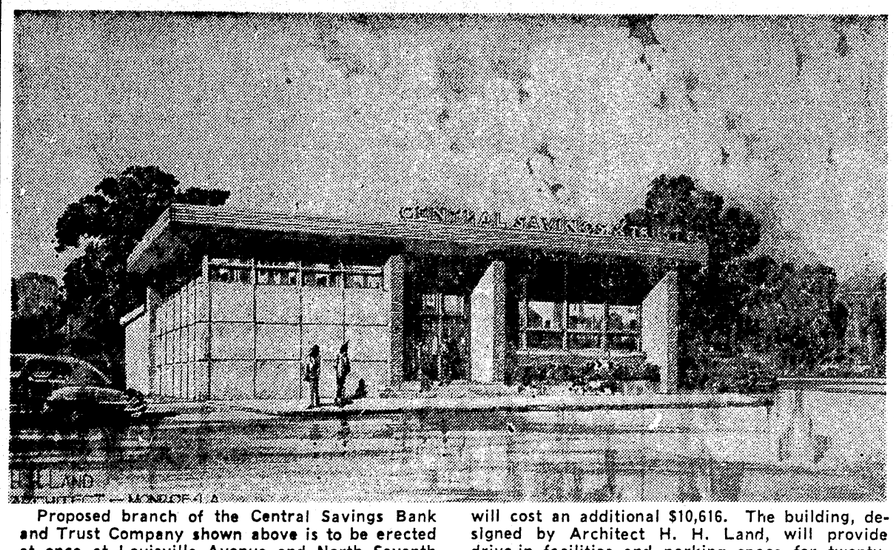

The council plan would provide for the deferment of college students on the basis of state quotas and of nationwide aptitude tests. The council estimates that between seven and ten per cent of draftees might become eligible for deferment under its plan.

Help For Miners

Washington.—(AP)—Most of the money contained in the interior department's forthcoming defense budget request is for expansion of the bureau of mines and the geological survey. The effect of the expansion in the case of the bureau of mines will be to enable it to help miners to increase production. The bureau's field offices will seek out mine operators and properties that might produce more. A minerals producer will be able to go to the bureau for inspection services and for advice on getting government loans, contracts, etc.

Cairo.—(AP)—Egypt's peasants are going to drink pure, clean water, whether they like it or not. The government has announced a five-year, $50,000,000 plan to give it to them. The peasants have objected to clean water in the past. They prefer to drink from the mud-laden, disease-filled Nile and its irragation ditches. Nile water has body to it, they say, and clear, colorless water is unhealthy and causes impotence.

NEW BANK MODERNISTIC

Proposed branch of the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company shown above is to be erected at once at Louisville Avenue and North Seventh Street. Contract was signed the past week with W. C. Salley for $87,869. Vault and furnishings will cost an additional $10,616. The building, designed by Architect H. H. Land, will provide drive-in facilities and parking space for twenty-five cars at a time.

The taxpayers would pay $200,000,000 or more for the $140,000,000 spent on bridge and highway construction Neither $200,000,000 nor $140,000,000 nor any sum is necessary via a bond issue. All that is necessary is for the legislature to set up a pay-as-you-build system such as Mississippi's under which bonds, debt and interest are outlawed, and the people get $1.00 in construction for every $1.00 spent.

(An editorial on good amendments, which The World believes should be approved, will be published Tuesday, with other editorials, including further bond issue discussion.)

Candidates Tire Of Name Calling

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)— New York City's four mayoralty candidates entered the stretch drive of their campaigns tonight with voters pictured as weary of all the name calling.

There was no sign the mud-slinging would abate in the final week although one newspaper, the World-Telegram and Sun, said a survey showed voters were sick of the "mud slinging spree."

One reason for the high voltage campaign probably is the candidacy of acting Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, 50, who is bucking the regular Democrats.

It echoes, if it doesn't imitate, the vitrolic state campaign in which U. S. Rep. Walter A. Lynch, the Democrat-Liberal candidate, seeks to defeat Republician Governor Thomas E. Dewey who is seeking a third term.

Denied the regular Democratic nomination after Mayor William O'Dwyer resigned the $40,000 - a-year job to become U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, Impellitteri announced as an independent candidate. The regular Democratic organization, known as Tammany, put up Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, 68. The Republicans named state industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi, 54, while the American Labor Party designated 49-year-old Paul Ross.

The Daily News, which is supporting Impellitteri, said today its incomplete straw poll showed the independent candidate had 54.8 per cent of the vote, Pecora 29.5, Corsi 12 and Ross 3.7 per cent.

Pecora has shrugged off the poll tally. The news offered to bet him $10.000 that its poll, when complete, would be correct. Pecora rejected the offer, saying he was not a betting man.

Since mid-September, New York streetcorners and radio stations have sizzled with a constant flow of invective and finger-pointing. Candidates have flung charges of malicious lying, bribery, toadying to gangsters, planned election day terrorism, and, even, permitting a boss bookmaker to carry on his operations from behind the bars of his jail cell.

The two Democrats, Pecora as the regular nominee, and Impellitteri as the insurgent, have waged the most raucous campaigns.

The acting mayor has accused his Democratic rival of conducting a "vicious, dirty, slimy, un-American and unethical campaign." Pecora, in slightly different words but with identical meaning, has returned the charge. Repeatedly, he has claimed that the Impellitteri campaign is partly financed by the Republicans in a sly maneuver to split the always heavy Democratic vote.

The probability of such a split and the blistering Pecora - Impellitteri exchanges have featured in Corsi's campaign.

"Impellitteri and Pecora," he said, "are proving every accusation that I have made in this campaign against each of them. What they don't prove against each other, I will."

The G. O. P. candidate calls Impellitteri the "ham mayor" and Pecora the "befuddled judge." Both, he said, are fighting for control of Tammany Hall.

Corsi also is making capital of the politically embarrassing police graft scandal which Impellitteri inherited from O'Dwyer along with his title of acting mayor.

Recently, he charged that Impellitteri was responsible for pampering convicted millionaire bookmaker Frank Erickson who is serving a sentence in Rikers Island Penitentiary. Impellitteri has denied it.

In turn, Impellitteri has accused Pecora of being a "respectable front" for a group headed by gambler Frank Costello — a charge the justice has rejected. Only the other day the acting mayor ordered a roundup of all city hoodlums because of "alarming reports" he said he had of planned terrorism on election day.

Just last Thursday, Pecora flew to Washingtoon avowedly to discuss price and rent controls with President Truman. He returned with the president's best wishes.

This brought a bitter remark from Impellitteri.

"I was the only top official in the city who didn't hide around corners when President Truman visited here in 1948," he said. "And I was the only one who actively campaigned for him."

With the campaign end in sight, the four candidates seemed to have only one thing in common: All are foreign born.

Impellitteri, Pecora and Corsi are natives of Italy. Ross was born in Kiev, Russia.

IN HOLLYWOOD WITH

JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Everyone has his own memories of Al Jolson.

Those who knew Broadway in the lush days can recall when his Wintergarden shows were the toast of the town. Others remembered when he flickered across the screen in "The Jazz Singer"—and the mammy singer became the film's first voice.

He was often in the news. Like when he popped Walter Winchell at the ringside of Hollywood Legion Stadium. It was over something the columnist was supposed to have written about Ruby Keeler, then Mrs. Jolson.

My memories of Jolson don't go back that far. I first met him at the birth of his second career—the filming of "The Jolson Story". Then half-forgotten by a large part of the public, he hoped the picture would be "A Jewish 'Going My Way.'"

"I don't know why I'm hanging around; "I'm not getting paid for it," he said. "But I'm supposed to give some pointers to a young man who's playing me. Now how can I remember? It's been a long time."

The picture grossed $8,000,000, surprising everyone—except Jolson.

He was like a new man. He had always billed himself as "the world's greatest entertainer," and he believed it. But the public's apathy to his talents in the late '30's and early '40's had hurt him. With "The Jolson Story" he was bigger than ever, and he enjoyed every minute of it.

He admitted that his greatest joy was in having his young bride realize the magic of the Jolson name.

His great, leathery voice was again one of the most highly paid in show business, but he also gave freely of it. I can recall his singing song after song at a rehearsal benefit. His rapt audience was a handful of other stars such as Dinah Shore, Betty Hutton, Bob Hope and Red Skelton.

After drawing the highest pay of any guest star in radio, he settled down to his own show, at $5,500 a week. But two years ago he gave it up, declaring radio was in a "stagnant situation." Would he try television?

"That's not for me," he replied, telling of a friend who looked like a piece of camembert cheese on TV. But he added:

"One thing is sure—I wouldn't retire. This is no town to retire in. I'd go nuts."

And he didn't retire. Supervised another successful film biography, kept making records and radio appearances, visited his office daily, and played benefits.

Then came the trip to Korea. He was proud of having been the first big name to entertain overseas in World War II and offered his services the day after the Reds crossed the 38th parallel.

"Better get Loew's Pusan ready, because here comes Jolie," he said.

Jolson always talked in a breezy, rattling style. But when I spoke to him on his return, he sounded tired. He was discouraged about the far east situation. About the GI's, he said, "they're only babies."

A week before his death, Jolson signed to star in a picture about the USO. It was a fabulous deal, one befitting "the world's greatest entertainer."

FLYING SAUCER EASY TO BUILD

Any Boy Can Make One Suitable For Soaring In Couple Of Hours

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story was submitted to the Associated Press with a note that said: "Don't think I'm nuts. I just got fed up with people reporting flying saucers. I made one. It worked fine. We let it go on Friday, on payday when Main street was crowded with shoppers. It seemed as though every telephone in town went into action.")

Lock Haven Express Staff Writer)

By Pete Stevenson

It's easy as pie to build one. It's not much harder to make it fly. There is nothing mysterious about it. Any boy who builds model planes can put a flyable saucer together in a couple of hours.

It took a little invention on the part of the "flying saucer department" of the Lock Haven, Pa. Express but on a recent afternoon a saucer flew over central Pennsylvania. It caused quite a stir and traffic was snarled on main street. Here's how it's done:

Go to a shop where model planes are sold. Buy a dozen or so four-foot lengths of quarter inch balsa wood strips. Pick up a few tubes of airplane cement. At a grocery store purchase two or three rolls of aluminum foil. Get a ball of kite string at the dime store—and a box of balloons.

Before setting to work order a tank of helium. Most wholesale supply houses carry it. Then follow these instructions and you'll have a flying saucer.

Lay out a circle of balsa strips on the carpet. Secure the ends together with string and cement. Now reinforce the circle with a couple of cross sections of balsa. Repeat the process and you have the top and bottom of your saucer.

Cover the circle frameworks with aluminum foil. Use cellophane tape to secure the seams. Then fill the balloons with helium, placing them between the two circles like the meat in a sandwich. You'll need someone to hold down the top side or it will lift to the ceiling.

Don't make the circle larger than the front door or you won't be able to get it outside. Keep the balloons inside the two circular sides by lashing the top and bottom together with string.

You are now ready to go into the flying saucer business. Get your friends to help carry the framework outside. You will find it has a strong urge to rise because of the balloons. Be sure you pick a sunny day. You want that aluminum foil to glisten. They say that's what a saucer does.

Make sure there are no trees or telephone wires nearby then let her go and it will rise into the sky. Once the homemade disc is up a hundred feet or so and moves with the wind, you can't tell the difference from a genuine article.

This should settle the flying saucer problem for all time, don't you think?

Jonesville Now Uses Dial Phones

Jonesville, La., Oct. 28.—(Special)—New dial telephones will be officially in operation in Jonesville, Harrisonburg and vicinity at noon Saturday, October 28.

Harvey Broyles, public service commissioner for north Louisiana, is scheduled to throw a switch Saturday morning shortly before noon to officially open the new system for long distance as well as local calls. Broyles has taken an active interest in the local phone system since protests were made to him more tha na year ago, principally by citizens of Harrisonburg.

The system, then operated by the LaSalle Telephone Company, consisted of antiquated equipment and the company was unable to make the large investment necessary for a dial system.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

PERSONAL TIES TO SCHOOL

School is an extension of home. Many of our homes today are very limited in scope for the experiences children require for their development.

Children need to use their hands and there is nothing for their hands to do. They need experiences with pets and there is no room for them. They need to play with toys and there is scant room or opportunity for that. They need to exercise body and mind in active fashion and the usual home cannot permit such wholesome activities.

Our homes are too crowded. Families have to live too close together to allow children space and opportunity to work and play. Grown people are tired when they finish a day's work while the children are ready to bustle about, shout and pound and disarrange orderly rooms.

Grown people have a right to peace and quiet. They must have them. But children must have space for the activity they need for their growth, the noise and disorder that accompany activity. School must take over.

Little children in the kindergarten and early grades need space indoors and out. They must have toys they can manipulate. They must have games that call for action, adjustments of mind and body, group activity. These demand room and freedom to use it.

That is why kindergarten and first-year teachers are allowing children to take their favorite toys, their pets, their chosen activities into the schoolroom. They must find in school what home can no longer supply: space and opportunity for experiences that stimulate growth and development.

A word of caution is necessary here. Schools where children share the building with older children, floor above floor, are not built for this sort of activity. Big toys like bikes, roller skates, doll houses, and the things that call for speed are out because they are hazards to safety. Only toys that can be handled easily, that will not block the free use of stairways and doors and that will not get beyond control on the playground are welcomed.

But the right ones are personal ties that bind the child to home and school and make both places better backgrounds for him. Mothers can keep an eye on what goes to school and the teacher will see that they are rightly used and promptly sent home again in good shape.

This means a bit more work, a bit more responsibility for the teacher. But it also means growth for children, and a warmer feeling for school and teacher.

Faulty eating habits affect a child's health and disposition. Dr. Patri explains in his booklet No. 303, "Feeding Children," and tells how to encourage good cating habits.

very clearly that no nation has ever survived an overpowering national debt, a continuously unbalanced national budget, and an irredeemable paper currency without eventually going bankrupt. And we can be quite sure that when our economy is destroyed in this nation, our form of government will go along with it.

No one can tell, of course, just when the economic bulwarks of this nation will begin to crumble and disintegrate. No one ever knows what straw will break the camel's back! The signs of crumbling are here. We are seeing signs of a flight from the dollar. Government bonds are being cashed in at a greater rate than they are being bought by individual investors. Gold is now flowing out of the United States at the rate of two billion dollars a year. The favorable balance of trade with foreign nations has now been wiped out.

FOUR: Now we are beginning to undermine the main support that has preserved our economy during these recent years — the incentive to produce. In the present time of stress and strain, when production for a strong economy is needed more than ever, we are killing the incentive to produce with higher taxation and with governmental controls of materials and prices.

Under our present policies in this country, we are facing a greatly increased national budget and a steadily increasing national debt. We are facing much higher taxes and we are facing price and wage controls. We are facing a growing lack of confidence in our currency. What we must realize is that under these policies the very best we can expect is a decidedly lower standard of living. What we must also realize is the distinct possibility that our nation can be destroyed by such policies just as surely as by defeat by an outside power. In fact, we may reach the time more quickly than we think when the problem of saving ourselves will be a much more pressing one than that of saving the world.

West Monroe Club For Bond Issue

The West Monroe Kiwanis club, by unanimous action, Thursday noon approved the issuance of bonds to the amount of $140,000,000 as provided in an amendment to the state's constitution to be passed upon at the polls Nov. 7.

Also adopted, first by the board of directors and then by the club membership, were resolutions endorsing: (1) The West Monroe constitutional amendment, which, if adopted, would provide for better drainage in West Monroe; (2) The Monroe amendment, which would exempt Monroe home owners from the payment of school taxes up to an assessed valuation of $2000; and (3) The establishment of a new hospital as proposed by the Baptists of Ouachita parish, and requesting that the institution be located in West Monroe.

Members of the Ouachita parish police jury were special guests of the Kiwanis club at the luncheon, and the program was in charge of Kiwanian Tom Hicks, one of the two Ward Five jurors. Parish Engineer McBride, introduced by Mr. Hicks, gave an account of the blacktopping program in the parish and related how each ward is given a proportionate amount of the paving in accordance with their needs.

bureaucrats and a perfume and cosmetic industry for their wives.

The country I'm referring to, of course, is Soviet Russia and the above inequitities came about soon after the Stakhanovite piecework system was introduced in 1935. Yes, cockeyed as it may seem, only 15 years after the revolution there was a greater gap between top and bottom wage levels in Communist Russia than there had ever been in capitalist America.

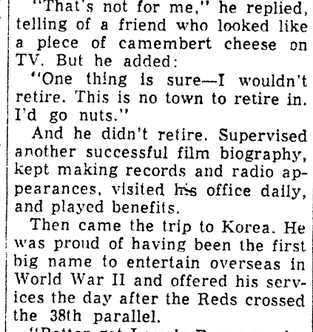

Am I setting forth all these grim statistics to prove the overworked cliche that you can't change human nature? Not at all—I've seen human nature overhauled more than once in the last half century. However, if you'll pardon the presumption, I am trying to point out to Your Excellency that no matter how you juggle human nature you can't eliminate it entirely.

Looking Ahead

IN WASHINGTON

By the Associated Press

Washington—The United States is thinking about helping Turkey to get her army in top-notch condition within a year, instead of the four or five years contemplated under the present program.

The Pentagon has been told that the Turkish army could become a strong flank anchor for the western powers' defense line in case Russia starts war. It could immobilize a substantial part of Soviet forces.

But at present the Turks have a hodge-podge of weapons and equipment of Czech and other origin. These are gradually being replaced by U. S. materiel. The soldiers also would require a lot more intensive training.

Puzzled

Washington—(AP)—Politicians are puzzled by President Truman's insistence on congressional action this year on statehood for Hawaii and Alaska. Passed by the house, the statehood bills face a lot of controversy in the senate. In fact, they could generate a filibuster by southerners who don't want the size of the senate increased by four members who almost certainly would vote for civil rights proposals. The politicians don't think the president has much to gain politically by pushing the statehood bills at this time.

Strangers Arriving

Washington—(AP)—A dozen new faces could show up in congress when it convenes next month. Six new members are assured in the house. Four new senators are assured, and this would be increased to six if two incumbents, now serving by appointment, were defeated. They are Senators Benton (D.-Conn.) and Dworshak (R.-Idaho).

The Nov. 7 election will fill six vacancies in the house. Winners in the contest for these seats will be entitled to take office as soon as congress reconvenes.

In the senate four unexpired terms are being filled—in Rhode Island, Connecticut, North Carolina and Idaho. All of these seats are being held by appointees, including Benton and Dworshak; and they will lose office unless elected Nov. 7. The Rhode Island and North Carolina appointees are not candidates in the election.

Whoever is elected to the vacant senate seats for Kentucky and Kansas can take office to fill out the remaining month or more of the terms of Alben W. Barkley, who resigned to become vice-president, and Clyde Reed, who died.

All other incumbent senators, since they are not appointees, will be entitled to their seats as lame ducks if they are defeated. And all defeated representatives also will hold office until the 82nd congress opens on Jan. 3.

Farmer Ike

Manpower

Washington—(AP)—The labor shortage crisis will come in April or May, says the new office of defense manpower in the labor department. Then industry will feel the full impact of the draft, the calling up of reserves and the normal seasonal upturn in demand for workers.

Manpower Chief Robert C. Goodwin is counting on labor and management representatives to help shift labor around so as to supply war industries. But the Taft-Hartley act may indirectly impede such a movement, at least so far as skilled American Federation of Labor craftsmen are concernd. That act prohibitd the closed shop and limited the union shop. A. F. L. men don't like to toil alongside non-union workers.

Two Plans

Washington—(AP)—The American council on education doesn't like the plan for draft deferment of college students which was recently submitted by the advisory committee of selective service. It has proposed a plan of its own to Draft Director Hershey, which would make possible the deferment of two or three times as many draftees as the other plan would.

ADD LOOKING AHEAD MS

Hershey is considering both proposals. He will make his recommendation to the president, who before spring is likely to change selective service regulations to con form to one or the other of them.

The council plan would provide for the deferment of college students on the basis of state quotas and of nationwide aptitude tests. The council estimates that between seven and ten per cent of draftees might become eligible for deferment under its plan.

Help For Miners

Washington—(AP)—Most of the money contained in the interior department's forthcoming defense budget request is for expansion of the bureau of mines and the geological survey. The effect of the expansion in the case of the bureau of mines will be to enable it to help miners to increase production. The bureau's field offices will seek out mine operators and properties that might produce more. A minerals producer will be able to go to the bureau for inspection services and for advice on getting government loans, contracts, etc.

Cairo.—(AP)—Egypt's peasants are going to drink pure, clean water, whether they like it or not. The government has announced a five-year, $50,000,000 plan to give it to them. The peasants have objected to clean water in the past. They prefer to drink from the mud-laden, disease-filled Nile and its irragation ditches. Nile water has body to it, they say, and clear, colorless water is unhealthy and causes impotence.

very clearly that no nation has ever survived an overpowering national debt, a continuously unbalanced national budget, and an irredeemable paper currency without eventually going bankrupt. And we can be quite sure that when our economy is destroyed in this nation, our form of government will go along with it.

No one can tell, of course, just when the economic bulwarks of this nation will begin to crumble and disintegrate. No one ever knows what straw will break the camel's back! The signs of crumbling are here. We are seeing signs of a flight from the dollar. Government bonds are being cashed in at a greater rate than they are being bought by individual investors. Gold is now flowing out of the United States at the rate of two billion dollars a year. The favorable balance of trade with foreign nations has now been wiped out.

FOUR: Now we are beginning to undermine the main support that has preserved our economy during these recent years — the incentive to produce. In the present time of stress and strain, when production for a strong economy is needed more than ever, we are killing the incentive to produce with higher taxation and with governmental controls of materials and prices.

Under our present policies in this country, we are facing a greatly increased national budget and a steadily increasing national debt. We are facing much higher taxes and we are facing price and wage controls. We are facing a growing lack of confidence in our currency. What we must realize is that under these policies the very best we can expect is a decidedly lower standard of living. What we must also realize is the distinct possibility that our nation can be destroyed by such policies just as surely as by defeat by an outside power. In fact, we may reach the time more quickly than we think when the problem of saving ourselves will be a much more pressing one than that of saving the world.

The country I'm referring to, of course, is Soviet Russia and the above inequitities came about soon after the Stakhanovite piecework system was introduced in 1935. Yes, cockeyed as it may seem, only 15 years after the revolution there was a greater gap between top and bottom wage levels in Communist Russia than there had ever been in capitalist America.

Am I setting forth all these grim statistics to prove the overworked cliche that you can't change human nature? Not at all—I've seen human nature overhauled more than once in the last half century. However, if you'll pardon the presumption, I am trying to point out to Your Excellency that no matter how you juggle human nature you can't eliminate it entirely.

Sincerely,
Billy Kose

West Monroe Club For Bond Issue

The West Monroe Kiwanis club, by unanimous action, Thursday noon approved the issuance of bonds to the amount of $140,000,000 as provided in an amendment to the state's constitution to be passed upon at the polls Nov. 7.

Also adopted, first by the board of directors and then by the club membership, were resolutions endorsing: (1) The West Monroe constitutional amendment, which, if adopted, would provide for better drainage in West Monroe; (2) The Monroe amendment, which would exempt Monroe home owners from the payment of school taxes up to an assessed valuation of $2000; and (3) The establishment of a new hospital as proposed by the Baptists of Ouachita parish, and requesting that the institution be located in West Monroe.

Members of the Ouachita parish police jury were special guests of the Kiwanis club at the luncheon, and the program was in charge of Kiwanian Tom Hicks, one of the two Ward Five jurors. Parish Engineer McBride, introduced by Mr. Hicks, gave an account of the blacktopping program in the parish and related how each ward is given a proportionate amount of the paving in accordance with their needs.

NEW BANK MODERNISTIC

Salley for $87,869. Vault and furnishings will cost an additional $10,616. The building, designed by Architect H. H. Land, will provide drive-in facilities and parking space for twenty-five cars at a time.

cent for any highway anywhere in Louisiana are false. (This can be verified by writing Wade O. Martin, Jr., secretary of state, Baton Rouge, for a copy of the amendment and reading it for yourself.)

The taxpayers would pay $200,000,000 or more for the $140,000,000 spent on bridge and highway construction Neither $200,000,000 nor $140,000,000 nor any sum is necessary via a bond issue. All that is necessary is for the legislature to set up a pay-as-you-build system such as Mississippi's under which bonds, debt and interest are outlawed, and the people get $1.00 in construction for every $1.00 spent.

(An editorial on good amendments, which The World believes should be approved, will be published Tuesday, with other editorials, including further bond issue discussion.)

Candidates Tire Of Name Calling

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)— New York City's four mayoralty candidates entered the stretch drive of their campaigns tonight with voters pictured as weary of all the name calling.

There was no sign the mud-slinging would abate in the final week although one newspaper, the World-Telegram and Sun, said a survey showed voters were sick of the "mud slinging spree."

One reason for the high voltage campaign probably is the candidacy of acting Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, 50, who is bucking the regular Democrats.

It echoes, if it doesn't imitate, the vitrolic state campaign in which U. S. Rep. Walter A. Lynch, the Democrat-Liberal candidate, seeks to defeat Republician Governor Thomas E. Dewey who is seeking a third term.

Denied the regular Democratic nomination after Mayor William O'Dwyer resigned the $40,000 - a-year job to become U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, Impellitteri announced as an independent candidate. The regular Democratic organization, known as Tammany, put up Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, 68. The Republicans named state industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi, 54, while the American Labor Party designated 49-year-old Paul Ross.

The Daily News, which is supporting Impellitteri, said today its incomplete straw poll showed the independent candidate had 54.8 per cent of the vote, Pecora 29.5, Corsi 12 and Ross 3.7 per cent.

Pecora has shrugged off the poll tally. The news offered to bet him $10,000 that its poll, when complete, would be correct. Pecora rejected the offer, saying he was not a betting man.

Since mid-September, New York streetcorners and radio stations have sizzled with a constant flow of invective and finger-pointing. Candidates have flung charges of malicious lying, bribery, toadying to gangsters, planned election day terrorism, and, even, permitting a boss bookmaker to carry on his operations from behind the bars of his jail cell.

The two Democrats, Pecora as the regular nominee, and Impellitteri as the insurgent, have waged the most raucous campaigns.

The acting mayor has accused his Democratic rival of conducting a "vicious, dirty, slimy, un-American and unethical campaign." Pecora, in slightly different words but with identical meaning, has returned the charge. Repeatedly, he has claimed that the Impellitteri campaign is partly financed by the Republicans in a sly maneuver to split the always heavy Democratic vote.

The probability of such a split and the blistering Pecora - Impellitteri exchanges have featured in Corsi's campaign.

"Impellitteri and Pecora," he said, "are proving every accusation that I have made in this campaign against each of them. What they don't prove against each other, I will."

The G. O. P. candidate calls Impellitteri the "ham mayor" and Pecora the "befuddled judge." Both, he said, are fighting for control of Tammany Hall.

Corsi also is making capital of the politically embarrassing police graft scandal which Impellitteri inherited from O'Dwyer along with his title of acting mayor.

Recently, he charged that Impellitteri was responsible for pampering convicted millionaire bookmaker Frank Erickson who is serving a sentence in Rikers Island Penitentiary. Impellitteri has denied it.

In turn, Impellitteri has accused Pecora of being a "respectable front" for a group headed by gambler Frank Costello — a charge the justice has rejected. Only the other day the acting mayor ordered a roundup of all city hoodlums because of "alarming reports" he said he had of planned terrorism on election day.

Just last Thursday, Pecora flew to Washingtoon avowedly to discuss price and rent controls with President Truman. He returned with the president's best wishes.

This brought a bitter remark from Impellitteri.

"I was the only top official in the city who didn't hide around corners when President Truman visited here in 1948," he said. "And I was the only one who actively campaigned for him."

With the campaign end in sight, the four candidates seemed to have only one thing in common: All are foreign born.

Impellitteri, Pecora and Corsi are natives of Italy. Ross was born in Kiev, Russia.

IN HOLLYWOOD WITH

JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Everyone has his own memories of Al Jolson.

Those who knew Broadway in the lush days can recall when his Wintergarden shows were the toast of the town. Others remembered when he flickered across the screen in "The Jazz Singer"—and the mammy singer became the film's first voice.

He was often in the news. Like when he popped Walter Winchell at the ringside of Hollywood Legion Stadium. It was over something the columnist was supposed to have written about Ruby Keeler, then Mrs. Jolson.

My memories of Jolson don't go back that far. I first met him at the birth of his second career—the filming of "The Jolson Story". Then half-forgotten by a large part of the public, he hoped the picture would be "A Jewish 'Going My Way.'"

"I don't know why I'm hanging around; "I'm not getting paid for it," he said. "But I'm supposed to give some pointers to a young man who's playing me. Now how can I remember? It's been a long time."

The picture grossed $8,000,000, surprising everyone—except Jolson.

He was like a new man. He had always billed himself as "the world's greatest entertainer," and he believed it. But the public's apathy to his talents in the late '30's and early '40's had hurt him. With "The Jolson Story" he was bigger than ever, and he enjoyed every minute of it.

He admitted that his greatest joy was in having his young bride realize the magic of the Jolson name.

His great, leathery voice was again one of the most highly paid in show business, but he also gave freely of it. I can recall his singing song after song at a rehearsal benefit. His rapt audience was a handful of other stars, such as Dinah Shore, Betty Hutton, Bob Hope and Red Skelton.

After drawing the highest pay of any guest star in radio, he settled down to his own show, at $5,500 a week. But two years ago he gave it up, declaring radio was in a "stagnant situation." Would he try television?

"That's not for me," he replied, telling of a friend who looked like a piece of camembert cheese on TV. But he added:

"One thing is sure—I wouldn't retire. This is no town to retire in. I'd go nuts."

And he didn't retire. Supervised another successful film biography, kept making records and radio appearances, visited his office daily, and played benefits.

Then came the trip to Korea. He was proud of having been the first big name to entertain overseas in World War II and offered his services the day after the Reds crossed the 38th parallel.

"Better get Loew's Pusan ready, because here comes Jolie," he said.

Jolson always talked in a breezy, rattling style. But when I spoke to him on his return, he sounded tired. He was discouraged about the far east situation. About the GI's, he said, "they're only babies."

A week before his death, Jolson signed to star in a picture about the USO. It was a fabulous deal, one befitting "the world's greatest entertainer."

FLYING SAUCER EASY TO BUILD

Any Boy Can Make One Suitable For Soaring In Couple Of Hours

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story was submitted to the Associated Press with a note that said: "Don't think I'm nuts. I just got fed up with people reporting flying saucers. I made one. It worked fine. We let it go on Friday, on payday when Main street was crowded with shoppers. It seemed as though every telephone in town went into action.") (Lock Haven Express Staff Writer)

By Pete Stevenson

It's easy as pie to build one. It's not much harder to make it fly. There is nothing mysterious about it. Any boy who builds model planes can put a flyable saucer together in a couple of hours.

It took a little invention on the part of the "flying saucer department" of the Lock Haven, Pa. Express but on a recent afternoon a saucer flew over central Pennsylvania. It caused quite a stir and traffic was snarled on main street. Here's how it's done:

Go to a shop where model planes are sold. Buy a dozen or so four-foot lengths of quarter inch balsa wood strips. Pick up a few tubes of airplane cement. At a grocery store purchase two or three rolls of aluminum foil. Get a ball of kite string at the dime store—and a box of balloons.

Before setting to work order a tank of helium. Most wholesale supply houses carry it. Then follow these instructions and you'll have a flying saucer.

Lay out a circle of balsa strips on the carpet. Secure the ends together with string and cement. Now reinforce the circle with a couple of cross sections of balsa. Repeat the process and you have the top and bottom of your saucer.

Cover the circle frameworks with aluminum foil. Use cellophane tape to secure the seams. Then fill the balloons with helium, placing them between the two circles like the meat in a sandwich. You'll need someone to hold down the top side or it will lift to the ceiling.

Don't make the circle larger than the front door or you won't be able to get it outside. Keep the balloons inside the two circular sides by lashing the top and bottom together with string.

You are now ready to go into the flying saucer business. Get your friends to help carry the framework outside. You will find it has a strong urge to rise because of the balloons. Be sure you pick a sunny day. You want that aluminum foil to glisten. They say that's what a saucer does.

Make sure there are no trees or telephone wires nearby then let her go and it will rise into the sky. Once the homemade disc is up a hundred feet or so and moves with the wind, you can't tell the difference from a genuine article.

This should settle the flying saucer problem for all time, don't you think?

Jonesville Now Uses Dial Phones

Jonesville, La., Oct. 28.—(Special)—New dial telephones will be officially in operation in Jonesville, Harrisonburg and vicinity at noon Saturday, October 28.

Harvey Broyles, public service commissioner for north Louisiana, is scheduled to throw a switch Saturday morning shortly before noon to ofiicially open the new system for long distance as well as local calls. Broyles has taken an active interest in the local phone system since protests were made to him more tha na year ago, principally by citizens of Harrisonburg.

The system, then operated by the LaSalle Telephone Company, consisted of antiquated equipment and the company was unable to make the large investment necessary for a dial system.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

PERSONAL TIES TO SCHOOL

School is an extension of home. Many of our homes today are very limited in scope for the experiences children require for their development.

Children need to use their hands and there is nothing for their hands to do. They need experiences with pets and there is no room for them. They need to play with toys and there is scant room or opportunity for that. They need to exercise body and mind in active fashion and the usual home cannot permit such wholesome activities.

Our homes are too crowded. Families have to live too close together to allow children space and opportunity to work and play. Grown people are tired when they finish a day's work while the children are ready to bustle about, shout and pound and disarrange orderly rooms.

Grown people have a right to peace and quiet. They must have them. But children must have space for the activity they need for their growth, the noise and disorder that accompany activity. School must take over.

Little children in the kindergarten and early grades need space indoors and out. They must have toys they can manipulate. They must have games that call for action, adjustments of mind and body, group activity. These demand room and freedom to use it.

That is why kindergarten and first-year teachers are allowing children to take their favorite toys, their pets, their chosen activities into the schoolroom. They must find in school what home can no longer supply: space and opportunity for experiences that stimulate growth and development.

A word of caution is necessary here. Schools where children share the building with older children, floor above floor, are not built for this sort of activity. Big toys like bikes, roller skates, doll houses, and the things that call for speed are out because they are hazards to safety. Only toys that can be handled easily, that will not block the free use of stairways and doors and that will not get beyond control on the playground are welcomed.

But the right ones are personal ties that bind the child to home and school and make both places better backgrounds for him. Mothers can keep an eye on what goes to school and the teacher will see that they are rightly used and promptly sent home again in good shape.

This means a bit more work, a bit more responsibility for the teacher. But it also means growth for children, and a warmer feeling for school and teacher.

Candidates Take Back Seat In Election In Louisiana

Proposal For 24 Amendments To Constitution Hold Attention

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Candidates take a back seat to issues in Louisiana's Nov. 7 general election when 24 proposals, including one to sell $140,000,000 in road bonds, face a test at the polls.

There are candidates, of course, for such offices as U. S. senate and house, state supreme court and courts of appeal, public service commission and state board of education. But only one Democratic nominee for these offices has opposition.

He is U. S. Sen. Russell B. Long, opposed for re-election by Republican Charles S. Gerth of New Orleans. The term of Louisiana's other U. S. senator, Allen Ellender of Houma, does not expire until 1954.

The $140,000,000 bond issue—to build roads and bridges—will appear as proposition No. 11 among 24 proposed amendments to the state constitution. All 24 are listed numerically on the ballot by the secretary of state.

The highway bonds would be issued against proceeds from six cents of the present nine cent state gasoline tax, now yielding more than $42,000,000 a year. The proceeds would be used like this:

$45,000,000 for a second bridge over the Mississippi river at New Orleans and a tunnel under the industrial canal in that city. Any surplus from this allotment would go toward construction of a four-lane highway connecting west bank terminals of New Orleans' old and new bridges.

$75,000,000 for main trunk highways, without specific designation of inivdidual roads to be improved.

$20,000,000 for secondary roads and bridges.

Supporters of this proposal, like Gov. Earl K. Long, argue that Louisiana's road system cannot be improved through "nickel and dime" financing. Opponents say the department of highways has revenues enough for reconstruction without borrowing, expressing doubt also that materials will be available for big civilian projects.

The 24 proposed constitutional amendments, in the order in which they will appear on the Nov. 7 ballot, would:

Number one—exclude local government bonds payable solely from revenue from publicly-owned utilities from the present debt limit of 10 per cent of assessed valuation. In other words, a district whose total assessment is $10,000,000 may not now owe more than $1,000,000. The change would lift this ceiling if, say, the district owned a waterworks whose revenues could support more debt or a bond issue.

Number two—authorize local subdivisions of government to levy taxes for housing and operating public health units and incinerators.

Number three—give the board of commissioners of Ouachita drainage district No. 1 the authority to issue up to $150,000 in bonds for pumping facilities, without an election.

Number four—extend homestead taxes levied by the city of Monroe and its school board.

Number five—empower the governor to fill, by appointment, vacancies in the state board of education.

Number six—refund the state gasoline tax on gasoline used as airplane fuel.

Number seven—create a "home rule" charter for New Orleans, with an election in November 1952 to decide what form of government the people here want.

Number eight—provide for construction of a Lake Pontchartrain causeway and a Pontchartrain lakeshore highway. A $30,000,000 bond issue, against tolls and license taxes in surrounding parishes, would bear the causeway cost. A $15,000,000 bond issue would support the highway construction.

Number nine—authorize the Lake Charles commission council to make improvements in that city's waterfront.

Number 10—refund the state gasoline tax on gasoline used as fuel in boats which transport school children.

Number 14—permit creation of a Bayou LaFourche fresh water district in Ascension, Assumption and LaFourche parishes, with the usual power to impose taxes and also to charge for water service.

Number 15—authorize a special one mill tax for two years in Jefferson parish to purchase voting machines.

Number 16—liberalize the state's World War II veterans bonus law by eliminating a 16-year-old limit on the age of children eligible for a $1000 bonus as survivors of war dead. It would also drop a requirement that surviving parents must show proof of dependency to receive the $1000 bonus.

Number 17—increase the property tax a city may charge from seven mills to 12 mills, and from 10 to 15 mills in cities which operate their own public schools. New Orleans is excepted from its provisions.

Number 18—split the 24th judicial district into two parts, with the new 24th to consist only of Jefferson parish, while St. Charles and St. John the Baptist would comprise a 29th district.

Number 19—create a Sabine river authority, with power to issue $25,000,000 in bonds. These bonds would not be backed by the state's full credit, but would be secured only by revenues arising from development of the Sabine watershed.

Number 20—give constitutional status to the Louisiana liquefied petroleum gas commission, which makes safety regulations for bottled gas fuels. It would enlarge the commission and provide for court enforcement of its orders.

Number 21—end terms of city judges, Baton Rouge excepted, on Dec. 31 instead of Dec. 1.

Number 22—allow public improvement districts in Jefferson parish to issue bonds for levee systems, pumps, soil erosion work and other projects.

Number 23—allow the state to sell mineral rights to lands sold after being taken over for nonpayment of taxes, with the rate to be five per cent of the price paid for the real estate.

Number 24—permit municipalities to lease hospitals, clinics and similar facilities to individuals or associations, subject to a taxpayers' election.

CHICAGO NAMED CRIME CENTER

Senate Crime Counsel Calls Windy City Pivot Of Organized Crime

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Rudolph Halley, counsel for the senate crime investigating committee, said today that "Chicago seems to be the nerve center of nationwide organized crime syndicates."

Halley told a reporter that confidential information to support this was examined here yesterday at a closed conference between members of the senate committee and a special crime commission of the American Bar Association.

Halley said that the grand jury system in Cook County, where Chicago is located, tends to "hamper investigations of criminal syndicates."

He explained that Illinois law limits a grand jury panel to 30 days and said such a brief time of service by grand jurors makes it difficult to investigate the complex and secretive crime organizations.

"Our discussions did not indicate that Chicago is a crime-ridden city," Halley added, "it probably is no worse than many other cities except that a number of nationwide crime syndicates are using it for a crime center."

The committee counsel said the discussions were not intended to reflect upon Chicago officials.

Halley said agents and investigators for the senate group, headed by Senator Fefauver (Dem.-Tenn.) still are running down numerous tips and other information in Chicago. Committee hearings on crime conditions previously were held there.

Halley said mention of Chicago came during the closed-door discussion between the bar association crime commission and members of the senate committee.

He said he could not discuss other details but conceded that there had been some discussion of the Mafia, secret organization said to include numerous big time criminals.

Robert P. Patterson, former secretary of war and chairman of the bar crime commission, told reporters yesterday that additional federal legislation probably is needed to curb interstate criminal operations.

BROTHER, SISTER REUNITED

After a lapse of over 50 years, Claude Williams, Atlanta, Ga., and his sister, Mrs. Myrtle Ward, 211 South Fourth Street, Monroe were reunited the past week at the Ward home. They had drifted apart from their Georgia home and the sister, Myrtle, had married after living in Cotton Valley in her earlier life. Mr. Williams got trace of her only recently through a letter to the postmaster of Cotton Valley. The Monroe address was obtained and Mr. Williams quite joyously came from his Atlanta home to meet his sister once more after a half century lapse. New Schedule Set For Sales Training Classes

The new schedule of classes in sales training classes for the coming week was announced Saturday by Mrs. Elizabeth Hickerson, instructor in the courses which have been made available to Twin Cities sales workers by the State Department of Education through the cooperation of the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Selling Today," one of the most popular and well-attended courses in the series, will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. in the Virginia hotel.

A course dealing with the junior department store and variety store will be held daily in the employees lounge of the Monroe Morgan and Lindsey store from 10 to 11 a.m.

"Selling Appliances," another of the courses in high demand, will meet in the Virginia hotel from 3 to 4 p.m.

There will also be an organizational meeting for supervisors and department heads in the Maple Room of the Virginia at 4:30 tomorrow, at which time the members of the class will select an appropriate and convenient time for their managerial class.

Young Men Given Chance To Earn While Serving

Young men between the ages of 17 and 35 were given another opportunity this week to postpone their draft induction and earn extra pay in civilian life when the Louisiana National Guard opened a campaign to recruit as many members of the guard as possible during the period of mibilization and emergency.

It is hoped that the guard can add a total of 1800 officers and men to its present complement.

Young men who have already received notice to report for induction may now sign up in the guard and have the induction postponed so long as they are members of the guard in good standing.

In authorizing the expanded and liberalized enlistment program last week, Brig. Gen. Raymond F. Hufft, adjutant general of the state, said, "Young men who enlist in the guard today have the opportunity of serving their country at home, a choice of training under combat-tested leaders, valuable technical instruction, full credit for future retirement pay and a full day's pay for each two hour period."

All young men, including those who have already received notice to report for induction, were urged to contact their guard headquarters. In Monroe, guard officials may be reached by calling 2869 or going to the armory on South Grand street.

In Ruston and Bastrop, representatives of the state group may be contacted at the armories in the respective city parks.

Truck Driver To Rejoin Family Following Release

Elkhart, Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP)—A Philadelphia, truck driver looked forward to rejoining his family tonight after being released from jail, where he had been held for not paying a $1,870 overloading fine.

Superior Court Judge William E. Wider released Frank Di Donatis, 26, on his own recognizance a short time after Governor Henry F. Schricker had recommended that Di Donatis be held and criticized his employer.

Schricker charged that the Aiella trucking company of Philadelphia was "playing on the sympathy of the governor" in an effort to avoid payment of the fine.

Di Donatis was arrested near Elkhart Oct. 20 on a charge of driving an overloaded truck on Indiana highways. He pleaded guilty and Judge Wider fined him 10 cents for each pound of the overload—18,700 pounds.

Called into court again today, Di Donatis told the judge that he 'drove an overloaded truck and I can't see any reason for changing my plea."

After Judge Wider explained that a jury could reduce the amount of the fine, but a judge can not, Di Donatis reluctantly changed his plea. No date was set for the trial.

After the hearing, the judge disclosed that he had sent a letter to the state attorney general's office at Indianapolis suggesting that the Aiello trucking company "be stopped by the public service commission from operating under their permit." He also said that "if there is any fair practices act affecting labor, they (the company) certainly violated that act too."

The judge also recommended that Indiana's truck weight law be revised but he did not amplify that statement. He did make it clear in court, however, that he considered it unfair to penalize the driver if the company is to blame. He did not say the Aiello company was at fault.

Governor Schricker had said at Indianapolis before the hearing that as far as he was concerned "Di Donatis will stay in jail until the fine has been paid."

He left Indianapolis before hearing about Di Donatis' release and could not be reached for comment.

He had said the trucking company "obviously knew its truck was overweight when it rolled into Indiana.

CHICAGO NAMED CRIME CENTER

Senate Crime Counsel Calls Windy City Pivot Of Organized Crime

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Rudolph Halley, counsel for the senate crime investigating committee, said today that "Chicago seems to be the nerve center of nationwide organized crime syndicates."

Halley told a reporter that confidential information to support this was examined here yesterday at a closed conference between members of the senate committee and a special crime commission of the American Bar Association.

Halley said that the grand jury system in Cook County, where Chicago is located, tends to "hamper investigations of criminal syndicates."

He explained that Illinois law limits a grand jury panel to 30 days and said such a brief time of service by grand jurors makes it difficult to investigate the complex and secretive crime organizations.

"Our discussions did not indicate that Chicago is a crime-ridden city," Halley added, "it probably is no worse than many other cities except that a number of nationwide crime syndicates are using it for a crime center."

The committee counsel said the discussions were not intended to reflect upon Chicago officials.

Halley said agents and investigators for the senate group, headed by Senator Fefauver (Dem.-Tenn.) still are running down numerous tips and other information in Chicago. Committee hearings on crime conditions previously were held there.

Halley said mention of Chicago came during the closed-door discussion between the bar association crime commission and members of the senate committee.

He said he could not discuss other details but conceded that there had been some discussion of the Mafia, secret organization said to include numerous big time criminals.

Robert P. Patterson, former secretary of war and chairman of the bar crime commission, told reporters yesterday that additional federal legislation probably is needed to curb interstate criminal operations.

BROTHER, SISTER REUNITED

After a lapse of over 50 years, Claude Williams, Atlanta, Ga., and his sister, Mrs. Myrtle Ward, 211 South Fourth Street, Monroe were reunited the past week at the Ward home. They had drifted apart from their Georgia home and the sister, Myrtle, had married after living in Cotton Valley in her earlier life. Mr. Williams got trace of her only recently through a letter to the postmaster of Cotton Valley. The Monroe address was obtained and Mr. Williams quite joyously came from his Atlanta home to meet his sister once more after a half century lapse. New Schedule Set For Sales Training Classes

The new schedule of classes in sales training classes for the coming week was announced Saturday by Mrs. Elizabeth Hickerson, instructor in the courses which have been made available to Twin Cities sales workers by the State Department of Education through the cooperation of the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Selling Today," one of the most popular and well-attended courses in the series, will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. in the Virginia hotel.

A course dealing with the junior department store and variety store will be held daily in the employees lounge of the Monroe Morgan and Lindsey store from 10 to 11 a.m.

"Selling Appliances," another of the courses in high demand, will meet in the Virginia hotel from 3 to 4 p.m.

There will also be an organizational meeting for supervisors and department heads in the Maple Room of the Virginia at 4:30 tomorrow, at which time the members of the class will select an appropriate and convenient time for their managerial class.

Young Men Given Chance To Earn While Serving

Young men between the ages of 17 and 35 were given another opportunity this week to postpone their draft induction and earn extra pay in civilian life when the Louisiana National Guard opened a campaign to recruit as many members of the guard as possible during the period of mibilization and emergency.

It is hoped that the guard can add a total of 1800 officers and men to its present complement.

Young men who have already received notice to report for induction may now sign up in the guard and have the induction postponed so long as they are members of the guard in good standing.

In authorizing the expanded and liberalized enlistment program last week, Brig. Gen. Raymond F. Hufft, adjutant general of the state, said, "Young men who enlist in the guard today have the opportunity of serving their country at home, a choice of training under combat-tested leaders, valuable technical instruction, full credit for future retirement pay and a full day's pay for each two hour period."

All young men, including those who have already received notice to report for induction, were urged to contact their guard headquarters. In Monroe, guard officials may be reached by calling 2869 or going to the armory on South Grand street.

In Ruston and Bastrop, representatives of the state group may be contacted at the armories in the respective city parks.

Truck Driver To Rejoin Family Following Release

Elkhart Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP)—A Philadelphia truck driver looked forward to rejoining his family tonight after being released from jail, where he had been held for not paying a $1,870 overloading fine.

Superior Court Judge William E. Wider released Frank Di Donatis, 26, on his own recognizance a short time after Governor Henry F. Schricker had recommended that Di Donatis be held and criticized his employer.

Schricker charged that the Aiella trucking company of Philadelphia was "playing on the sympathy of the governor" in an effort to avoid payment of the fine.

Di Donatis was arrested near Elkhart Oct. 20 on a charge of driving an overloaded truck on Indiana highways. He pleaded guilty and Judge Wider fined him 10 cents for each pound of the overload—18,700 pounds.

Called into court again today, Di Donatis told the judge that he 'drove an overloaded truck and I can't see any reason for changing my plea."

After Judge Wider explained that a jury could reduce the amount of the fine, but a judge can not, Di Donatis reluctantly changed his plea. No date was set for the trial.

After the hearing, the judge disclosed that he had sent a letter to the state attorney general's office at Indianapolis suggesting that the Aiello trucking company "be stopped by the public service commission from operating under their permit." He also said that "if there is any fair practices act affecting labor, they (the company) certainly violated that act too."

The judge also recommended that Indiana's truck weight law be revised but he did not amplify that statement. He did make it clear in court, however, that he considered it unfair to penalize the driver if the company is to blame. He did not say the Aiello company was at fault.

Governor Schricker had said at Indianapolis before the hearing that as far as he was concerned "Di Donatis will stay in jail until the fine has been paid."

He left Indianapolis before hearing about Di Donatis' release and could not be reached for comment.

He had said the trucking company "obviously knew its truck was overweight when it rolled into Indiana.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

"Boy Meets Girl" that conglomeration of controlled instanity, the greatest farce ever written about the celluloid factory in its Fantasy-by-the-Sea, has been held over for an additional run next week.

Litle Theatre goers who were unable to obtain seats during its Tuesday through Saturday regular run of this past week will not be left in the cold. "Boy Meets "Girl" goes on in its rollicking, boisterous way before the foot-light again Monday evening. The boxoffice of Little Theatre will be open on Sunday and Monday afternoons from the regulars hours of 1 p. m. until 7 p.m. call 2976 for your reservation to Little Theatre's version of the great American fairy tale.

Bright forecast — While the applause for "Boy Meets Girl" is still ringing in our ears, Director Stocker Fontelieu has scheduled tryouts for the second production of the season. The next Little Theatre gem will be "The Hasty Heart" written by playwright John Patrick. It enjoyed a long and successful run on Broadway and was listed among the ten top pictures from the film capital last year.

"The Hasty Heart" requires a cast of eight men and one woman. One of the men must have a Scotch accent or a Scotch brogue either way you choose to define it.

Try-outs for this heart tugging comedy drama will be held at Little Theatre playhouse on Tuesday evening October 31, at 8 p. m. Wonder who will be the next stars of the local stage.

Random notes — The largest single group reservation on record was the Saturday night theater party to see "Boy Meets Girl." The Dick Troys just back from New York in time to catch the show were among the thirteen reserving as a group. The party included the Dick Troys, Darwin Nichols, Keith Moores, the Dr. Klams and others whose names we didn't get including some out of town guests — On Friday we had a little skit in the column about the oddity of pear trees in full bloom this time of year. The way we had it written up it read like this. (The oddity of the season, Grandpa Nobes who is playing an English Councel in the current production has a pear tree in his back yard that is loaded with new white blossoms and tiny pears). Grandpa informed us at Friday evenings performance that Mrs. Nobes was really out after our scalp for calling him the oddity of the season. Our apologies Grandpa, we meant of the century. That's what we like about Grandpa. He has got a fine sense of humor seldom attributed to a Britisher. — What won't folks come up with next? Lloyd Leonard approached Garland Shell the other day with a sensational new fountain pen, that he is considering marketing. The unique thing about the pen is that it has a nylon point. Garland considering the merits of the new pen had one in his pocket when we saw him on Saturday. Take our word for it, it strictly is different.

Little Theatre Sketch

Elizabeth Provost — Who is currently appearing as a nurse in "Boy Meets Girl" was born in Mansfield, La. but has lived most of her life in Baton Rouge. Family and friends have shortened her given monicker to Bette.

The attractive young lady is a graduate of Baton Rouge High and Louisiana State University. She received her B. A. degree in the study of sociology. While attending L. S. U. Bette was a member of Delta, Delta Delta social sorority,. the Louisiana Players Guild and the Purple Jackets.

After a year's post graduate work in social welfare, she came to Monroe last June to be associated with the Ouachita Parish Department of Public Welfare and has been doing child welfare work.

Bette's co-worker Betty Baldridge introduced her to Little Theatre and acted as stage manager for the production in which she made her debut to local audiences.

Ouachita Students Will Receive Driving Lessions

The purpose of the program is to make our roads and highways safe, asserted William Hudson, who is to teach the course. Mr. Hudson went on to explain the necessity of the program: "The schools and motor companies over the entire nation have seen the need for this kind of program and are cooperating to reduce the 35,000 traffic accidents that occur in the United States each year. Over two out of three of these accidents are not caused by defective cars or inadequate highways and safety devices, but the drivers themselves."

"When parents let their sons and daughters drive the family car, they are committing them to more danger than if they were planting them in the armed services during the war. In World War II approximately 1,000,000 servicemen were killed and injured but during the same period approximately 3,000,000 persons were killed or injured in traffic accidents. This means that three times as many people were killed or injurd by automobiles as were killed or injured by the war.

The people of our country are quick to mourn the dead of our servicemen and it is right that they should, but it is time we do something about the traffic accidents that kill or injure so many more Americans."

"This is why it is essential that driver-training be taught in our schools."

At the present time there are 70 students who will take active participation in the actual learning of how to handle a car. Next semester 70 more will be trained, making a total of 140 for the school year.

Five New Directors Selected For C. Of C.

Five new directors were selected yesterday for three year terms as board members of the Monroe-West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, according to an announcement from Clifford M. Strauss, chamber president.

Elected to the governing posts they will fill until December, 1953, were W. L. "Jack" Howard, Howard Bros. Jewelers; Ivy C. Jordan, Superior Lumber Co.; O. N. McNeil, Lee-Rogers Chevrolet Co.; J. Y. Pipes, Tyner-Petrus Co.; and J. Floyd Stone, Sr., cotton buyer.

Ballots were mailed to all members Oct. 14, with instructions to vote for five of the ten nominees. Balloting closed Oct. 27, when the official counting began. The election committee comprised F. N. Steele, chairman, G. Thomas Frazer, C. D. McAdams and David C. Silverstein.

In commenting on the result of the election, Steele said, "This is the closest election this group has held in many years. For one thing, a greater percentage of the membership voted this time than in previous contests. The number of votes received by each of the nominees indicate that it was difficult for the membership to make their choices. Each man is exceptionally well qualified to serve as a director. There was a difference of only 140 between the men receiving the highest and lowest number of votes."

Strauss said that the new directors will replace the following men, retiring after serving full terms. Henry Bernstein Jr., G. Thomas Frazer, F. N. Steele, John P. McKee, E. N. Thompson and George Weaks.

Methodist Men At Monthly Lunch

Methodist Men held a meeting in the annex of the First Methodist Church Friday evening, where they were served with a most bounteous repast by the ladies of Circle No. 7, as follows: Mrs. J. A. Brothers, Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. Sam Futrell, Mrs. Julius Fink, Mrs. J. J. Preston and Mrs. Warren Breard. Menu consisted of roast turkey and dressing, sweet potatoes, salad, pie and coffee, and it is certainly a conservative statement to say that the feast was most excellent in every way, and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

It was the last meeting to be presided over by the retiring president, E. N. Thompson, who has served faithfully and efficiently in his administration. The nomination committee headed by Jimmy Harbuck as chairman, placed the following names before the meeting, after which the nominations were closed and they were elected by acclamation:

President, E. C. Dansby; A. C. Lea, vice-president and R. W. Germany, secretary and treasurer. The pastor was present, and invited the members to attend church Sunday to hear Bishop Martin preach, and inspect the new educational building, soon to be finished.

Presbyterian Youth Will Meet

Young people representing the Presbyterian churches of North Louisiana will meet here this Saturday for the fall youth rally of Red River Presbytery. The First Presbyterian Church will be the scene of the rally which is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Each spring and fall a rally is held at one of the churches in the Presbytery to give the youth of the churches an opportunity to exchange ideas on their work in the church. More than a hundred representatives from the churches i Nnorth Louisiana which make Red River Presbytery are expected to attend the rally.

An interesting and informative program has been planned by the Presbytery's youth council, a group of young people elected to lead the work of the youth of the Presbytery. Young people of the host church have also done much in the planning of the rally. The program for the day includes several discussion groups of those interested in the different phases of the youth work of the church.

Immediately before the lunch hour there will be a period of recreation. Before adjournment in the afternoon the group will hear an inspirational talk by the Rev. John Davis of Minden.

Two delicious ways of serving snap beans: mix the cooked beans into a cheese sauce, cut the cooked beans into small pieces, mix again with a cheese sauce, and use to fill hollowed-out tomatoes; top with a slice of cheese and put into the oven until tomatoes are cooked and bean mixture is hot.

Liquor Industry To Pour Into Synthetic Program

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The liquor industry will pour millions of gallons of alcohol into Uncle Sam's reviving synthetic rubber program in the months ahead.

That it will affect either the supply or the prices of popular liquor brands is highly unlikely unless, of course, a new war threatens.

Except for two brief distilling "holidays," full scale liquor production since the end of 1946, has carried whiskey stocks to a record high. At the beginning of September it was around 540,000,000 gallons (after evaporation and other losses).

And stocks of neutral spirits are estimated to be equal to a year's supply at the current consumption rate.

The industry is in much better shape than it was early in World War II, just before production was turned over altogether to war alcohol.

In fact, distillers believe they could furnish defense rubber plants with the full amount of alcohol needed in 1951—possibly 140,000,000-high - proof gallons — and still produce enough additional for their beverage needs.

However, the government doesn't anticipate having to call on whiskey - makers for anywhere near that much alcohol.

Distillers reportedly have been asked to supply roughly 20 per cent of their total production capacity in November and 30 per cent in December, for a total of 10,000,000 gallons.

Then, early next year, imports of alcohol from France are expected to take the main burden off the liquor makers.

The French government has large stocks of alcohol acquired through subsidies to sugar beet growers. Our reconstruction finance corp. has been busy buying up these stocks for delivery starting in December.

Additional alcohol will be needed for other defense work, for things like jet fuels, smokeless powder and guided missiles. Just how much has not been disclosed, but distillery officials say the regular industrial alcohol pepole should be able to handle most of these requirements as time goes on.

A spokesman for several distillers said this week they could see nothing in the picture for the rest of this year which would seriously disrupt normal distribution of liquor.

Now about prices:

Several trade sources reported that major distillers are seriously considering hiking liquor prices "a little"—not because of the defense alcohol situation but because costs have climbed sharply. The liquor men say their base prices have not been raised since before the war except to reflect higher taxes, yet the cost of labor, barrels, packaging materials, insurance, delivery charges and so on, all are much higher.

A price boost, if it comes at all, probably would not materialize until late February or March, most agreed.

"We and the others will try to keep any such price hike as small as possible," said a spokesman for a major distiller with several popular brands in the market.

"You see, public relations is a big factor in this business—maybe bigger than in any other industry. If we jack up prices, not only do the customers and the retailers and jobbers and wholesalers howl, but the prohibitionists yell 'profiteers—we need higher liquor taxes!'" We're worried enough about possible tax increases without that!"

GIRL SCOUTS TO HAVE OWN CAMP

Monroe Kiwanians Provide Site In Wooded Area North Of Sterlington

The Girl Scouts of this community will soon have a camp of their own due to the efforts of the Monroe Kowanis Club. Months ago the Monroe Kiwanis Club saw the need for a camp for girls, and devoted the majority of its funds toward that nd. It was decided by the club to use the entire proceds from th Kiwanis sponsored ball game this summr for the erection of this camp.

Several months ago a camp sitt was selected with the approval of th Girl Scouts and immediately plans wre formulated by th club toward erection of the buildings and clearing the land. Sevral committees wr formd within th club for this work and today the camp is rapidly nearing reality. The camp site is north of Sterlington on the river.

L. B. Pettit, chairman of the camp committee, announced that last Friday the concrete was poured for the main building. Kiwanian Pettit stated that most of the labor used on Saturdays for the building of the camp was donated. Most of the material going into the erecton of th camp was idonated by cvic-minded individuals and business firms. Without the aid and support of these people, this camp could not be erected. Labor unions, paintrs, carpenters and other trades ndd to bulding purposs have been very generous in donating thir spare time for the building of the camp.

The Kiwanis Club considers this project as one of the most importance, as for years the Girl Scouts of this community have had no camp of their own to practice their valuable training program. It is hoped by the club that the camp will not only provide enjoyment for hundreds of girls of the community, but will also prove a contribution toward training Girl Scouts to be valuable citizens.

"Boy Meets "Girl" goes on in its rollicking, boisterous way before the foot-light again Monday evening. The boxoffice of Little Theatre will be open on Sunday and Monday afternoons from the regulars hours of 1 p. m. until 7 p.m. call 2976 for your reservation to Little Theatre's version of the great American fairy tale.

Bright forecast — While the applause for "Boy Meets Girl" is still ringing in our ears, Director Stocker Fontelieu has scheduled tryouts for the second production of the season. The next Little Theatre gem will be "The Hasty Heart" written by playwright John Patrick. It enjoyed a long and successful run on Broadway and was listed among the ten top pictures from the film capital last year.

"The Hasty Heart" requires a cast of eight men and one woman. One of the men must have a Scotch accent or a Scotch brogue either way you choose to define it.

Try-outs for this heart tugging comedy drama will be held at Little Theatre playhouse on Tuesday evening October 31, at 8 p. m. Wonder who will be the next stars of the local stage.

Random notes — The largest single group reservation on record was the Saturday night theater party to see "Boy Meets Girl." The Dick Troys just back from New York in time to catch the show were among the thirteen reserving as a group. The party included the Dick Troys, Darwin Nichols, Keith Moores, the Dr. Klams and others whose names we didn't get including some out of town guests — On Friday we had a little skit in the column about the oddity of pear trees in full bloom this time of year. The way we had it written up it read like this. (The oddity of the season, Grandpa Nobes who is playing an English Councel in the current production has a pear tree in his back yard that is loaded with new white blossoms and tiny pears). Grandpa informed us at Friday evenings performance that Mrs. Nobes was really out after our scalp for calling him the oddity of the season. Our apologies Grandpa, we meant of the century. That's what we like about Grandpa. He has got a fine sense of humor seldom attributed to a Britisher. — What won't folks come up with next? Lloyd Leonard approached Garland Shell the other day with a sensational new fountain pen, that he is considering marketing. The unique thing about the pen is that it has a nylon point. Garland considering the merits of the new pen had one in his pocket when we saw him on Saturday. Take our word for it, it strictly is different.

Little Theatre Sketch

Elizabeth Provost — Who is currently appearing as a nurse in "Boy Meets Girl" was born in Mansfield, La. but has lived most of her life in Baton Rouge. Family and friends have shortened her given monicker to Bette.

The attractive young lady is a graduate of Baton Rouge High and Louisiana State University. She received her B. A. degree in the study of sociology. While attending L. S. U. Bette was a member of Delta, Delta Delta social sorority, the Louisiana Players Guild and the Purple Jackets.

After a year's post graduate work in social welfare, she came to Monroe last June to be associated with the Ouachita Parish Department of Public Welfare and has been doing child welfare work.

Bette's co-worker Betty Baldridge introduced her to Little Theatre and acted as stage manager for the production in which she made her debut to local audiences.

Ouachita Students Will Receive Driving Lessons

The purpose of the program is to make our roads and highways safe, asserted William Hudson, who is to teach the course. Mr. Hudson went on to explain the necessity of the program: "The schools and motor companies over the entire nation have seen the need for this kind of program and are cooperating to reduce the 35,000 traffic accidents that occur in the United States each year. Over two out of three of these accidents are not caused by defective cars or inadequate highways and safety devices, but the drivers themselves."

"When parents let their sons and daughters drive the family car, they are committing them to more danger than if they were planting them in the armed services during the war. In World War II approximately 1,000,000 servicemen were killed and injured but during the same period approximately 3,000,000 persons were killed or injured in traffic accidents. This means that three times as many people were killed or injurd by automobiles as were killed or injured by the war.

The people of our country are quick to mourn the dead of our servicemen and it is right that they should, but it is time we do something about the traffic accidents that kill or injure so many more Americans."

"This is why it is essential that driver-training be taught in our schools."

At the present time there are 70 students who will take active participation in the actual learning of how to handle a car. Next semester 70 more will be trained, making a total of 140 for the school year.

Methodist Men At Monthly Lunch

Methodist Men held a meeting in the annex of the First Methodist Church Friday evening, where they were served with a most bounteous repast by the ladies of Circle No. 7, as follows: Mrs. J. A. Brothers, Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. Sam Futrell, Mrs. Julius Fink, Mrs. J. J. Preston and Mrs. Warren Breard. Menu consisted of roast turkey and dressing, sweet potatoes, salad, pie and coffee, and it is certainly a conservative statement to say that the feast was most excellent in every way, and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

It was the last meeting to be presided over by the retiring president, E. N. Thompson, who has served faithfully and efficiently in his administration. The nomination committee headed by Jimmy Harbuck as chairman, placed the following names before the meeting, after which the nominations were closed and they were elected by acclamation:

President, E. C. Dansby; A. C. Lea, vice-president and R. W. Germany, secretary and treasurer. The pastor was present, and invited the members to attend church Sunday to hear Bishop Martin preach, and inspect the new educational building, soon to be finished.

Five New Directors Selected For C. Of C.

Five new directors were selected yesterday for three year terms as board members of the Monroe-West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, according to an announcement from Clifford M. Strauss, chamber president.

Elected to the governing posts they will fill until December, 1953, were W. L. "Jack" Howard, Howard Bros. Jewelers; Ivy C. Jordan, Superior Lumber Co.; O. N. McNeil, Lee-Rogers Chevrolet Co.; J. Y. Pipes, Tyner-Petrus Co.; and J. Floyd Stone, Sr., cotton buyer.

Ballots were mailed to all members Oct. 14, with instructions to vote for five of the ten nominees. Balloting closed Oct. 27, when the officia. counting began. The election committee comprised F. N. Steele, chairman, G. Thomas Frazer, C. D. McAdams and David C. Silverstein.

In commenting on the result of the election, Steele said, "This is the closest election this group has held in many years. For one thing, a greater percentage of the membership voted this time than in previous contests. The number of votes received by each of the nominees indicate that it was difficult for the membership to make their choices. Each man is exceptionally well qualified to serve as a director. There was a difference of only 140 between the men receiving the highest and lowest number of votes."

Strauss said that the new directors will replace the following men, retiring after serving full terms. Henry Bernstein Jr., G. Thomas Frazer, F. N. Steele, John P. McKee, E. N. Thompson and George Weaks.

Presbyterian Youth Will Meet

Young people representing the Presbyterian churches of North Louisiana will meet here this Saturday for the fall youth rally of Red River Presbytery. The First Presbyterian Church will be the scene of the rally which is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Each spring and fall a rally is held at one of the churches in the Presbytery to give the youth of the churches an opportunity to exchange ideas on their work in the church. More than a hundred representatives from the churches i Nnorth Louisiana which make Red River Presbytery are expected to attend the rally.

An interesting and informative program has been planned by the Presbytery's youth council, a group of young people elected to lead the work of the youth of the Presbytery. Young people of the host church have also done much in the planning of the rally. The program for the day includes several discussion groups of those interested in the different phases of the youth work of the church.

Immediately before the lunch hour there will be a period of recreation. Before adjournment in the afternoon the group will hear an inspirational talk by the Rev. John Davis of Minden.

Liquor Industry To Pour Into Synthetic Program

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The liquor industry will pour millions of gallons of alcohol into Uncle Sam's reviving synthetic rubber program in the months ahead.

That it will affect either the supply or the prices of popular liquor brands is highly unlikely unless, of course, a new war threatens.

Except for two brief distilling "holidays," full scale liquor production since the end of 1946, has carried whiskey stocks to a record high. At the beginning of September it was around 540,000,000 gallons (after evaporation and other losses).

The industry is in much better shape than it was early in World War II, just before production was turned over altogether to war alcohol.

In fact, distillers believe they could furnish defense rubber plants with the full amount of alcohol needed in 195?—possibly 140,000,000-high - proof gallons — and still produce enough additional for their beverage needs.

However, the government doesn't anticipate having to call on whiskey - makers for anywhere near that much alcohol.

Distillers reportedly have been asked to supply roughly 20 per cent of their total production capacity in November and 30 per cent in December, for a total of 10,000,000 gallons.

Then, early next year, imports of alcohol from France are expected to take the main burden off the liquor makers.

The French government has large stocks of alcohol acquired through subsidies to sugar beet growers. Our reconstruction finance corp. has been busy buying up these stocks for delivery starting in December.

Additional alcohol will be needed for other defense work, for things like jet fuels, smokeless powder and guided missiles. Just how much has not been disclosed, but distillery officials say the regular industrial alcohol pepole should be able to handle most of these requirements as time goes on.

A spokesman for several distillers said this week they could see nothing in the picture for the rest of this year which would seriously disrupt normal distribution of liquor.

Now about prices:

Several trade sources reported that major distillers are seriously considering hiking liquor prices "a little"—not because of the defense alcohol situation but because costs have climbed sharply. The liquor men say their base prices have not been raised since before the war except to reflect higher taxes, yet the cost of labor, barrels, packaging materials, insurance, delivery charges and so on, all are much higher.

A price boost, if it comes at all, probably would not materialize until late February or March, most agreed.

"We and the others will try to keep any such price hike as small as possible," said a spokesman for a major distiller with several popular brands in the market.

"You see, public relations is a big factor in this business—maybe bigger than in any other industry. If we jack up prices, not only do the customers and the retailers and jobbers and wholesalers howl, but the prohibitionists yell 'profiteers—we need higher liquor taxes!' We're worried enough about possible tax increases without that!"

GIRL SCOUTS TO HAVE OWN CAMP

The Girl Scouts of this community will soon have a camp of their own due to the efforts of the Monroe Kowanis Club. Months ago the Monroe Kiwanis Club saw the need for a camp for girls, and devoted the majority of its funds toward that nd. It was decided by the club to use the entire proceds from th Kiwanis sponsored ball game this summr for the erection of this camp.

Several months ago a camp sitt was selected with the approval of th Girl Scouts and immediately plans wre formulated by th club toward erection of the buildings and clearing the land. Sevral committees wr formd within th club for this work and today the camp is rapidly nearing reality. The camp site is north of Sterlington on the river.

L. B. Pettit, chairman of the camp committee, announced that last Friday the concrete was poured for the main building. Kiwanian Pettit stated that most of the labor used on Saturdays for the building of the camp was donated. Most of the material going into the erecton of th camp was idonated by cvic-minded individuals and business firms. Without the aid and support of these people, this camp could not be erected. Labor unions, paintrs, carpenters and other trades ndd to bulding purposs have ben very generous in donating thir spare time for the building of the camp.

The Kiwanis Club considers this project as one of the most importance, as for years the Girl Scouts of this community have had no camp of their own to practice their valuable training program. It is hoped by the club that the camp will not only provide enjoyment for hundreds of girls of the community, but will also prove a contribution toward training Girl Scouts to be valuable citizens.

Mrs. H. A. Scott, Mrs. James E. Tripp, George Walker, J. R. Williams.

First aid: To joyous new fathers in getting the good news to relatives and friends will be provided by Western Union through a new storkgram service which was inaugurated today, E. R. Dawson local manager, announced.

Across the top of the storkgram is a colorful picture of a stork flying with a smiling baby modestly draped in a diaper. The blank contains spaces for details about the new income tax exemption, such as name, weight, and time of arrival, so the distraught father can write the anhouncement with a minimum of thought and effort.

If he wishes to add a few words. these are some that Western Union suggests, on the blank.

"We never won prizes in arithmetic but we're good at addition." "Has all the earmarks of a future president (first lady)". "Get set for a good smoke".

"It is a standing joke of doctors that they haven't lost a new father yet," Mr. Dawson said, "but nevertheless we think the proud dad needs some help, and the storkgram will aid him.

"Only the other day a new father dashed into a telegraph office, laid down a message announcing a baby's arrival, tossed some change on the counter and rushed out. The telegraph people are still trying to find him and ask whom he wants the telegram sent to.

"Last February a cartoonist humorously portrayed two messengers dressed as cupids delivering Valentine telegrams. To tease some of the messengers today we were speculating on what sort of costume they should wear to deliver storkgrams, but, of course. we were just kidding. . . ."

The first and only circus of the year here will be that of Clyde Beatty's trained wild animals scheduled here Nov. 6. The circus will be as large as ever and Monroe will be one of the last places to be visited as it will go into winter quarters in Shreveport Nov. 9.

Troopers of this show were saddened when in Greenwood, Miss. last week, Mrs. Beatty died suddenly from a heart attack in the Clyde Beatty special railroad car. The body was removed to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. for the holding of a mass of requiem and interment.

Monroyans are now thinking of Thanksgiving which is not too far distant. November 23 will be the day observed in accord with a proclamation by President Truman. But the last Thursday is a week later, Nov. 30 and some states, notably Texas, will also observe that date as well as Nov. 23.

It is explained that back in 1863, President Lincoln first proclaimed Thanksgiving day, naming the fourth (last) Thursday in November. In the years 1939, 1940 and 1941, observance was divided when earlier Thursday as official Thanks- President Roosevelt proclaimed the earlier Thursday Thanksgiving day. On December 26, 1941, house joint resolution was approved by the president, after having passed both houses of congress, and named the fourth Thursday in November in each year, as Thanksgiving day.

The Associated Press tells that here is relief for nervous people who when attending a show dislike to hear those crunches from popcorn eaters. Here's what is promised:

An industry spokesman said yesterday that a noisless variety of the tidbit has passed through the experimntal stage and soon will be on the market.

It is a result of several years' research at several universities and colleges.

The spokesman at the annual International Popcorn Industries convention said the new popcorn will taste as good as ever, but will be more on the orange side in color.

President Lewis Slater, of Northeast Louisiana State College, in an address at the Civitan club, last Thursday night, expressed the opinion that this college should have as many as 2,000 students in four or five years time.

Years ago, a college education was for a favored few; today it is almost a necessity for all young people of ambition and with a lenient and indulgent Uncle Sam, attendance has multiplied tremendously since 1920. President Slater has the figures and they are quite interesting and amazing. He says now if ever is the time to make Northeast Junior Collge a four year institution and thereby he anticipates that it will be a factor that will contribute greatly to the advancement of Monroe industrially and commercially as well as educationally.

highest scores having priority. It added, however, that in such a case the individual eligible for relief from active duty will not be released until his replacement has reported for duty to the unit involved. The announcement continued:

"There will be no establishment of a quota for relief from active duty on a world wide scale, nor will there be any mandatory overall relief score."

It is expected, the army said, that some men with the highest service credit scores will be relieved from active duty within the next three months.

Trooper Who Shot Negro Not Charged

No charges will be filed against State Trooper M. O. Ingram, who shot and killed a Negro in self-defense following an accident near Bastrop Wednesday night, reported District Attorney Fred Fudickar.

The Negro, Charlie Williams, of Mer Rouge had had an automobile accident with W. K. Porter of Bastrop, on the old Monroe-Bastrop highway, according to reports. Trooper Ingram was called to the scene of the accident.

Ingram attempted to arrest the Negro, but he drew a knife and refused to be arrested, asserted the district attorney. The trooper drew his gun as Williams was coming towards him with the knife. He fired once at the Negro, hitting him in the leg, and telling him to stop. The Negro didn't stop and Ingram fired again, hitting him again in the leg. The trooper next shot him in the chest in self-defense, reported authorities.

Williams died soon after he had been shot in the chest, according to the coroner's report. There were three or four white witnesses to the accident and the shooting, asserted Fudickar.

Persons living near the scene saw that there was only one state trooper and called to Bastrop headquarters stating that more men should be sent to the aid of Trooper Ingram.

There is no confirmation of these figures.

Lt. Gen. Alton H. Walker eighth army commander declined comment on the reports of Chinese Communist participation in the Korea war. He indicated, however, that the capture of Chinese Reds prisoners had no great significance.

A spokesman at Walker's headquarters, however, referred to "Chinese and North Korean elements" attempting to block the border drive of the Republic of Korea's first division. It is operating to the east of the U. S. fifth regiment and the British brigade.

An American adviser with the R. O. K. (Republic of Korea) first division said after a battle Friday: "we counted 62 dead Chinese in our area."

A company of U. S. marines was reported surrounded Saturday and hacked up by about 1,000 cut-off Reds. A later field dispatch spoke only of a marine platoon and said its survivors had made their way back to American lines near Kojo.

There was no explanation on the discrepancy. A company usually runs 250 men or more, a platoon 40 to 50.

Fighter planes from the carriers Badoeng Strait and Sicily set fire to Kojo and raked Red concentrations inside the town. They also hit the railroad town of Tongchon, a guerrilla stronghold.

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton, with the U. S. first marine division, said the Reds had ceased their attacks in the Kojo area. But he said the marines were set for a new attack, expected momentarily.

The U. S. First Corps judge advocate announced discovery of the bodies of 30 Americans in and beside a deserted, fire - damaged northbound train. The train was on the line from Pyongyang, captured Red Capital, to Kanggye, reported new seat of the routed North Korean government, near the Manchurian border.

The bodies were found Oct. 22 near Kujang, about 70 railroad miles north of Pyongyang.

All the Americans had been shot and nine had been badly burned as well.

The judge advocate said the evidence indicated that fleeing Reds had killed the Americans and that nine of the bodies were burned later in an American air strike that set fire to the train.

No North Korean dead were found nearby, indicating the Reds escaped from the train before the air strike.

Two American survivors were found, so weak from hunger they could only mumble thanks to rescuers. They were removed to a hospital. Their names were not released.

On the west coast, the fifth regiment of the U. S. 24th division ran into heavy Red resistance on its drive north from Kasan. It knocked out four Red tanks and three high velocity guns in the fight to smash through the dug-in Communists.

The British commonwealth 27th brigade moved five miles against lessened resistance in its drive from Kasan west toward Chongju.

The seventh regiment of the Korean sixth division was reported still holdings its border position on the Yalu river north of Chosan. It had been reported withdrawn Friday because of a shortage of supplies.

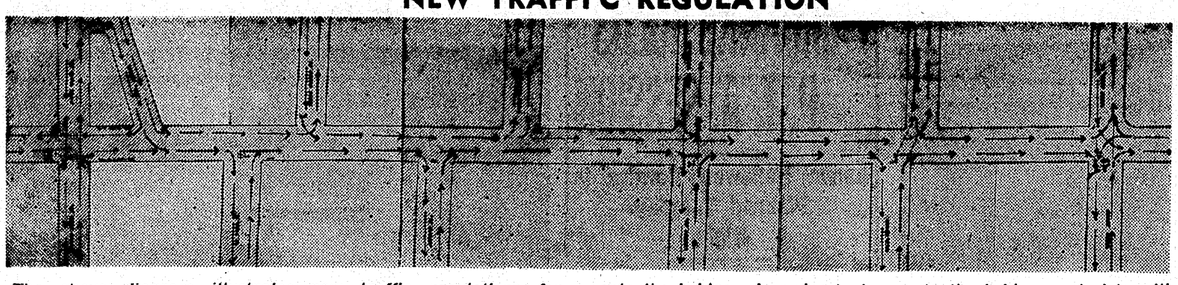

Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commanding the U. S. Eighth Army, flew to the spot Saturday and announced the regiment was holding its frontier position.

Six C-119 flying boxcars dropped 48,000 pounds of supplies at Kajang, 18 miles south of Chosan, for sixth division units at the border point and to the south.

Between the sixth division and the British - American forces on the west coast, the Korean Republican first divsiion smashed ahead three miles northwest of Unsan through stiff Red resistance.

On the east coast, the Korean Republican capital division sent one column into Songjin, a port 75 miles southeast of the Manchurian border, and another into Pungsan, about 38 miles south of the border on the road leading due north from the big industrial center of Hungnam.

NEW TRAFFI C REGULATION

The above diagram illustrates new traffic regulations for DeSiard Street which are to become effective November 2 at 6 a.m. During the peak hours traffic, a shown above, will be directed straight through, with no motorists being allowed to turn onto the bridge. In order to turn onto the bridge, motorists will have to make a loop onto Walnut and enter DeSiard Street going west. North Third Street has been made one way, with traffic to proceed north to the intersection of North Third and Washington.

NEW TRAFFIC

Siard and North Sixth will permit traffic to turn right on red at red lights. A sign will be placed at this corner.

Chief Peters and Captain Davis stated that they had made a complete study of this new traffic plan and that they thought it would prove effective in helping to speed up traffic during the peak hours, which are in the morning at noon, and the evening.

Captain Davis also announced that the department had recently declared the 300 block of North Third street a two hour parking zone and that only parallel parking would be allowed in the 200 block of North Fourth street.

Following a series of conferences held with Chest leaders, Mr. Ethridge said that a swift-paced, short campaign had been agreed on to get underway November 1st and to be wound up by November 18.

"We can get busy people to work in the campaign if we can promise them it will be of short duration," the chairman continued. "By holding the campaign to 18 days, we are assured of no long, drawn-out process that will require too much time."

Chairmen to head the ten field divisions for the drive will be announced immediately, Mr. Ethridge said, as acceptances are received from those singled out to handle these important jobs.

The amount of this year's Chest goal will also be announced during the coming week, it was stated.

The early work of the campaign will be staged from the Chest offices located at 412 Heninger building, but on November 6 field headquarters will be opened in the lobby of Hotel Virginia to make things more accessible to the army of volunteers, the chairman continued. Mrs. Helen Luckett, executive secretary, will be in charge of headquarters.

"One central theme has stood out at our conferences during the past week with Chest directors and members of committees," Mr. Ethridge said, "and that is that this is the vital year in Chest affairs. Either we raise a sizeable budget and put our nine service agencies on a sound operating basis to cope with the many new demands on their services and facilities, or we give up the whole idea of nine campaigns in one and go back to the old catch-as-catch can practice of having nine separate appeals haranguing the people throughout the whole year.

"It is the consensus of opinion on the part of all I have talked to, that the people of the Twin Cities are ready to back up the one campaign idea and to put the Community Chest on its feet once and for all. There is a strong feeling for the Chest in all the ranks of our citizenship. It's one civic enterprise that is truly of the people, by the people and for the people. The Chest is everybody's business."

ARMS AID ARRIVE

military aid to reach Indo-China. A French spokesman said the consignment, loaded in San Francisco, included 40 U. S. navy Hellcat fighters, replacement parts and munitions. Recent French reverses on the North Indo-China frontier accelerated the American aid program.

The primary tactical problem of the moment was at Laokay, more than 900 miles north of Saigon. There the French garrison, swelled slightly by units withdrawn from outlying posts, awaited encircling Vietminh units flushed by victories that have cleared the French from 400 miles of the frontier.

Attention was focussed here on the opportunities the Laokay garrison will have for evacuation. Escape corridors through the mountains seemed to be closing. But, confronted by overwhelming numbers of the Vietminh, the garrison may soon have to pull out.

So far as official announcements go, Laokay itself has not been attacked. French authorities stress only that the garrison artillery and French planes have joined in blasting Vietminh concentrations in the area.

Laokay has been cut off from overland contact with other major French positions. Safety lies closest along the banks of the Red river, where scattered French outposts hold out along the river's 150-mile course southeastward to Hanoi, a provincial capital.

Observers said any attempt to remove the troops by air would be more hazardous than a dash through the mountains. Laokay lies in a valley amidst heights largely occupied by the Vietminh The short clay airstrip, often unusable because of heavy rains, is so situated as to require planes to circle tightly to land. The Vietminh, recently equipped with anti-aircraft guns, could bring the planes under heavy fire.

The Hellcat fighters brought in by the Dixmude are expected to be rushed into the four-year-old war between the Ho Chi Minh's Rebels and the French and their Indo-Chinese adherents.

different from what I am doing now."

This just about repeated his earlier statement that he plans to go on being president of Columbia University and is not a candidate for anything. He hasn't said, however, that he would turn down the 1952 presidential nomination if it were offered.

Eisenhower said he and Mr. Truman had a general talk on "where we stood in the world."

"We only explored general conditions and ideas," he said. "No definite decisions were made. I repeat again, as I should not have to, that I am a member of the army and always ready to do anything I am asked to."

Then the general went back to the Pentagon for further talks with high army officials — talks that could well fit in with the prospect of his heading the combined defense force in Europe.

The defense ministers, meanwhile, heard U. S. Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall warn against complacency and urge defense plans that are "realistic with appreciation of the present critical situation."

"The struggle may only have begun," Marshall said.

Speaking in the huge green and gold conference room of the government's inter - departmental auditorium, Marshall called also for "a bill of particulars" on the combined defense force that is coming into being at the historic conference.

"Our citizens," he said, "Are eager to ascertain what forces are to be raised—how, and when, and what every nation under the North Atlantic pact will contribute."

So far, the tightest secrecy has been thrown around the size and strength of the projected forces.

Some onlookers thought Marshall's call for "realistic" plans was directed at the French. They are opposing the Anglo-American proposal that good-sized West German units be created to serve in the combined defense force. The French are willing that Germans be used only in small numbers and as part of international units.

Proposal To Stop 'Ghastly' Rejections Made By Hufft

New Orleans, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Louisiana's draft director today called for control of induction stations by the selective service system to permit full utilization of the nation's manpower.

General Hufft wrote Gen. Hershey that such an arrangement would eliminate "the ghastly record of rejections which we have experienced in the past few months."

Hufft pointed out that should selective service wrest control of induction stations from the army, which now handles them, selective service would fulfill its real mission as "a procurement agency, not merely a processing agency."

As long as acceptability of selectees is left to the control of the present user, the army, serious efforts to lower standards of acceptability are unlikely, the general said.

Last Thursday Hufft recommended to General Hershey that the mental tests given draft eligibies by the army at induction stations be abolished to permit fuller acceptance of draft registrants at pre-induction examinations.

This would curb what General Hufft termed "malingering" or deliberate failure of the tests.

VISHINSKY DOUBTS

"Every child knows that," he said.

Lodge told Vishinsky that we Americans talk a lot, "too much some times." He said Americans are becoming powerful, but "we are not going to use our powers as some others have used it in the past."

"We will use it with the other peace-loving nations to create permanent peace," Lodge said, "and whether the dictators like it or not, it will be a blessing to all of suffering humanity both in and out of the free world."

Lodge said he had gained the impression in listening to the debate on Vishinsky's proposals for a ban on atomic bombs, a big power peace pact and a one-third reduction of the armed forces of the big five that may be the Russian bloc delegates are really frightened.

"Maybe you are frightened of us," Lodge said. "Maybe you are frightened of the plain people in your own country. But I know that a frightened man can be dangerous. I am sorry there is fright and I hope and believe that the time will come when fear will disappear."

The senator said he was confident that "the condition which exists in the world is not going to last much longer because the people of the free world whom you have finally aroused will, in a completely peaceful and orderly way and within a very few years, create a quiet and peaceful world.

"We hope the day will come when—

"The oppression of religion in Russia will stop;

"The creative energies of the Russian people, that brilliant and gifted people, will be released;

"The Russian people will be able to mingle freely with people from other lands; and

"When the people of the rest of Europe will no longer live in terror of the Red army.

"My advice is: stop being afraid."

Vishinsky ranged wide in his comments on the international situation but he saved some of his sharpest barbs for the atomic question. He said the leaders of United States policy in the atomic energy field do not want any prohibition of atomic weapons.

"The authors of this United States plan for an international control body do not even dream of the prohibition of the use and manufacture of atomic bombs even after the international control body enters into force," he said. "They say: 'Oh, we'll see. The senate and the house of representatives may decide on that in accordance with their constitutional processes, their interests and general considerations of foreign policy and the international situation.'

WORLD MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The stock market edged ahead today in a slow but persistent advance.

The market was far from one-sided for a fair-sized group of issues either remained at Friday's closing levels or backed down a trifle. Most gains were limited to less than $1 a share.

Trading dropped to the usual slow Saturday rate after an opening flurry of activity. Sales for the two-hour session were in the neighborhood of 700,000 shares.

Today's rise was a carry-over from a ponderous advance yesterday. The day before, the market took the steepest dive since the end of June when prices cracked wide open after outbreak of the Korean war. Losses ranged from $1 to more than $3 a share.

COTTON

New York

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Cotton futures continued firm today, although the market did not display as much strength as in previous sessions. During early dealings advances ranged as much as $2 a bale. This level attracted increased profit taking as well as hedging. The advance was due to a continuation of trade buying and a scarcity of offerings. Some of the late selling was attracted to the market by Washington denials that officials were contemplating boosting cotton export quotas. Such rumors were instrumental in boosting cotton prices sharply on Friday.

New Orleans

New Orleans, Oct. 28 —(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here today on week-end short covering and trade buying. Closing prices were steady, 15 cents to 80 cents a bale higher.

Much of the buying was stimulated by expectations of a tight spot situation later in the season, sensational rises in the price of foreign cottons and favorable textile reports. Contracts were supplied by profit-taking longs and hedge selling.

Middling 15/16 inch spot cotton advanced 50 cents a bale to 40.40 cents a pound. Local spot sales amounted to 9,707 bales.

Mrs. H. A. Scott, Mrs. James E. Tripp, George Walker, J. R. Williams.

First aid: To joyous new fathers in getting the good news to relatives and friends will be provided by Western Union through a new storkgram service which was inaugurated today, E. R. Dawson local manager, announced.

Across the top of the storkgram is a colorful picture of a stork flying with a smiling baby modestly draped in a diaper. The blank contains spaces for details about the new income tax exemption, such as name, weight, and time of arrival, so the distraught father can write the anhouncement with a minimum of thought and effort.

If he wishes to add a few words. these are some that Western Union suggests, on the blank.

"We never won prizes in arithmetic but we're good at addition." "Has all the earmarks of a future president (first lady)". "Get set for a good smoke".

"It is a standing joke of doctors that they haven't lost a new father there yet," Mr. Dawson said, "but nevertheless we think the proud dad needs some help, and the storkgram will aid him.

"Only the other day a new father dashed into a telegraph office, laid down a message announcing a baby's arrival, tossed some change on the counter and rushed out. The telegraph people are still trying to find him and ask whom he wants the telegram sent to.

"Last February a cartoonist humorously portrayed two messengers dressed as cupids delivering Valentine telegrams. To tease some of the messengers today we were speculating on what sort of costume they should wear to deliver storkgrams, but, of course. we were just kidding. . . ."

The first and only circus of the year here will be that of Clyde Beatty's trained wild animals scheduled here Nov. 6. The circus will be as large as ever and Monroe will be one of the last places to be visited as it will go into winter quarters in Shreveport Nov. 9.

Troopers of this show were saddened when in Greenwood, Miss. last week, Mrs. Beatty died suddenly from a heart attack in the Clyde Beatty special railroad car. The body was removed to Fort Lauderdale, Fla. for the holding of a mass of requiem and interment.

Monroyans are now thinking of Thanksgiving which is not too far distant. November 23 will be the day observed in accord with a proclamation by President Truman. But the last Thursday is a week later, Nov. 30 and some states, notably Texas, will also observe that date as well as Nov. 23.

It is explained that back in 1863, President Lincoln first proclaimed Thanksgiving day, naming the fourth (last) Thursday in November. In the years 1939, 1940 and 1941, observance was divided when earlier Thursday as official Thanks- President Roosevelt proclaimed the earlier Thursday Thanksgiving day. On December 26, 1941, house joint resolution was approved by the president, after having passed both houses of congress, and named the fourth Thursday in November in each year, as Thanksgiving day.

The Associated Press tells that here is relief for nervous people who when attending a show dislike to hear those crunches from popcorn eaters. Here's what is promised:

An industry spokesman said yesterday that a noisless variety of the tidbit has passed through the experimntal stage and soon will be on the market.

It is a result of several years' research at several universities and colleges.

The spokesman at the annual International Popcorn Industries convention said the new popcorn will taste as good as ever, but will be more on the orange side in color.

President Lewis Slater, of Northeast Louisiana State College, in an address at the Civitan club, last Thursday night, expressed the opinion that this college should have as many as 2,000 students in four or five years time.

Years ago, a college education was for a favored few; today it is almost a necessity for all young people of ambition and with a lenient and indulgent Uncle Sam, attendance has multiplied tremendously since 1920. President Slater has the figures and they are quite interesting and amazing. He says now if ever is the time to make Northeast Junior Collge a four year institution and thereby he anticipates that it will be a factor that will contribute greatly to the advancement of Monroe industrially and commercially as well as educationally.

highest scores having priority. It added, however, that in such a case the individual eligible for relief from active duty will not be released until his replacement has reported for duty to the unit involved. The announcement continued:

"There will be no establishment of a quota for relief from active duty on a world wide scale, nor will there be any mandatory overall relief score."

It is expected, the army said, that some men with the highest service credit scores will be relieved from active duty within the next three months.

Trooper Who Shot Negro Not Charged

No charges will be filed against State Trooper M. O. Ingram, who shot and killed a Negro in self-defense following an accident near Bastrop Wednesday night, reported District Attorney Fred Fudickar.

The Negro, Charlie Williams, of Mer Rouge had had an automobile accident with W. K. Porter of Bastrop, on the old Monroe-Bastrop highway, according to reports. Trooper Ingram was called to the scene of the accident.

Ingram attempted to arrest the Negro, but he drew a knife and refused to be arrested, asserted the district attorney. The trooper drew his gun as Williams was coming towards him with the knife. He fired once at the Negro, hitting him in the leg, and telling him to stop. The Negro didn't stop and Ingram fired again, hitting him again in the leg. The trooper next shot him in the chest in self-defense, reported authorities.

Williams died soon after he had been shot in the chest, according to the coroner's report. There were three or four white witnesses to the accident and the shooting, asserted Fudickar.

Persons living near the scene saw that there was only one state trooper and called to Bastrop headquarters stating that more men should be sent to the aid of Trooper Ingram.

There is no confirmation of these figures.

Lt. Gen. Alton H. Walker eighth army commander declined comment on the reports of Chinese Communist participation in the Korea war. He indicated, however, that the capture of Chinese Reds prisoners had no great significance.

A spokesman at Walker's headquarters, however, referred to "Chinese and North Korean elements" attempting to block the border drive of the Republic of Korea's first division. It is operating to the east of the U. S. fifth regiment and the British brigade.

An American adviser with the R. O. K. (Republic of Korea) first division said after a battle Friday: "we counted 62 dead Chinese in our area."

A company of U. S. marines was reported surrounded Saturday and hacked up by about 1,000 cut-off Reds. A later field dispatch spoke only of a marine platoon and said its survivors had made their way back to American lines near Kojo.

There was no explanation on the discrepancy. A company usually runs 250 men or more, a platoon 40 to 50.

Fighter planes from the carriers Badoeng Strait and Sicily set fire to Kojo and raked Red concentrations inside the town. They also hit the railroad town of Tongchon, a guerrilla stronghold.

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton, with the U. S. first marine division, said the Reds had ceased their attacks in the Kojo area. But he said the marines were set for a new attack, expected momentarily.

The U. S. First Corps judge advocate announced discovery of the bodies of 30 Americans in and beside a deserted, fire - damaged northbound train. The train was on the line from Pyongyang, captured Red Capital, to Kanggye, reported new seat of the routed North Korean government, near the Manchurian border.

The bodies were found Oct. 22 near Kujang, about 70 railroad miles north of Pyongyang.

All the Americans had been shot and nine had been badly burned as well.

The judge advocate said the evidence indicated that fleeing Reds had killed the Americans and that nine of the bodies were burned later in an American air strike that set fire to the train.

No North Korean dead were found nearby, indicating the Reds escaped from the train before the air strike.

Two American survivors were found, so weak from hunger they could only mumble thanks to rescuers. They were removed to a hospital. Their names were not released.

On the west coast, the fifth regiment of the U. S. 24th division ran into heavy Red resistance on its drive north from Kasan. It knocked out four Red tanks and three high velocity guns in the fight to smash through the dug-in Communists.

The British commonwealth 27th brigade moved five miles against lessened resistance in its drive from Kasan west toward Chongju.

The seventh regiment of the Korean sixth division was reported still holdings its border position on the Yalu river north of Chosan. It had been reported withdrawn Friday because of a shortage of supplies.

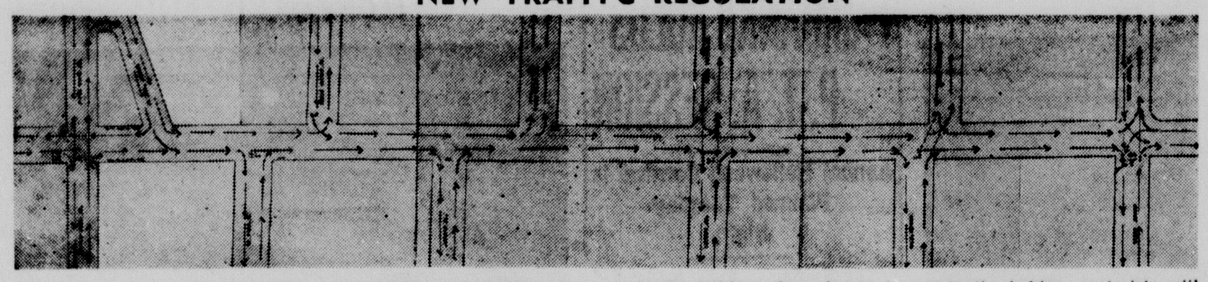

Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commanding the U. S. Eighth Army, flew to the spot Saturday and announced the regiment was holding its frontier position.

Six C-119 flying boxcars dropped 48,000 pounds of supplies at Kajang, 18 miles south of Chosan, for sixth division units at the border point and to the south.

Between the sixth division and the British - American forces on the west coast, the Korean Republican first divsiion smashed ahead three miles northwest of Unsan through stiff Red resistance.

On the east coast, the Korean Republican capital division sent one column into Songjin, a port 75 miles southeast of the Manchurian border, and another into Pungsan, about 38 miles south of the border on the road leading due north from the big industrial center of Hungnam.

NEW TRAFFIC REGULATION

The above diagram illustrates new traffic regulations for DeSiard Street which are to become effective November 2 at 6 a.m. During the peak hours traffic, a shown above, will be directed straight through, with no motorists being allowed to turn onto the bridge. In order to turn onto the bridge, motorists will have to make a loop onto Walnut and enter DeSiard Street going west. North Third Street has been made one way, with traffic to proceed north to the intersection of North Third and Washington.

Siard and North Sixth will permit traffic to turn right on red at red lights. A sign will be placed at this corner.

Chief Peters and Captain Davis stated that they had made a complete study of this new traffic plan and that they thought it would prove effective in helping to speed up traffic during the peak hours, which are in the morning at noon, and the evening.

Captain Davis also announced that the department had recently declared the 300 block of North Third street a two hour parking zone and that only parallel parking would be allowed in the 200 block of North Fourth street.

Following a series of conferences held with Chest leaders, Mr. Ethridge said that a swift-paced, short campaign had been agreed on to get underway November 1st and to be wound up by November 18.

"We can get busy people to work in the campaign if we can promise them it will be of short duration," the chairman continued. "By holding the campaign to 18 days, we are assured of no long, drawn-out process that will require too much time."

Chairmen to head the ten field divisions for the drive will be announced immediately, Mr. Ethridge said, as acceptances are received from those singled out to handle these important jobs.

The amount of this year's Chest goal will also be announced during the coming week, it was stated.

The early work of the campaign will be staged from the Chest offices located at 412 Heninger building, but on November 6 field headquarters will be opened in the lobby of Hotel Virginia to make things more accessible to the army of volunteers, the chairman continued. Mrs. Helen Luckett, executive secretary, will be in charge of headquarters.

"One central theme has stood out at our conferences during the past week with Chest directors and members of committees," Mr. Ethridge said, "and that is that this is the vital year in Chest affairs. Either we raise a sizeable budget and put our nine service agencies on a sound operating basis to cope with the many new demands on their services and facilities, or we give up the whole idea of nine campaigns in one and go back to the old catch-as-catch can practice of having nine separate appeals haranguing the people throughout the whole year.

"It is the consensus of opinion on the part of all I have talked to, that the people of the Twin Cities are ready to back up the one campaign idea and to put the Community Chest on its feet once and for all. There is a strong feeling for the Chest in all the ranks of our citizenship. It's one civic enterprise that is truly of the people, by the people and for the people. The Chest is everybody's business."

military aid to reach Indo-China. A French spokesman said the consignment, loaded in San Francisco, included 40 U. S. navy Hellcat fighters, replacement parts and munitions. Recent French reverses on the North Indo-China frontier accelerated the American aid program.

The primary tactical problem of the moment was at Laokay, more than 900 miles north of Saigon. There the French garrison, swelled slightly by units withdrawn from outlying posts, awaited encircling Vietminh units flushed by victories that have cleared the French from 400 miles of the frontier.

Attention was focussed here on the opportunities the Laokay garrison will have for evacuation. Escape corridors through the mountains seemed to be closing. But, confronted by overwhelming numbers of the Vietminh, the garrison may soon have to pull out.

So far as official announcements go, Laokay itself has not been attacked. French authorities stress only that the garrison artillery and French planes have joined in blasting Vietminh concentrations in the area.

Laokay has been cut off from overland contact with other major French positions. Safety lies closest along the banks of the Red river, where scattered French outposts hold out along the river's 150-mile course southeastward to Hanoi, a provincial capital.

Observers said any attempt to remove the troops by air would be more hazardous than a dash through the mountains. Laokay lies in a valley amidst heights largely occupied by the Vietminh The short clay airstrip, often unusable because of heavy rains, is so situated as to require planes to circle tightly to land. The Vietminh, recently equipped with anti-aircraft guns, could bring the planes under heavy fire.

The Hellcat fighters brought in by the Dixmude are expected to be rushed into the four-year-old war between the Ho Chi Minh's Rebels and the French and their Indo-Chinese adherents.

different from what I am doing now."

This just about repeated his earlier statement that he plans to go on being president of Columbia University and is not a candidate for anything. He hasn't said, however, that he would turn down the 1952 presidential nomination if it were offered.

Eisenhower said he and Mr. Truman had a general talk on "where we stood in the world."

"We only explored general conditions and ideas," he said. "No definite decisions were made. I repeat again, as I should not have to, that I am a member of the army and always ready to do anything I am asked to."

Then the general went back to the Pentagon for further talks with high army officials — talks that could well fit in with the prospect of his heading the combined defense force in Europe.

The defense ministers, meanwhile, heard U. S. Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall warn against complacency and urge defense plans that are "realistic with appreciation of the present critical situation."

"The struggle may only have begun," Marshall said.

Speaking in the huge green and gold conference room of the government's inter - departmental auditorium, Marshall called also for "a bill of particulars" on the combined defense force that is coming into being at the historic conference.

"Our citizens," he said, "Are eager to ascertain what forces are to be raised—how, and when, and what every nation under the North Atlantic pact will contribute."

So far, the tightest secrecy has been thrown around the size and strength of the projected forces.

Some onlookers thought Marshall's call for "realistic" plans was directed at the French. They are opposing the Anglo-American proposal that good-sized West German units be created to serve in the combined defense force. The French are willing that Germans be used only in small numbers and as part of international units.

Proposal To Stop 'Ghastly' Rejections Made By Hufft

New Orleans, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Louisiana's draft director today called for control of induction stations by the selective service system to permit full utilization of the nation's manpower.

General Hufft wrote Gen. Hershey that such an arrangement would eliminate "the ghastly record of rejections which we have experienced in the past few months."

Hufft pointed out that should selective service wrest control of induction stations from the army, which now handles them, selective service would fulfill its real mission as "a procurement agency, not merely a processing agency."

As long as acceptability of selectees is left to the control of the present user, the army, serious efforts to lower standards of acceptability are unlikely, the general said.

Last Thursday Hufft recommended to General Hershey that the mental tests given draft eligibles by the army at induction stations be abolished to permit fuller acceptance of draft registrants at pre-induction examinations.

This would curb what General Hufft termed "malingering" or deliberate failure of the tests.

"Every child knows that," he said.

Lodge told Vishinsky that we Americans talk a lot, "too much some times." He said Americans are becoming powerful, but "we are not going to use our powers as some others have used it in the past."

"We will use it with the other peace-loving nations to create permanent peace," Lodge said, "and whether the dictators like it or not, it will be a blessing to all of suffering humanity both in and out of the free world."

Lodge said he had gained the impression in listening to the debate on Vishinsky's proposals for a ban on atomic bombs, a big power peace pact and a one-third reduction of the armed forces of the big five that may be the Russian bloc delegates are really frightened.

"Maybe you are frightened of us," Lodge said. "Maybe you are frightened of the plain people in your own country. But I know that a frightened man can be dangerous. I am sorry there is fright and I hope and believe that the time will come when fear will disappear."

The senator said he was confident that "the condition which exists in the world is not going to last much longer because the people of the free world whom you have finally aroused will, in a completely peaceful and orderly way and within a very few years, create a quiet and peaceful world.

"We hope the day will come when—

"The oppression of religion in Russia will stop;

"The creative energies of the Russian people, that brilliant and gifted people, will be released;

"The Russian people will be able to mingle freely with people from other lands; and

"When the people of the rest of Europe will no longer live in terror of the Red army.

"My advice is: stop being afraid."

Vishinsky ranged wide in his comments on the international situation but he saved some of his sharpest barbs for the atomic question. He said the leaders of United States policy in the atomic energy field do not want any prohibition of atomic weapons.

"The authors of this United States plan for an international control body do not even dream of the prohibition of the use and manufacture of atomic bombs even after the international control body enters into force," he said. "They say: 'Oh, we'll see. The senate and the house of representatives may decide on that in accordance with their constitutional processes, their interests and general considerations of foreign policy and the international situation.'

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— The stock market edged ahead today in a slow but persistent advance.

The market was far from one-sided for a fair-sized group of issues either remained at Friday's closing levels or backed down a trifle. Most gains were limited to less than $1 a share.

Trading dropped to the usual slow Saturday rate after an opening flurry of activity. Sales for the two-hour session were in the neighborhood of 700,000 shares.

Today's rise was a carry-over from a ponderous advance yesterday. The day before, the market took the steepest dive since the end of June when prices cracked wide open after outbreak of the Korean war. Losses ranged from $1 to more than $3 a share.

COTTON

New York

New York, Oct. 28 —(AP)— Cotton futures continued firm today, although the market did not display as much strength as in previous sessions. During early dealings advances ranged as much as $2 a bale. This level attracted increased profit taking as well as hedging. The advance was due to a continuation of trade buying and a scarcity of offerings. Some of the late selling was attracted to the market by Washington denials that officials were contemplating boosting cotton export quotas. Such rumors were instrumental in boosting cotton prices sharply on Friday.

New Orleans

New Orleans, Oct. 28 —(AP)—Cotton futures advanced here today on week-end short covering and trade buying. Closing prices were steady, 15 cents to 80 cents a bale higher.

Much of the buying was stimulated by expectations of a tight spot situation later in the season, sensational rises in the price of foreign cottons and favorable textile reports. Contracts were supplied by profit-taking longs and hedge selling.

Middling 15/16 inch spot cotton advanced 50 cents a bale to 40.40 cents a pound. Local spot sales amounted to 9,707 bales.

ECONOMIC CHART WILL BE DRAWN

Educators, Business Leaders, Government Agencies To Cooperate

New Orleans, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A chart for the economic future of the southwest will be drawn up during the next few months by cooperation of educators, leaders of business and industry, and government agencies.

Plans for the project were outlined here today by Dean Robert W. French of Tulane University's college of commerce and business administration, chairman of a seven-man committee directing the work.

Dean French said the committee expected to have a report ready by next fall outlining the major problems and opportunities of the region, with specific recommendations for further action and study. The report will be available to the public, he added.

The committee was appointed in September by Leon Keyserling, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers. Its survey will be the third regional study under CEA auspices. One has been made on the southeast and one on New England is to be released next month.

The southwest survey will include all of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana; southern Missouri and Kansas; and Colorado and New Mexico east of the divide.

First important step in the southwest survey, the Tulane Dean said, will be a pair of technical panel discussions in Dallas November 20 and 21. One will discuss business and industry, the other agriculture and forestry. Taking part will be agricultural economists and directors of business research at state universities in the area.

Doctor French said the committee planned to hold a meeting in each of the eight states to hear business men, industrialists, representatives of trade associations and others, to "bring out the opportunities and problems so we can examine them."

Economists in colleges, business, industry and trade associations will be asked to make special studies or provide specific information during the survey, he continued.

A principal source of basic information is expected to be a report by the Fedeal Reserve Bank of Dallas scheduled for completion early in December. This will be a statistical study of the southwest in the decade of the forties, with some analysis of trends.

Figures on financing capital investments inside and outside the region are being sought, Dean French said.

With information from these and other sources, each member of the committee will be asked to write a preliminary memorandum from the point of view of his own specialty. From these, the committee's final report will be whipped into shape next summer.

The Tulane dean explained that no "five-year-plan" or definite blueprint was being drawn up.

"This is an attempt to obtain and present the entire economic picture of the southwest," he said. "It will be informative, will suggest further lines of attack, and will show the place of the region in the national economy.

"The series of surveys for the CEA represents a realization that each region presents its own problems, and when solutions are attempted on a strictly national basis they often misfire.

"For example, New England is concerned with holding or replacing the industry which has been moving elsewhere. The rapidly developing southwest presents entirely different problems.

"Another instance was the economic recession of 1948, which brought distress in certain areas but was hardly felt in others. The president's economic advisers found they couldn't offer solutions on a national basis when problems were largely regional or local.

"Now the pictures of each region are being obtained. When they are put together the council will have a picture of the national scene with regional differences."

Form Youth Club At St. Paschal's

Friday night, Oct. 20, a group of our young people, under the supervision of representatives of the various organizations of St. Paschal's parish, formed a youth organization.

The purpose of this youth organization is to promote good, clean fun and at the same time arouse a feeling of leadership.

The major accomplishments acquired at this first meeting was, besides the purpose being defined, was the election of officers. Feminine Psychology

ONE of the unexplainable mysteries of feminine psychology is the attitude of mothers toward their daughters and why, loving their daughters as they do, they treat them the way they do.

Mystery No. 1 is that even intelligent mothers so seldom try to fit their daughters for life. Apparently mothers still believe in Santa Claus and think that no matter what happens to other girls their own are going to be saved from all the work and worry and hardships of existence. So she spoils and pampers her daughters. She encourages them in selfishness and extravagance. She goes shabby that they may have fine clothes. She makes callouses on her hands so that they may keep theirs soft and manicured. She is humble before their insults and makes them feel that they are she-who-must-be-obeyed.

DOROTHY DIX

She doesn't even teach them how to cook or sew or market, although she is aware from her own experience that these are the things that every woman most needs to know, and that on her skill in the domestic arts will depend much of the success of her marriage.

Every girl who goes into business goes in handicapped by the lack of discipline, the lack of self-control, the laziness and inefficiency that her mother has bred in her. Half of the young women who rush into the divorce courts do so because their husbands do not treat them as their mothers did. They consider it cruel and inhuman treatment to be expected to do their share of work and bear their part of the load in the matrimonial partnership.

GIRL FAMILY GOAT

Mystery No. 2 is, curiously enough, that mothers consider that they own their daughters and that their daughters have a greater duty to them than their sons have. If there is ever any call for someone to be sacrificed on the family altar, it is always Nanny that Mother picks out for the goat. If there is sickness, it is always Nanny who must sit up and nurse the sufferer. Mother wouldn't dream of asking Tom to do it, because Tom needs his sleep and is tired after his hard day's work. Nanny may have stood behind a counter or pounded a typewriter from early morn till dewy eve, but Mother never remembers that.

Mother never asks the boys to do hand's turn around the house, but she saves up the chores for the girls to do when they come home from business. If there is a call for anyone to give up a career, or stay single in order to take care of old parents, it is always poor Nanny who is elected for martyrdom. Mother considers it the girls' duty, not the boys'.

Mystery No. 3 is why mothers are so anxious to get their daughters married. Most of them haven't found marriage a picnic that one could recommend for real enjoyment and a good time. Some of them have had husbands who drank and beat them; some were married to men who were shiftless and no-account; most of them had husbands who never showed them any tenderness nor affection, and who were grouchy and high-tempered and hard to get along with. All of their married lives they have had to work hard, pinch pennies, go shabby and have had few pleasures to brighten their lives.

NOT CHOOSY ABOUT MAN

One would think that the last thing on earth that a mother would want would be to let her daughter into a life that would be a repetition of hers. But this is not the case. Most mothers are so eager for their daughters to marry that they are not even particular about the bridegrooms and they will actually aid and abet their daughters in marrying men who have malodorous pasts, men who drink too much, men who have no way of providing for a family, men who have never even been able to support themselves.

Why mothers should be so anxious for their daughters to marry, no one knows. It is not because they are a burden on them, because virtually every girl makes her own living in these days and helps her family. It isn't because the mothers think the girls will be happier or better off married than single. It is just Mystery No. 3. And, curiously enough, mothers, are as opposed to their sons' marrying as they are pleased with their daughters' marrying. At a wedding you can always tell which is the bride's mother and which the bridegroom's. The bride's mother is wreathed in smiles. The bridegroom's mother is the lady in tears.

Mystery No. 4 is why mothers seem to think that the marriage ceremony endows a girl with almost supernatural wisdom and bestows upon her the ability to take care of herself. In a word, they think that marriage turns Dumb Dora into Mrs. Solomon, and changes a clinging vine into a sturdy oak. As long as Sally is single, Mother scoffs at her opinions, feels at liberty to correct her, tells her what to do and what not to do and considers that she can't be trusted to go anywhere alone, although Sally may be 40 years old, have a college degree and hold down an executive job.

But if Sally had married at 16 Mother would have immediately thought that she was an oracle and asked her advice and considered her a sophisticated woman of the world.

Funny about mothers, isn't it, and the way they treat their daughters?

REVIVAL WEEK IS NATIONWIDE

People Are Advised To Take Problems To Church And Leave Them

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Churches and synagogues in 4,000 American communities launch a cooperative religious revival program next week (Nov. 1) aimed at churchgoers as well as that half of the population which reportedly has no regular religious affiliation.

The "Religion in American Life" program, sponsored by 21 religious organizations will be conducted during the entire month of November under the slogan:

"Take your problem to church this week—millions leave them there!"

The national laymen's committee supervising the drive plans to promote the campaign though newspapers, magazines, movies, outdoor posters, radio and television.

"There is abroad in the land a hunger for spiritual things," says General Electric and chairman of the sponsoring committee. "Both as a nation and as individuals, we can all derive the full measure of inspiration, strength and guidance that only religion gives."

The trial program was launched in 1949 with 2,046 communities participating. The 4,000 pledges of activity for this year include a joint project by 14 Massachusetts communities comprising 100 churches and five synagogues to conduct a program to boost church attendance.

The central committee reports that in addition to half of all Americans not being members of any organized religious group, half the children get very little religious instruction and only one-fourth of the people attend religious worship regularly.

Interdenominational groups joining in the month-long drive are the Synagogue Council of America, the United Council of Church Women, the Christian Rural Overseas Program, the Ameican Bible Society, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and Church World Service.

Other sponsors include the African Methodist Episcopal Church; American Baptist Convention; American Unitarian Association; Augustana Evangelical Lutheran Church; Church of the Brethren; Congressional Christian Churches; Disciples of Christ; Evangelical and United Brethren; Methodist Church; Presbyterian Church U. S. A.; Protestant Episcopal Church; Reformed Church of America.

Auxiliary Seeks Health Checkups

The Ouachita parish medical society's auxiliary has been busy this month with the subject of public health as a needed medical service that urges the making of periodical checkups.

Each and every person, states Mrs. W. C. Cookston, Jr., publicity director for the auxiliary, should arrange for such periodical checkups to assure the best of health conditions.

The auxiliary, she stated, is not to be regarded as a purely social group, but it also is stressing education, and other features. In the recent parade sponsored by the Jaycees here, the auxiliary entered a float that received quite favorable comment.

Not only should checkups be given to all adults but the axiliary stresses a health checkup of all school children as essential.

If anyone seeks for further information this can be had by calling Mrs. Cookston, phone 10,113.

ECONOMIC CHART WILL BE DRAWN

Educators, Business Leaders, Government Agencies To Cooperate

New Orleans, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A chart for the economic future of the southwest will be drawn up during the next few months by cooperation of educators, leaders of business and industry, and government agencies.

Plans for the project were outlined here today by Dean Robert W. French of Tulane University's college of commerce and business administration, chairman of a seven-man committee directing the work.

Dean French said the committee expected to have a report ready by next fall outlining the major problems and opportunities of the region, with specific recommendations for further action and study. The report will be available to the public, he added.

The committee was appointed in September by Leon Keyserling, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers. Its survey will be the third regional study under CEA auspices. One has been made on the southeast and one on New England is to be released next month.

The southwest survey will include all of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana; southern Missouri and Kansas; and Colorado and New Mexico east of the divide.

First important step in the southwest survey, the Tulane Dean said, will be a pair of technical panel discussions in Dallas November 20 and 21. One will discuss business and industry, the other agriculture and forestry. Taking part will be agricultural economists and directors of business research at state universities in the area.

Doctor French said the committee planned to hold a meeting in each of the eight states to hear business men, industrialists, representatives of trade associations and others, to "bring out the opportunities and problems so we can examine them."

Economists in colleges, business, industry and trade associations will be asked to make special studies or provide specific information during the survey, he continued.

A principal source of basic information is expected to be a report by the Fedeal Reserve Bank of Dallas scheduled for completion early in December. This will be a statistical study of the southwest in the decade of the forties, with some analysis of trends.

Figures on financing capital investments inside and outside the region are being sought, Dean French said.

With information from these and other sources, each member of the committee will be asked to write a preliminary memorandum from the point of view of his own specialty. From these, the committee's final report will be whipped into shape next summer.

The Tulane dean explained that no "five-year-plan" or definite blueprint was being drawn up.

"This is an attempt to obtain and present the entire economic picture of the southwest," he said. "It will be informative, will suggest further lines of attack, and will show the place of the region in the national economy.

"The series of surveys for the CEA represents a realization that each region presents its own problems, and when solutions are attempted on a strictly national basis they often misfire.

"For example, New England is concerned with holding or replacing the industry which has been moving elsewhere. The rapidly developing southwest presents entirely different problems.

"Another instance was the economic recession of 1948, which brought distress in certain areas but was hardly felt in others. The president's economic advisers found they couldn't offer solutions on a national basis when problems were largely regional or local.

"Now the pictures of each region are being obtained. When they are put together the council will have a picture of the national scene with regional differences."

NORTHEAST GROOMS FOR SOUTHWEST VISIT

Victory-Hungry Redskins Hope To Snap Their Losing Streak

And victory is practically a "must" for the Indians unless the 1950 machine wants to go on record as the first team in James L. Malone's 17 years of coaching here ever to lose as many as six straight games.

When the powerful Tyler Apaches of Texas downed the Tribe, 34-6, here last Thursday night for their fifth loss in a row it was the first time the Indians had taken so many straight defeats since 1946. The losingest Redskin team was that of 1933 that failed to win a game while dropping nine straight. The 1934 team lost its first three games for a record of 12 losses in a row.

It will be the second meeting between Southwest and Northeast teams, the first since 1936 when the Malonemen dumped the Mississippians, 47 to 0, but Mississippi junior college football has improved a lot since a decade and a half ago, and the Tribe can look forward to a rougher evening Thursday.

Coach Malone, expressing dissatisfaction with some individual performances against Tyler, promised more lineup changes before Southwest comes to town. Both Malone and his assistant, Woody Boyles, expressed belief the Indians were capable of a better performance against Tyler.

"The first ten minutes were our worst," Coach Boyles declared. "After that we played a better ball game against the Apaches than we had showed in the two previous games with McNeese State and Panola."

The Apaches scored three fast touchdowns early in the game for a 20-0 lead at the quarter, but found the Tribe giving them a battle the rest of the way.

The Indians may be without the services of at least four top performers for the Southwest invasion. Fullback "Dub" Rush, who reinjured a leg in the only play in which he participated against Tyler, and Halfback Ray Wegley, who fractured a hand, appear definitely lost. Halfback Louis Phelps suffered a back injury, and End Robert Kirby aggravated an old injury.

But the Tribe's six battered "ironmen" are being groomed for another 60 minutes of bruising play. 'Phantom' After Curtis' Title In Bout Here Tuesday

Hooded Grappler Must Unmask If Victorious; Laye Meets Sandow

Success in the last tussle caused the Phantom to quickly challenge for the title, putting up a $100 side purse as an added inducement to Curtis to agree to the meeting.

Advised of the match by Promoter Kallio, Dave Silverstein, district wrestling commissioner, yesterday said the Phantom will be required, by regulations of the Louisiana Wrestling Commission, to unmask if he is successful in the title venture.

"While masked and hooded wrestlers are permitted to wrestle in the state, none may hold a championship without being properly identified," Commissioner Silverstein said. "If he beats Curtis, the Phantom will be recognized only if he unmasks and reveals his name and home address."

The Phantom showed he's capable of giving Curtis a good run for his money last Tuesday night and it is quite possible that Twin City mat fans will get a look at his uncovered face this time.

Promoter Kallio said there will be no advance in prices for the show.

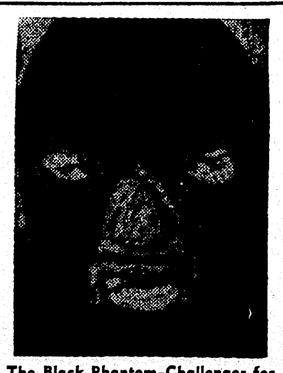

Referee trouble has plagued Kallio for the past few weeks, but he announced last night that Rex Mobley, wrestler of Texas City, Tex., will definitely be here to handle the matches. He said he had tried to obtain the services of Claude Skidmore, Jackson, Miss., but Skidmore is unavailable.

Field Goal By Spartans' Bob Carey Proves Margin Of Victory

By Jerry Liska

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28 —(AP)— Michigan State's spitfire Spartans outlasted roaringly reluctant Notre Dame, 36-33, today to hand the Irish a second straight defeat—the first time that's happened under Coach Frank Leahy.

The Fighting Irish thus were assured of their most dismal season since the 6-3 record of Elmer Layden's 1934 team. Previously this season, Notre Dame lost to Purdue 28-14 and last week to Indiana, 20-7.

The Irish fought bitterly to avoid something that never happened to Coach Leahy since he took over in 1941 and hadn't occurred to the Irish since Ed Mc Keever's 1944 wartime club bowed successively to powerful Navy and Army.

A third period field goal by Michigan State's Bob Carey proved the eventual victory margin. But this scorcher before 57, 866 fans was not settled by any one factor.

From the very first period, when Notre Dame took a 6-0 lead and Michigan State machine - gunned back with 20 points, to the closing Notre Dame touchdown with 45 seconds of the game left, it was a rip-sorting battle.

Michigan State's piston - legged Sonny Grandelius lived up to advance billing by scoring two of Michigan State's five touchdowns, and he had another called back. Grandelius carried 21 times for 114 yards.

Another Spartan hero was Vince Pisano, a stumpy sophomore who scored one touchdown and streaked 29 yards to Notre Dame's seven in the fourth period.

That set up Grandelius second touchdown to erase a 26-23 Irish lead and put the Spartans ahead, 29-26.

In the scoring summary, End Jim Mutcheller, who speared three touchdown passes, was Notre Dames big gun. But it was Halfback John Petitbon, who really kept the Irish in the game.

Before he was carried from the field on a stretcher in the third period, Petitbon had rambled 171 yards in 10 tries.

He reeled off runs of 49, 40, 33, and one of five yards for a touchdown that put Notre Dame back in the game in the second period, after they trailed 20-6.

The desperate Irish played their best game of the season by far. Outrushing the Spartans, 268 to 251 and outpassing them, by a one-sided 259 to 90 margin.

But Irish mentor Leahy said in the dressing room after the game, Michigan State was "the best team we've played all year."

Mazur's first was a 19-yard shot to Mutscheller which gave the Irish their 6-0 first period lead.

That made the Spartans mad enough to slam back for 20 points on Pisano's 15-yard thrust, to cap a 58-yard Spartan march.

Bob Carey added the first of his three extra points in five tries, putting Michigan State ahead 7-6.

That ended with a seven-yard scoot by Grandelius around end. Again Carey added, giving Michigan State a 14-6 lead.

The third Spartan touchdown of the opening period came as Notre Dame messed around on its own goal line and King blocked Williams punt in the end zone. Weaver fell on the ball for a touchdown. This time, Carey missed the try, and it was Michigan State 20, Notre Dame 6.

The Spartans rested on their oars in the second quarter, but Notre Dame didn't. The Irish sprang Petitboon lose on a 40-yard run to Michigan State's seven, and then Petitbon rammed five yards into pay-dirt. Joe Caprara connected on his point try this time, cutting Michigan State's margin to 20-13.

Carey's important field goal came in the third period after a holding penalty stopped a 75-yard Spartan drive to Notre Dame's four. The Spartan place - kicker shot the ball across the uprights from an angle on the 28-yard line, making it Michigan State 23, Notre Dame 13.

Michigan State needed more than this to play it safe, Notre Dame proved by striking 77 yards, also in the third period, to score on Williams 16-yard fling to Mutscheller. Caprara notched the point, leaving Notre Dame behind only 23-20.

The Irish fans went mad early in the fourth period when Williams again found a touchdown target in Mutscheller from 17 yards out and Caprara kicked the point to put Notre Dame in front, 26-23.

But Pisano's 29-yard run to Notre Dame's seven and Grandelius' seven-yard slash across the goal line nosed Michigan State back in front, 29-26, Carey missing the point.

It seemed all over when sophomore halfback Don McAuliffe battered two yards to the fifth Michigan State touchdown after a Spartan drive from midfield. Carey's point made it Michigan State 36, Notre Dame 26.

But with time running out, Mazur passed the Irish down to Michigan State's five and then winged a scoring toss to halfback Jerry Marchand.

Chiodetti, Melton Spark Last Quarter Drive That Wins For Tide

By Leroy Simms

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Two pony halfbacks, Larry Chiodetti and Jimmy Melton, led Alabama to a 14-7 homecoming day victory over Mississippi State today before 30,000 fans.

Chiodetti, 160-pound sophomore from Philadelphia, Pa., broke the game open in the first minute of the last quarter with a 58-yard run to the State three. Jim Burkett bulled it over for a 7-0 'Bama lead. ..

State had dominated play for the first three periods. Melton's touchdown, made with just five minutes left, was from 53 yards out. He's a 160-pounder from Wetumpka, Ala.

State's young team had carried the fight to favored Alabama, driving deep into the home club's territory time after time.

After Melton's touchdown run had cinched the result, the tired Staters had enough left to drive 35 yards for a score. Gil Verderber, soph tailback, passed the final 20 yards to Max Stainbrook, who also added the extra point. ..

Once Brown caught Wally Beech from behind after a 51-yard run; next he made a key tackle to stop a drive on the Bama 12, and finally he intercepted a pass in the last minute of the opening half. ..

'Bama's heavyweight backfield was bottled up for the three periods it played. Eddie Salem and Bobby Marlow, twin terrors in previous games from their halfback posts, never were able to get substantial yardage.

Score by quarters:

Mississippi State .. 0 0 0 7—7
Alabama ..... 0 0 0 14—14
Mississippi State .... 0 0 0 7— 7

Gilbert Homecoming Spoiled By Bulldogs

Seffens went over right tackle from the two-yard line for the first touchdown of the second quarter. Furr made a 40-yard run to set up the score, and followed up by taking a pass from Hall for the extra point.

Recovering a Wisner fumble, Don Brocato ran 24 yards to the Wisner one-yard line, and Billy Ezell scored on a quarterback sneak play for the only touchdown the Demons managed.

Left Tackle Ray Bowen caught Gilbert trying a fake punt and grabbed the ball to score. Pierron made the extra point. Robert Shivor scored next for Wisner, and the extra point try failed. A pass from Hall to Gilmore gave the Bulldogs their final touchdown, and Pierron made the extra point.

As part of the big Gilbert homecoming ceremony, two brothers, the first two graduates from Gilbert in 1918, came from Baton Rouge to watch the game. John and Noah Ward, one a livestock commissioner and the other an accountant, were the first graduates.

Coatta Passes And Kicks Wisconsin Over Wildcats

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28 —(AP)— Johnny Coatta, a reserve quarterback, moved up to the regular spot today to pass and kick Wisconsin to a 14 to 13 Big Ten Conference victory over Northwestern.

Coatta's passed for both of Wisconsin's touchdowns and kicked the Badgers' extra points to hand Northestern its first defeat of the year.

LAKE PROVIDENCE BEATS OAK GROVE

Bungled Punt Attempts Give Panthers Breaks For 19-6 Victory

Oak Grove outgained the visitors on the ground 140 yards to 123 yards but couldn't put their gains together for but one touchdown drive. Lake Providence gained 71 yards on seven completed passes out of 16 attempts, and Oak Grove gained 57 yards on three completions out of six attempts.

Lake Providence started a 61-yard offensive drive near the end of the first quarter, but it stalled on the Oak Grove 25. The Tigers took over but could not gain. A bad pass from center led to Jim Lee's punt being blocked and gave Lake Providence the ball on the Oak Grove 17. George Hopkins, flashy Lake Providence fullback, drove over for the score three plays later from the seven on a line buck. The kick for the point was wide.

Taking the Oak Grove kickoff, the Panters came right back to score. Driving from their own 40 to the Tiger 20, Lake Providence scored on a 20-yard pass from Quarterback Phillips to Halfback Fisher. Bradley's kick for the point was good.

In the last period, the Panters scored after a bad pass from center on a fourth-down attempted punt gave them the ball on Oak Grove's 12. A five-yard pass to George Hopkins netted the six points for Lake Providence.

KAISER'S The Best BUY ON THE ROAD

"After hearing my partner rave about his 1951 KAISER and making my own observations of its performance I decided to buy one myself. Since I got it, I have been on several trips to Dallas, Hot Springs and Mobile and I'm convinced that KAISER'S the best buy on the road today. The KAISER has many of the great qualities of the old Cord, including its safe easy handling on the highway at high speeds and around curves. Too much can't be said for KAISER'S maneuverability in heavy traffic and in parking. While I haven't made an accurate check on gasoline consumption, I know that my trips to the filling station are much less often than I expected. Well, to sum up my feelings on the matter—prior to owning this KAISER I had four models of America's most popular high priced cars and by comparison I thoroughly agree with KAISER'S slogan, 'BUILT TO BETTER THE BEST ON THE ROAD'. As a matter of fact, I have a 1950 convertible of the other make car which is available for sale because I prefer KAISER"

Victory-Hungry Redskins Hope To Snap Their Losing Streak

And victory is practically a "must" for the Indians unless the 1950 machine wants to go on record as the first team in James L. Malone's 17 years of coaching here ever to lose as many as six straight games.

When the powerful Tyler Apaches of Texas downed the Tribe, 34-6, here last Thursday night for their fifth loss in a row it was the first time the Indians had taken so many straight defeats since 1946. The losingest Redskin team was that of 1933 that failed to win a game while dropping nine straight. The 1934 team lost its first three games for a record of 12 losses in a row.

It will be the second meeting between Southwest and Northeast teams, the first since 1936 when the Malonemen dumped the Mississippians, 47 to 0, but Mississippi junior college football has improved a lot since a decade and a half ago, and the Tribe can look forward to a rougher evening Thursday.

Coach Malone, expressing dissatisfaction with some individual performances against Tyler, promised more lineup changes before Southwest comes to town. Both Malone and his assistant, Woody Boyles, expressed belief the Indians were capable of a better performance against Tyler.

"The first ten minutes were our worst," Coach Boyles declared. "After that we played a better ball game against the Apaches than we had showed in the two previous games with McNeese State and Panola."

The Apaches scored three fast touchdowns early in the game for a 20-0 lead at the quarter, but found the Tribe giving them a battle the rest of the way.

The Indians may be without the services of at least four top performers for the Southwest invasion. Fullback "Dub" Rush, who reinjured a leg in the only play in which he participated against Tyler, and Halfback Ray Wegley, who fractured a hand, appear definitely lost. Halfback Louis Phelps suffered a back injury, and End Robert Kirby aggravated an old injury.

But the Tribe's six battered "ironmen" are being groomed for another 60 minutes of bruising play. Working throughout the Tyler battle without relief were Tackles Pat Marnell and Wayne Corkran, End Billy Keller, Center Johnny Goodwin, Tackle Glenn Gossett who operated at guard, and Halfback E. J. "Bunny" Sievers.

"The boys are real workhorses in these days of two platoon systems," Malone declared. "They deserve rests. They're not injured, but they are bruised and battered and have been working this way week after week. They'll be in there for the full distance again if needed against Southwest."

By Jerry Liska

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28 —(AP)— Michigan State's spitfire Spartans outlasted roaringly reluctant Notre Dame, 36-33, today to hand the Irish a second straight defeat—the first time that's happened under Coach Frank Leahy.

The Fighting Irish thus were assured of their most dismal season since the 6-3 record of Elmer Layden's 1934 team. Previously this season, Notre Dame lost to Purdue 28-14 and last week to Indiana, 20-7.

The Irish fought bitterly to avoid something that never happened to Coach Leahy since he took over in 1941 and hadn't occurred to the Irish since Ed Mc Keever's 1944 wartime club bowed successively to powerful Navy and Army.

A third period field goal by Michigan State's Bob Carey proved the eventual victory margin. But this scorcher before 57, 866 fans was not settled by any one factor.

From the very first period, when Notre Dame took a 6-0 lead and Michigan State machine - gunned back with 20 points, to the closing Notre Dame touchdown with 45 seconds of the game left, it was a rip-sorting battle.

Michigan State's piston - legged Sonny Grandelius lived up to advance billing by scoring two of Michigan State's five touchdowns, and he had another called back. Grandelius carried 21 times for 114 yards.

Another Spartan hero was Vince Pisano, a stumpy sophomore who scored one touchdown and streaked 29 yards to Notre Dame's seven in the fourth period.

That set up Grandelius second touchdown to erase a 26-23 Irish lead and put the Spartans ahead, 29-26.

In the scoring summary, End Jim Mutcheller, who speared three touchdown passes, was Notre Dames big gun. But it was Halfback John Petitbon, who really kept the Irish in the game.

Before he was carried from the field on a stretcher in the third period, Petitbon had rambled 171 yards in 10 tries.

He reeled off runs of 49, 40, 33, and one of five yards for a touchdown that put Notre Dame back in the game in the second period, after they trailed 20-6.

The desperate Irish played their best game of the season by far. Outrushing the Spartans, 268 to 251 and outpassing them, by a one-sided 259 to 90 margin.

But Irish mentor Leahy said in the dressing room after the game, Michigan State was "the best team we've played all year."

Mazur's first was a 19-yard shot to Mutscheller which gave the Irish their 6-0 first period lead.

That made the Spartans mad enough to slam back for 20 points on Pisano's 15-yard thrust, to cap a 58-yard Spartan march.

Bob Carey added the first of his three extra points in five tries, putting Michigan State ahead 7-6.

That ended with a seven-yard scoot by Grandelius around end. Again Carey added, giving Michigan State a 14-6 lead.

The third Spartan touchdown of the opening period came as Notre Dame messed around on its own goal line and King blocked Williams punt in the end zone. Weaver fell on the ball for a touchdown. This time, Carey missed the try, and it was Michigan State 20, Notre Dame 6.

The Spartans rested on their oars in the second quarter, but Notre Dame didn't. The Irish sprang Petitboon lose on a 40-yard run to Michigan State's seven, and then Petitbon rammed five yards into pay-dirt. Joe Caprara connected on his point try this time, cutting Michigan State's margin to 20-13.

Carey's important field goal came in the third period after a holding penalty stopped a 75-yard Spartan drive to Notre Dame's four. The Spartan place - kicker shot the ball across the uprights from an angle on the 28-yard line, making it Michigan State 23, Notre Dame 13.

Michigan State needed more than this to play it safe, Notre Dame proved by striking 77 yards, also in the third period, to score on Williams 16-yard fling to Mutscheller. Caprara notched the point, leaving Notre Dame behind only 23-20.

The Irish fans went mad early in the fourth period when Williams again found a touchdown target in Mutscheller from 17 yards out and Caprara kicked the point to put Notre Dame in front, 26-23.

But Pisano's 29-yard run to Notre Dame's seven and Grandelius' seven-yard slash across the goal line nosed Michigan State back in front, 29-26, Carey missing the point.

It seemed all over when sophomore halfback Don McAuliffe battered two yards to the fifth Michigan State touchdown after a Spartan drive from midfield. Carey's point made it Michigan State 36, Notre Dame 26.

But with time running out, Mazur passed the Irish down to Michigan State's five and then winged a scoring toss to halfback Jerry Marchand.

Chiodetti, Melton Spark Last Quarter Drive That Wins For Tide

By Leroy Simms

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Two pony halfbacks, Larry Chiodetti and Jimmy Melton, led Alabama to a 14-7 homecoming day victory over Mississippi State today before 30,000 fans.

Chiodetti, 160-pound sophomore from Philadelphia, Pa., broke the game open in the first minute of the last quarter with a 58-yard run to the State three. Jim Burkett bulled it over for a 7-0 Bama lead.

State had dominated play for the first three periods. Melton's touchdown, made with just five minutes left, was from 53 yards out. He's a 160-pounder from Wetumpka, Ala.

State's young team had carried the fight to favored Alabama, driving deep into the home club's territory time after time.

After Melton's touchdown run had cinched the result, the tired Staters had enough left to drive 35 yards for a score. Gil Verderber, soph tailback, passed the final 20 yards to Max Stainbrook, who also added the extra point.

Once Brown caught Wally Beech from behind after a 51-yard run; next he made a key tackle to stop a drive on the Bama 12, and finally he intercepted a pass in the last minute of the opening half.

'Bama's heavyweight backfield was bottled up for the three periods it played. Eddie Salem and Bobby Marlow, twin terrors in previous games from their halfback posts, never were able to get substantial yardage.

Score by quarters:

Mississippi State	0	0	0	7—
Alabama	0	0	0	14—14

Gilbert Homecoming Spoiled By Bulldogs

Seffens went over right tackle from the two-yard line for the first touchdown of the second quarter. Furr made a 40-yard run to set up the score, and followed up by taking a pass from Hall for the extra point.

Recovering a Wisner fumble, Don Brocato ran 24 yards to the Wisner one-yard line, and Billy Ezell scored on a quarterback sneak play for the only touchdown the Demons managed.

Left Tackle Ray Bowen caught Gilbert trying a fake punt and grabbed the ball to score. Pierron made the extra point. Robert Shivor scored next for Wisner, and the extra point try failed. A pass from Hall to Gilmore gave the Bulldogs their final touchdown, and Pierron made the extra point.

As part of the big Gilbert homecoming ceremony, two brothers, the first two graduates from Gilbert in 1918, came from Baton Rouge to watch the game. John and Noah Ward, one a livestock commissioner and the other an accountant, were the first graduates.

Coatta Passes And Kicks Wisconsin Over Wildcats

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28 —(AP)— Johnny Coatta, a reserve quarterback, moved up to the regular spot today to pass and kick Wisconsin to a 14 to 13 Big Ten Conference victory over Northwestern.

Coatta's passed for both of Wisconsin's touchdowns and kicked the Badgers' extra points to hand Northestern its first defeat of the year.

LAKE PROVIDENCE BEATS OAK GROVE

Bungled Punt Attempts Give Panthers Breaks For 19-6 Victory

Oak Grove outgained the visitors on the ground 140 yards to 123 yards but couldn't put their gains together for but one touchdown drive. Lake Providence gained 71 yards on seven completed passes out of 16 attempts, and Oak Grove gained 57 yards on three completions out of six attempts.

Lake Providence started a 61-yard offensive drive near the end of the first quarter, but it stalled on the Oak Grove 25. The Tigers took over but could not gain. A bad pass from center led to Jim Lee's punt being blocked and gave Lake Providence the ball on the Oak Grove 17. George Hopkins, flashy Lake Providence fullback, drove over for the score three plays later from the seven on a line buck. The kick for the point was wide.

Taking the Oak Grove kickoff, the Panters came right back to score. Driving from their own 40 to the Tiger 20, Lake Providence scored on a 20-yard pass from Quarterback Phillips to Halfback Fisher. Bradley's kick for the point was good.

In the last period, the Panters scored after a bad pass from center on a fourth-down attempted punt gave them the ball on Oak Grove's 12. A five-yard pass to George Hopkins netted the six points for Lake Providence.

KAISER'S The Best BUY ON THE ROAD

"After hearing my partner rave about his 1951 KAISER and making my own observations of its performance I decided to buy one myself. Since I got it, I have been on several trips to Dallas, Hot Springs and Mobile and I'm convinced that KAISER'S the best buy on the road today. The KAISER has many of the great qualities of the old Cord, including its safe easy handling on the highway at high speeds and around curves. Too much can't be said for KAISER'S maneuverability in heavy traffic and in parking. While I haven't made an accurate check on gasoline consumption, I know that my trips to the filling station are much less often than I expected. Well, to sum up my feelings on the matter—prior to owning this KAISER I had four models of America's most popular high priced cars and by comparison I thoroughly agree with KAISER'S slogan, 'BUILT TO BETTER THE BEST ON THE ROAD'. As a matter of fact, I have a 1950 convertible of the other make car which is available for sale because I prefer KAISER"

PARILLI GUIDES WILDCATS OVER JACKETS, 28-14

Victors Appear At Best In Important Southeastern Conference Scrap

By Sterling Slappey

Atlanta, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Babe Parilli, a ball hiding Houdini, scattered Georgia Tech with short, flashing passes, then ordered Kentucky's line breaking brigade into the breach as Kentucky won today, 28-14, to remain unbeaten.

The victory for the fourth ranking team in the nation was No. 7 and by far Kentucky's most impressive. The Wildcats were a seven or eight point pick to win and most of the 37,000 fans considered team vastly underrated.

Kentucky came to Atlanta feeling the sting of criticism for a slightly mild schedule and the sting of criticism for a slightly mild schedule and the Wildcats were out to demolish Tech. The Wildcats even tried a field goal from their 27 in the fourth quarter although they were leading 21-7 at the time.

What parilli was to the offense, Big Bob Gain was to the defense. On approximately three out of five Tech plays, All-America candidate Gain charger for into Tech's secondary and often ended the rush with a lard, low tackle. Gain's performance was one of the great games for a tackle ever played on Tech's Grant field.

Parilli had a fleet of nine backs to direct. Bill Leskovar, 10th ranking runner at a major college, took turns with Shorty Jamerson, Emory Clark and Clayton Webb at punching Tech's line into bits.

Tech opened the game by racking the Wildcats on their heels and running them down. The great play of the underdogs paid off with the first score. Quarterback Darrell Crawford shot a fast pass to Bob McCoy from Kentucky's 21 to the 15 and McCoy went across. Red Patton's kick was good.

Throughout the remainder of the game, however, the big play was Kentucky's. Gain and Parilli converted the Wildcats from a toothless bunch into a fast charging outfit which smothered Tech.

Where Tech got its first opportunity to score after Leskovar fumbled on the 25, Kentucky got its first chance after blocking a batted down Patton's punt and also recovered on Tech's 18. In two plays Clayton Webb scored from the eight. Gain kicked the point.

As the second quarter was dying Kentucky smashed upfield from its 20 and scored in 10 plays. Parilli tossed a pass to Harry James who crossed. The play carried from the eight and Gain made the conversion.

In the second half Kentucky scored two touchdowns and Tech one. Jamerson cut through a Giant gap in Tech's line in the third quarter and dashed 46 yards for a touchdown. Gain converted for the third of four times. The fine run followed an interception of a Carrell Crawford pass by Dom Fucci.

Kentucky's final touchdown was on anothr Parill pass. The Babe shot from Tech's 20 to Fucci in the end zone in the final quarter.

Six plays later Tech partially got itself back into the game when Chappell Rhino cut out around end and kept going for 36 yards and the last touchdown. Rhino's run ended a 61 yard push. Patton again converted.

Score by quarters:

Kentucky	0	14	7	7	—28
Georgia Tech	7	0	0	7	—14

Winnsboro Wildcats Trounce Farmerville

Farmerville, La., Oct. 28—(Special)—The Winnsboro Wildcats defeated Farmerville 42 to 6 here Friday night, as James McGraw blocked and recovered a punt in the Farmer end zone for a safety and Tallaferro ran a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown.

Winnsboro turned loose in the third quarter as Renfrown, Eugene Southern and John Lowry scored. Southern took a pass from Franklin in the end zone to score. Steve Thompson made the only extra point gleaned from the three touchdowns.

Phillip Cobb, breaking over the line from the Farmerville two, made the final touchdown and Billy Smith cleared the extra point Farmerville scored on a pass in the second quarter.

King Ranch's Better Self was third, with Greentree Stable's One Hitter fourth in the field of 10. The time of 2:43 4-5 was one full second off the track record.

Greek Ship, an entry with Sunglow, returned $4, $2.60 and $2.30. Palestinian, second choice, paid $3.70 and $3.20, and Better Self, $4.90.

All-Conquering Tigers Smash Ivy League Rival, 27 To 0

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Princeton's deceptive single - wing attack, revolving around Dick Kazmaier, struck for two touchdowns in the first half today to give Cornell its first defeat of the season, 27 to 0. The all-conquering Tigers won their fifth game of the year.

Kazmaier scored two Princeton touchdowns — the second on a 70-yard run — threw passes, kicked mightily when the Tigers got in trouble and generally made himself a nuisance to the Cornell defense.

But the crowd of 37,500, largest ever to witness a Princeton-Cornell game, saw it as a team victory rather than an individual triumph. Big Jack Davison, who plunged for the third score, was a constant threat on the tricky Tiger buck lateral plays. George Chandler and pass-catcher Ed Reed shared the offensive honors, but it was the Princeton line that made the big difference.

Offensively, the Tigers outmanned and outcharged their opponents. The defense, with Brad Glass and Dave Hickock in the key roles, stopped everything Cornell had to offer except some of Rocco Calvo's short passes.

This one-sided triumph over a team that had been rated tenth in the nation in the Associated Press poll, put Princeton on top of the Ivy League heap. It was the Tigers' ninth straight victory over two seasons.

Score by quarters:

Princeton	7	6	0	14	—27

Lions Point For Jackets; Bengals Awaiting Bulldogs

OUACHITA, BYRD TANGLE FRIDAY IN HOMECOMING

Neville Has Saturday Night Date Here With Baton Rouge High

The Twin Cities have two top-notch prep football attractions on tap for next weekend with the Ouachita Parish High School Lions celebrating homecoming here Friday night against the Byrd High School Yellow Jackets of Shreveport, and the Tigers of Neville High School facing the power of the Baton Rouge High School Bulldogs on Saturday night.

Coach Jim Hodgins has expressed hope of having his crippled squad, helped by an open date the past week, back in good shape for the Yellow Jacket visit, and at the last count only Quarterback Billy Ray Short was still listed as a doubtful starter.

Return to form of half a dozen standouts, including Right Halfback Benny Franklin who hasn't seen action in a month because of an injury at Alexandria against Bolton has given the Lions a big lift.

In addition to its big attraction as Ouachita homecoming, the Lions will be going all out for victory in an effort to pull out of the North Louisiana Class AA cellar. Byrd was soundly thrashed Friday night by Haynesville, 49 to 12, and the Ouachita forces see some hope of also turning the Jackets, state champions last year, into a rout.

The Neville outfit will be facing a big dose of trouble when they go against the charges of "Butch" Helveston and Charlie Gilbert whose plenty tough Bulldogs blasted the potent Sulphur Tornadoes, 14 to 13, Friday night. Sulphur had beaten a strong Lake Charles club, 41 to 6, the week before.

Bobby Baker, son of Bab Baker who was an outstanding passer and runner with Louisiana Tech's undefeated 1931 team, quarterbacks the Baton Rouge club and is an efficient passer and ball handler. He has top-notch receivers and a huge line in front of him.

Realizing his Tigers will probable be meeting one of their toughest foes of the season, Coach Bill Ruple last night declared: "We'll have to play a much better brand of ball than we showed against Ruston a week ago if our boys intend to stay in the park with the hard running Baton Rouge team. Every back with the Bulldogs is capable of going all the way with the slightest break, and we're going to have to go all out to stop them."

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 28—(AP)—The Bruins of U.C.L.A. proved that a good defense can be the best offense today as they turned a pass interception and a blocked punt into touchdowns and defeated Purdue, 20-6.

A couple of Cub sophomores, Halfback Ted Narleski and Center Bob Moonan, worried the Purdue club to point of complete frustration as it piled up first downs that didn't pay off.

Purdue won all the statistics except punting in the uphill battle after U.C.L.A.'s first two touchdowns. But the 220-pound Moonan methodically made the tackles that counted and Narleski scored the third U.C.L.A. touchdown that sealed the game.

Byrd Punches Ole Miss Past T. C. U.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 28—(AP)—Little Rocky Byrd, the smallest man on the field, passed Mississippi to a 19-7 victory over the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian here today.

After spotting the Texans an early touchdown, Ole Miss came back on the accurate arm of the 168 - pound quarterback and the bulldozing runs of big John Dottley. The Rebels carved out two scores of their own and went ahead 12-7 by midway of the second period.

The third and final Mississippi score was made by guard Bill Watson, who intercepted a T.C.U. pass on his 30 and lumbered all the way to pay dirt behind good blocking.

The heralded T.C.U. passing attack was bottled and powerful Mississippi linemen made it rough on the Quarterback Dexter Bassinger, who did most of the flinging.

The Texans racked up their only score in the first five minutes of play. It was set up by the passing and running of Bassinger and the lunges of fullback Jim Amburg.

One minute later, Mississippi retaliated on a 10-yard touchdown pass play executed by Byrd and End Bill Stribling. Byrd's aerial, a 30-yard job, was tucked away by Stribling on the T.C.U. 30. Jimmy Lear's try for the extra point failed.

FERRIDAY RALLY NIPS NEWELLTON

Bulldogs Come From Behind To Take Battle With Bears 13 To 6

Ferriday, La., Oct. 38—Ferriday High School's crippled but never-say-die Bulldogs pulled one out of the fire here Friday night as they fought from behind to overcome and defeat a surprisingly tough Newellton Bear eleven, 13 to 6.

Playing without the services of their all conference quarterback Charles Albert Massey, and struggling along with several ailing linemen, Coach Loomis' fighting Bulldogs nevertheless displayed championship caliber in their game with the Bears.

The first quarter ended in a scoreless deadlock, but the Bears soon changed that. After gaining possession of the pigskin on Ferriday's 31, Newellton moved over the double stripe with sharp thrusts at the Bulldogs forward wall.

Wood, a halfback, smashed over from two yards out to climax the drive, and Newellton led 6 to 0 when the extra point attempt failed. That's the way the score stood at intermission.

With three second string backs sparking the offensive, Ferriday's Bulldogs battled back to score early in the third quarter. The sustained drive started from their own 39, and Halfback Alvin Everhart thrilled the home town fans with a scoring plunge from one yard out after Halfback Fredrick Stewart had rounded end to put the ball there. Stewart's run was good for 15 yards. McNew hit Martello in the end zone for the extra point that looked mighty big as Ferriday moved ahead 7 to 6 at the end of the third period.

With fancy running David Cuthbertston went 51 yards in the final quarter as Ferriday added an insurance touchdown in a drive that saw them go 91 yards in two plays. Cuthberston's run was a remarkable one in as much as it seemed that several times Newellton tacklers surely had him.

Weiss Guides Tar Heels Over William And Mary

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Dick Weiss's 78-yard touchdown run on the opening kickoff set the tempo today as North Carolina' Tar Heels smothered William and Mary, 40-7, in a Southern Conference football game.

A homecoming day crowd of 30,000 saw the victory - hungry Tar Heels score more points than they had in all their previous games this season.

The game was highlighted by long touchdown runs. The longest was a 100-yard run by Wingback Bob Gantt in the second period on a pass interception.

The fans had barely got seated good when Weiss took the kickoff on his own 22 and dashed straight-away 78 yards to score standing.

William and Mary's lone touchdown was set up when Halfback John Flanagan intercepted Weiss' pass and raced 70 yards before being hauled down by Dick Bunting.

Breakaway Boy

PARILLI GUIDES WILDCATS OVER JACKETS, 28-14

By Sterling Slappey

Atlanta, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Babe Parilli, a ball hiding Houdini, scattered Georgia Tech with short, flashing passes, then ordered Kentucky's line breaking brigade into the breach as Kentucky won today, 28-14, to remain unbeaten.

The victory for the fourth ranking team in the nation was No. 7 and by far Kentucky's most impressive. The Wildcats were a seven or eight point pick to win and most of the 37,000 fans considered team vastly underrated.

Kentucky came to Atlanta feeling the sting of criticism for a slightly mild schedule and the sting of criticism for a slightly mild schedule and the Wildcats were out to demolish Tech. The Wildcats even tried a field goal from their 27 in the fourth quarter although they were leading 21-7 at the time.

What parilli was to the offense, Big Bob Gain was to the defense. On approximately three out of five Tech plays, All-America candidate Gain charger for into Tech's secondary and often ended the rush with a lard, low tackle. Gain's performance was one of the great games for a tackle ever played on Tech's Grant field.

Parilli had a fleet of nine backs to direct. Bill Leskovar, 10th ranking runner at a major college, took turns with Shorty Jamerson, Emory Clark and Clayton Webb at punching Tech's line into bits.

Tech opened the game by racking the Wildcats on their heels and running them down. The great play of the underdogs paid off with the first score. Quarterback Darrell Crawford shot a fast pass to Bob McCoy from Kentucky's 21 to the 15 and McCoy went across. Red Patton's kick was good.

Throughout the remainder of the game, however, the big play was Kentucky's. Gain and Parilli converted the Wildcats from a toothless bunch into a fast charging outfit which smothered Tech.

Where Tech got its first opportunity to score after Leskovar fumbled on the 25, Kentucky got its first chance after blocking a batted down Patton's punt and also recovered on Tech's 18. In two plays Clayton Webb scored from the eight. Gain kicked the point.

As the second quarter was dying Kentucky smashed upfield from its 20 and scored in 10 plays. Parilli tossed a pass to Harry James who crossed. The play carried from the eight and Gain made the conversion.

In the second half Kentucky scored two touchdowns and Tech one. Jamerson cut through a Giant gap in Tech's line in the third quarter and dashed 46 yards for a touchdown. Gain converted for the third of four times. The fine run followed an interception of a Carrell Crawford pass by Dom Fucci.

Kentucky's final touchdown was on anothr Parill pass. The Babe shot from Tech's 20 to Fucci in the end zone in the final quarter.

Six plays later Tech partially got itself back into the game when Chappell Rhino cut out around end and kept going for 36 yards and the last touchdown. Rhino's run ended a 61 yard push. Patton again converted.

Score by quarters:

Kentucky	0	14	7	7	—28
Georgia Tech	7	0	0	7	—14

Winnsboro Wildcats Trounce Farmerville

Farmerville, La., Oct. 28—(Special)—The Winnsboro Wildcats defeated Farmerville 42 to 6 here Friday night, as James McGraw blocked and recovered a punt in the Farmer end zone for a safety and Taliaferro ran a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown.

Winnsboro turned loose in the third quarter as Renfrown, Eugene Southern and John Lowry scored. Southern took a pass from Franklin in the end zone to score. Steve Thompson made the only extra point gleaned from the three touchdowns.

Phillip Cobb, breaking over the line from the Farmerville two, made the final touchdown and Billy Smith cleared the extra point Farmerville scored on a pass in the second quarter.

BACK AND FORTH

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP)—A Virginia team that twice saw early leads wiped out rolled 85 yards for a fourth period touchdown today to nip West Virginia University's Mountaineers 28-21.

King Ranch's Better Self was third, with Greentree Stable's One Hitter fourth in the field of 10. The time of 2:43 4-5 was one full second off the track record.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Princeton's deceptive single - wing attack, revolving around Dick Kazmaier, struck for two touchdowns in the first half today to give Cornell its first defeat of the season, 27 to 0. The all-conquering Tigers won their fifth game of the year.

Kazmaier scored two Princeton touchdowns — the second on a 70-yard run — threw passes, kicked mightily when the Tigers got in trouble and generally made himself a nuisance to the Cornell defense.

But the crowd of 37,500, largest ever to witness a Princeton-Cornell game, saw it as a team victory rather than an individual triumph. Big Jack Davison, who plunged for the third score, was a constant threat on the tricky Tiger buck lateral plays. George Chandler and pass-catcher Ed Reed shared the offensive honors, but it was the Princeton line that made the big difference.

Offensively, the Tigers outmanned and outcharged their opponents. The defense, with Brad Glass and Dave Hickock in the key roles, stopped everything Cornell had to offer except some of Rocco Calvo's short passes.

This one-sided triumph over a team that had been rated tenth in the nation in the Associated Press poll, put Princeton on top of the Ivy League heap. It was the Tigers' ninth straight victory over two seasons.

Score by quarters:

OUACHITA, BYRD TANGLE FRIDAY IN HOMECOMING

Neville Has Saturday Night Date Here With Baton Rouge High

The Twin Cities have two top-notch prep football attractions on tap for next weekend with the Ouachita Parish High School Lions celebrating homecoming here Friday night against the Byrd High School Yellow Jackets of Shreveport, and the Tigers of Neville High School facing the power of the Baton Rouge High School Bulldogs on Saturday night.

Coach Jim Hodgins has expressed hope of having his crippled squad, helped by an open date the past week, back in good shape for the Yellow Jacket visit, and at the last count only Quarterback Billy Ray Short was still listed as a doubtful starter.

Return to form of half a dozen standouts, including Right Halfback Benny Franklin who hasn't seen action in a month because of an injury at Alexandria against Bolton has given the Lions a big lift.

In addition to its big attraction as Ouachita homecoming, the Lions will be going all out for victory in an effort to pull out of the North Louisiana Class AA cellar. Byrd was soundly thrashed Friday night by Haynesville, 49 to 12, and the Ouachita forces see some hope of also turning the Jackets, state champions last year, into a rout.

The Neville outfit will be facing a big dose of trouble when they go against the charges of "Butch" Helveston and Charlie Gilbert whose plenty tough Bulldogs blasted the potent Sulphur Tornadoes, 14 to 13, Friday night. Sulphur had beaten a strong Lake Charles club, 41 to 6, the week before.

Bobby Baker, son of Bab Baker who was an outstanding passer and runner with Louisiana Tech's undefeated 1931 team, quarterbacks the Baton Rouge club and is an efficient passer and ball handler. He has top-notch receivers and a huge line in front of him.

Realizing his Tigers will probable be meeting one of their toughest foes of the season, Coach Bill Ruple last night declared: "We'll have to play a much better brand of ball than we showed against Ruston a week ago if our boys intend to stay in the park with the hard running Baton Rouge team. Every back with the Bulldogs is capable of going all the way with the slightest break, and we're going to have to go all out to stop them."

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 28—(AP)—The Bruins of U.C.L.A. proved that a good defense can be the best offense today as they turned a pass interception and a blocked punt into touchdowns and defeated Purdue, 20-6.

A couple of Cub sophomores, Halfback Ted Narleski and Center Bob Moonan, worried the Purdue club to point of complete frustration as it piled up first downs that didn't pay off.

Purdue won all the statistics except punting in the uphill battle after U.C.L.A.'s first two touchdowns. But the 220-pound Moonan methodically made the tackles that counted and Narleski scored the third U.C.L.A. touchdown that sealed the game.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 28—(AP)—Little Rocky Byrd, the smallest man on the field, passed Mississippi to a 19-7 victory over the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian here today.

After spotting the Texans an early touchdown, Ole Miss came back on the accurate arm of the 168 - pound quarterback and the bulldozing runs of big John Dottley. The Rebels carved out two scores of their own and went ahead 12-7 by midway of the second period.

The third and final Mississippi score was made by guard Bill Watson, who intercepted a T.C.U. pass on his 30 and lumbered all the way to pay dirt behind good blocking.

The heralded T.C.U. passing attack was bottled and powerful Mississippi linemen made it rough on the Quarterback Dexter Bassinger, who did most of the flinging.

The Texans racked up their only score in the first five minutes of play. It was set up by the passing and running of Bassinger and the lunges of fullback Jim Amburg.

One minute later, Mississippi retaliated on a 10-yard touchdown pass play executed by Byrd and End Bill Stribling. Byrd's aerial, a 30-yard job, was tucked away by Stribling on the T.C.U. 30. Jimmy Lear's try for the extra point failed.

FERRIDAY RALLY NIPS NEWELLTON

Bulldogs Come From Behind To Take Battle With Bears 13 To 6

Ferriday, La., Oct. 38—Ferriday High School's crippled but never-say-die Bulldogs pulled one out of the fire here Friday night as they fought from behind to overcome and defeat a surprisingly tough Newellton Bear eleven, 13 to 6.

Playing without the services of their all conference quarterback Charles Albert Massey, and struggling along with several ailing linemen, Coach Loomis' fighting Bulldogs nevertheless displayed championship caliber in their game with the Bears.

The first quarter ended in a scoreless deadlock, but the Bears soon changed that. After gaining possession of the pigskin on Ferriday's 31, Newellton moved over the double stripe with sharp thrusts at the Bulldogs forward wall.

Wood, a halfback, smashed over from two yards out to climax the drive, and Newellton led 6 to 0 when the extra point attempt failed. That's the way the score stood at intermission.

With three second string backs sparking the offensive, Ferriday's Bulldogs battled back to score early in the third quarter. The sustained drive started from their own 39, and Halfback Alvin Everhart thrilled the home town fans with a scoring plunge from one yard out after Halfback Fredrick Stewart had rounded end to put the ball there. Stewart's run was good for 15 yards. McNew hit Martello in the end zone for the extra point that looked mighty big as Ferriday moved ahead 7 to 6 at the end of the third period.

With fancy running David Cuthbertston went 51 yards in the final quarter as Ferriday added an insurance touchdown in a drive that saw them go 91 yards in two plays. Cuthberston's run was a remarkable one in as much as it seemed that several times Newellton tacklers surely had him.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Dick Weiss's 78-yard touchdown run on the opening kickoff set the tempo today as North Carolina's Tar Heels smothered William and Mary, 40-7, in a Southern Conference football game.

A homecoming day crowd of 30,000 saw the victory - hungry Tar Heels score more points than they had in all their previous games this season.

The game was highlighted by long touchdown runs. The longest was a 100-yard run by Wingback Bob Gantt in the second period on a pass interception.

The fans had barely got seated good when Weiss took the kickoff on his own 22 and dashed straight-away 78 yards to score standing.

William and Mary's lone touchdown was set up when Halfback John Flanagan intercepted Weiss' pass and raced 70 yards before being hauled down by Dick Bunting.

Breakaway Boy

TECH WINS FROM LOUISIANA COLLEGE, 21 - 9

Canines Improve Standings In Gulf States Conference Race

Ruston, La. Oct. 28.—(Special)—After trailing Louisiana College's Wildcats 9-7 deep in the fourth quarter, the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs unleashed a powerful offensive in the waning minutes to clinch a 21-8 victory here Saturday night.

The triumph gave the Techmen further advancement in the Gulf States Conference race, as the Bulldogs now have two wins and no defeats in the league. The Techsters previously beat the Northwestern State Demons, 15-7, in their only other circuit clash of the season.

For a while Saturday night, it appeared that the Wildcats might break a 13-year record by trimming a Louisiana Tech team. Louisiana College last licked the Bulldogs in 1937 by a score of 13-12.

Tech totaled 15 first downs and Louisiana College nine.

Stands on both sides of the field were well packed with spectators who took advantage of warm weather to see the game.

The Wildcats swung into the lead with a field goal early in the opening quarter, with Jerry McKown booting the ball over from the eight-yard line. The setup originated after Chester Burns intercepted a pass from Tech's Joe Rabb on the 50 and ran it back to the 41. Harold Garrett, on a hand off from McKown, tore through to the 21. Lavelle Thomas, McKown and Garrett moved on to the scoring position at the eight-yard mark.

Receiving a Wildcat punt on their 39, the Techsters seemed destined to draw blood in the second period when a sustained drive with Gene Knecht and Rabb in stellar roles, carried them to the visitors 10. But a fumble by Rabb turned the tide as Louisiana College recovered on the 15 and eventually punted out to the Cats 45.

The Bulldogs, receiving the opening kickoff of the second half scored a touchdown in a continuous drive. Rabb caught the kick on the seven and returned it to his 39. Arnold Mathews plowed to the Cat's 43, after which a pass from Rabb to Gerald Mardis placed the Techmen on the 23. Rabb sped to the 13. Then to the seven and then across the goal line. Ed Michael converted the extra point from placement.

The Wildcats soon forged ahead again, when Walter Brister passed from the seven to Bernard Callendar who caught the ball in the end zone. McKowns attempted kick from placement was blocked but the Pineville eleven took a lead of 9-7.

In a series of five first downs the Techmen culminated a 76 - yard march in the fourth stanza to score another touchdown. Jerry Alexander helped to get the movement under way with a 16 - yard dash to the Cat 39. From there, Gene Knecht handled the brunt of the ball carrying and finally plunged over from the one yard spot. Michael booted the extra point, to change the lead again to Tech's favor by a score of 14-9.

Kenecht split the middle of the line on a 51-yard sprint to count again later in the final quarter and Michael collected the extra point from placement.

Miami Steams Past Pitt By 28-0 Score

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Two youngsters from nearby McKeesport evidently thought the University of Pittsburgh's homecoming game today was meant for them as they put on a smooth passing display to lead the University of Miami to its fifth 1950 victory, 28-0.

A crowd of 24,537 saw the contest. An estimated 5,000 of the fans were Miami rooters who came from McKeesport to cheer for the numerous hometowners with Miami.

The whip-like arm of Quarterback Jack Hackett and the canny catching of fellow townsman Ed Lutes accounted for two of Miami's scoring plays. Jackett connected for 16 completions in 26 pass attempts.

Score by quarters:

Miami	0	7	7	14	—28

Underdog Minnesota Gets 7 To 7 Tie With Michigan

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Minnesota's football team, fighting mad after four straight defeats, battled the Michigan Wolverines to a 7-7 tie in a Big Ten football game before 60,187 today.

Time after time the Gophers thwarted what appeared to be Michigan scoring marches. Their near goal line stands were somewhat reminescent of more powerful Gopher teams of past years.

It wasn't until late in the third period that Michigan was able to send Fullback Don Dufek over from the one - yard line after passes had worked the ball downfield.

That added fuel to the Gopher's burning irritation. They battled Michigan to a standstill in the early minutes of the fourth period.

Playing mostly in Michigan territory, the Gophers had one drive fizzle out before they could uncork a pass, Fullback George Hudak to Darrel Cochran, for their touchdown. Fullback Dave Skrien kicked the tying point.

The tie game was a surprise to the experts who had predicted a Wolverine victory by at least three touchdowns.

SOONERS MARK UP 26TH IN ROW

Oklahoma, third ranked team in the country in the Associated Press poll, did it with a 20-7 victory over stubborn Iowa State.

The Sooners haven't known what it is to lose since Santa Clara upset them 20-17 in the first game of the 1948 season.

Weeks sneaked out from under that curtain long enough to throw a 30-yard touchdown pass to Jim Doran, ace Iowa State receiver, in the last period. That was Iowa State's only score. It came with Oklahoma safely in front 20-0.

Oklahoma spread its scoring through the first, second and fourth periods. The Sooners went 82 yards for their first touchdown that came on a six-yard dash by Sophomore Billy Vessels. They went 76 yards in the second quarter in a spurt that was finished by Dick Heatly's two-yard punch.

The third Oklahoma touchdown was set up by a poor Iowa State punt. The Sooners needed only three plays for the score, Vessels getting the points with an 11-yard splurge.

Iowa State	0	0	0	7	— 7

Iowa State scoring: touchdown—Doran. Conversion—Clendening.

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 28.—(AP)—California's Golden Bears kept their record unblemished today by downing the spunky St. Mary's Gaels 40 to 25 before a crowd of 37,000.

After the intermission the Gaels outscored the Baer reserves four touchdowns to two, but it was strictly a matter of too little too late.

Florida Dumps Furman, 19-7, For Fifth Victory

Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Haywood Sullivan, a sophomore quarterback with every pass in the football book, threw enough of them to give Florida an unimpressive 19-7 victory over Furman today.

Sullivan heaved touchdowns to End Don Brown and Halfback Sam Oosterhoudt. He ran and passed most of the 90 yards Florida marched for its other touchdown.

While 18,000 fans could have asked for more, they had the sweet taste of victory for the fifth time in a season which hadn't promised one fifth as much when Coach Bob Woodruff took over and fielded a whole squad of sophomores and junior college transfers.

TWO PLATOON?

TECH WINS FROM LOUISIANA COLLEGE, 21 - 9

Ruston, La. Oct. 28.—(Special)—After trailing Louisiana College's Wildcats 9-7 deep in the fourth quarter, the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs unleashed a powerful offensive in the waning minutes to clinch a 21-8 victory here Saturday night.

The triumph gave the Techmen further advancement in the Gulf States Conference race, as the Bulldogs now have two wins and no defeats in the league. The Techsters previously beat the Northwestern State Demons, 15-7, in their only other circuit clash of the season.

For a while Saturday night, it appeared that the Wildcats might break a 13-year record by trimming a Louisiana Tech team. Louisiana College last licked the Bulldogs in 1937 by a score of 13-12.

Tech totaled 15 first downs and Louisiana College nine.

Stands on both sides of the field were well packed with spectators who took advantage of warm weather to see the game.

The Wildcats swung into the lead with a field goal early in the opening quarter, with Jerry McKown booting the ball over from the eight-yard line. The setup originated after Chester Burns intercepted a pass from Tech's Joe Rabb on the 50 and ran it back to the 41. Harold Garrett, on a hand off from McKown, tore through to the 21. Lavelle Thomas, McKown and Garrett moved on to the scoring position at the eight-yard mark.

Receiving a Wildcat punt on their 39, the Techsters seemed destined to draw blood in the second period when a sustained drive with Gene Knecht and Rabb in stellar roles, carried them to the visitors 10. But a fumble by Rabb turned the tide as Louisiana College recovered on the 15 and eventually punted out to the Cats 45.

The Bulldogs, receiving the opening kickoff of the second half scored a touchdown in a continuous drive. Rabb caught the kick on the seven and returned it to his 39. Arnold Mathews plowed to the Cat's 43, after which a pass from Rabb to Gerald Mardis placed the Techmen on the 23. Rabb sped to the 13. Then to the seven and then across the goal line. Ed Michael converted the extra point from placement.

The Wildcats soon forged ahead again, when Walter Brister passed from the seven to Bernard Callendar who caught the ball in the end zone. McKowns attempted kick from placement was blocked but the Pineville eleven took a lead of 9-7.

In a series of five first downs the Techmen culminated a 76 - yard march in the fourth stanza to score another touchdown. Jerry Alexander helped to get the movement under way with a 16 - yard dash to the Cat 39. From there, Gene Knecht handled the brunt of the ball carrying and finally plunged over from the one yard spot. Michael booted the extra point, to change the lead again to Tech's favor by a score of 14-9.

Kenecht split the middle of the line on a 51-yard sprint to count again later in the final quarter and Michael collected the extra point from placement.

Miami Steams Past Pitt By 28-0 Score

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Two youngsters from nearby McKeesport evidently thought the University of Pittsburgh's homecoming game today was meant for them as they put on a smooth passing display to lead the University of Miami to its fifth 1950 victory, 28-0.

A crowd of 24,537 saw the contest. An estimated 5,000 of the fans were Miami rooters who came from McKeesport to cheer for the numerous hometowners with Miami.

The whip-like arm of Quarterback Jack Hackett and the canny catching of fellow townsman Ed Lutes accounted for two of Miami's scoring plays. Jackett connected for 16 completions in 26 pass attempts.

Score by quarters:

Miami	0	7	7	14	—28

Underdog Minnesota Gets 7 To 7 Tie With Michigan

Time after time the Gophers thwarted what appeared to be Michigan scoring marches. Their near goal line stands were somewhat reminescent of more powerful Gopher teams of past years.

It wasn't until late in the third period that Michigan was able to send Fullback Don Dufek over from the one - yard line after passes had worked the ball downfield.

That added fuel to the Gopher's burning irritation. They battled Michigan to a standstill in the early minutes of the fourth period.

Playing mostly in Michigan territory, the Gophers had one drive fizzle out before they could uncork a pass. Fullback George Hudak to Darrel Cochran, for their touchdown. Fullback Dave Skrien kicked the tying point.

The tie game was a surprise to the experts who had predicted a Wolverine victory by at least three touchdowns.

SOONERS MARK UP 26TH IN ROW

Oklahoma, third ranked team in the country in the Associated Press poll, did it with a 20-7 victory over stubborn Iowa State.

The Sooners haven't known what it is to lose since Santa Clara upset them 20-17 in the first game of the 1948 season.

Weeks sneaked out from under that curtain long enough to throw a 30-yard touchdown pass to Jim Doran, ace Iowa State receiver, in the last period. That was Iowa State's only score. It came with Oklahoma safely in front 20-0.

Oklahoma spread its scoring through the first, second and fourth periods. The Sooners went 82 yards for their first touchdown that came on a six-yard dash by Sophomore Billy Vessels. They went 76 yards in the second quarter in a spurt that was finished by Dick Heatly's two-yard purch.

The third Oklahoma touchdown was set up by a poor Iowa State punt. The Sooners needed only three plays for the score, Vessels getting the points with an 11-yard splurge.

Iowa State	0	0	0	7	— 7

Oklahoma scoring: touchdowns—Vessels 2, Heatly. Conversions—McPhail 2.

Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 28.—(AP)—California's Golden Bears kept their record unblemished today by downing the spunky St. Mary's Gaels 40 to 25 before a crowd of 37,000.

After the intermission the Gaels outscored the Baer reserves four touchdowns to two, but it was strictly a matter of too little too late.

Ground Assault Of Illinois Breaks Up Indiana Passes

After teaming with Ronnie Clark to lead the Illini's crushing ground assault to a 7-0 halftime edge, Karras cracked through the middle and streaked 67 yards in the third period.

Score by quarters:

Illinois	7	0	13	0	—20

Florida Dumps Furman, 19-7, For Fifth Victory

Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Haywood Sullivan, a sophomore quarterback with every pass in the football book, threw enough of them to give Florida an unimpressive 19-7 victory over Furman today.

Sullivan heaved touchdowns to End Don Brown and Halfback Sam Oosterhoudt. He ran and passed most of the 90 yards Florida marched for its other touchdown.

While 18,000 fans could have asked for more, they had the sweet taste of victory for the fifth time in a season which hadn't promised one fifth as much when Coach Bob Woodruff took over and fielded a whole squad of sophomores and junior college transfers.

TWO PLATOONS

Black Knights Of Hudson Keep String Intact With 34 0 Victory

New York, Oct. 28. (AP)— The mighty Army juggernaut started slowly today but picked up speed as the afternoon progressed and flattened a plucky Columbia team 34 to 0, to keep intact its record of 25 straight games without a defeat.

Toward the end Coach Earl Blaik threw Cadet reserves into the game freely to hold down the score. There was no estimating the final count if the Army mentor had wished to exhibit his muscles.

In particular, the outclassed Lions were spared toward the end the unequal task of trying to hold off a pair of rampaging army backs named Al Pollard and Vic Pollock. Between them they scored four of their team's five touchdowns.

Pollard and Pollock are listed as "second string" in the Army football manuel, but the terrific job of ball-carrying they did today just about convinced the 30,000 spectators that somebody is being kidded.

An unexpectedly stout Columbia defense had stopped Army's "first team" with shocking firmness for most of the opening quarter. And then Pollard, the 190-pound yearling fullback, went in. In one beautiful, bruising run the coast comet raced 67 yards for Army's opening score only seven seconds before the period ended. That opened the way for the avalanche.

Score by periods:

By Rex Thomas

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 28.—(AP)— A surging Tulane Green Wave that started slow but grew steadily fiercer swept Auburn's Tigers to their sixth loss in a row here today, 28-0.

A crowd of 17,000 fans who watched the game under warm, sunny skies saw Tulane held scoreless in the first period but never thereafter.

They added two more in the third period and another in the fourth.

Auburn back Bill Tucker gave the visitors their first scoring chance when his pitch-out intended for Bill Davis misfired and dropped to the ground on the Tigers five-yard line.

Kinek plunged over in three tries and Tommy Comeaux made the conversion good, the first of four per cent placements for him.

Taking the ball on its own 10 at the start of the third quarter, Tulane drove 90 yards downfield for another six pointer, Waggoner crossing the line after a 19-yard spring behind superb blocking.

The Tigers tried three running plays after the kickoff but had to punt, and again the Greenies started a touchdown march that travelled 63 yards. End Ferdie Kibodeaux went over on a four-yard pass from back Bill Bonar.

Tiger Quarterback Allan Parks dropped the ball in the fourth period to give Coach Henry Frnka's Wave its final scoring opportunity. Recovering the ball on Auburn's 40, Tulane drove right on downfield, Halfback Vernon Van Meter going over from the three.

Auburn gained only one yard net in rushing and 34 yards on passes, compared with 240 for the Greenies on ground plays and 102 in the air. The Tigers got only eight first downs to 18 for the visitors.

Waggoner, who went into the game with a rushing average of nine yards, luged the ball 15 times today for 120 yards.

Score by periods:

Tulane	0	7	14	7	—28

Texas Zooms Into Southwest Title Picture With 35-7 Defeat Of Rice

Stage Set For Meeting Between Longhorns, S. M. U. Next Saturday

By Max B. Skeleton

Houston, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Texas methodically cashed in on two first quarter Rice Institute mistakes today and then breezed to a 35 to 7 Southwest Conference victory before a sellout crowd of 70,000.

The Texas victory sets the stage for next week's all - important conference tilt at Austin, with the Steers taking on perfect record Southern Methodist, the nation's number 1 team in this week's Associated Press poll.

Texas, with only a 13-14 loss against Oklahoma marring its record, ranked number 7. S. M. U. last week beat Rice, 42 to 21.

The Rice touchdown that came 11 seconds before the half was the only time the Owls threatened after Texas took advantage of the first quarter mistakes — a fourth down gamble that failed and a pass interception — and then ran its lead to 21-0 with a 65-yard second period touchdown drive.

Two second half Longhorn scores resulted from a 68 yard drive and Guard Don Menasco's recovery of a blocked punt in the Rice end zone after Texas had lost the ball on downs on the 2.

Rice mixed running and passing for its lone score. Reserve Quarterback Harmon Carswell passed to End Bill Howton for the final 20 yards of the 66-yard march. Billy Wright converted.

Hard charging Fullback Byron Townsend scored twice on short plunges for Texes, while Quarterback Be Tompkins dove over from the 2 for one score and completed a 5-yard pass play to End Ben Procter for another.

Thompkins also made good on all five Texas extra point attempts. It was Sophomore Guard Harley Sewell who blocked Sonny Wyatt's quick kick in the Rice end zone and set up the end zone recovery by Menasco in the final period.

Score by quarters:

Texas	14	7	7	7	—35
Rice	0	7	0	0	— 7

Rice scoring: touchdown, Howton; Conversion, Wright.

COLGATE'S FOURTH WIN

Providence, R. I., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Colgate held off Brown's four-touchdown spurt in the fourth quarter and squeezed out a 35-34 victory today before less than 6,000 spectators. It was Colgate's fourth straight triumph, its longest streak since 1934.

PORKER MISTAKES HELP VANDERBILT

Commodores Squeeze Through For 14-13 Victory Over Arkansas

By Carl Bell

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Vanderbilt fashioned a two-touchdown lead on Arkansas' mistakes and then held on grimly to nip the Razorbacks 14-13, in a nerve-wracking intersectional football game here today.

With its vaunted aerial attack battled up almost completely, Vanderbilt showed little offense in the first half.

But the Commodores' Ted Kirkland pounced on the ball at the Arkansas 13 when the Razorbacks' Bob Cross touched but could not hold a 75-yard quick kick from the toe of Dean Davidson.

Jim Tabor crashed to the nine and Davidson went through the middle for a touchdown with a minute left in the first quarter.

Early in the third period, Arkansas' Tommy Britt dropped a punt on the Vandy 45 and Commodore Captain Russ Faulkinberry grabbed the ball.

On the next play Bill Wade, the nation's passing yardage leader, going into this game, had his only real throwing success of the afternoon. He lofted a long one. His favorite receiver, End Bucky Curtis, and Razorback Buddy Sutton went for it at the Arkansas 10. Curtis came down with it and stepped into the end zone.

Gordon McCarter converted for the second time and Vandy enjoyed an apparently comfortable 14-0 lead.

But then Arkansas junked its T attack and started operating for the first time this year from the widely - spread single wingback formation. In three plays the Porkers, who had moved well between the 30-yard lines in the first half but never threatened, roared 68 yards for a touchdown.

Jim Rinehart passed to Bill Jurney for 31 yards, swept left end for 25 and then went wide to the right for 12 and the score.

End Dick Walton broke through to block George Thomason's attempted kick for point.

Early in the fourth quarter, Rinehart faded from the Vanderbilt 27 and hit Halfback Buddy Rogers with a pass on the 18. Rogers sidestepped one Vanderbilt defender and outran another to the goal line. Tomason converted.

There still were 10 1-2 minutes left and Arkansas pitched away at the one-point difference most of that time. But Vanderbilt rose to the occasion and held the desperate Porkers for three downs at the Commodores' 25. Arkansas' chances slittered away as Pat Summerall missed a field goal attempt with 30 seconds remaining in the game.

The victory boosted the Commodores' season record to five wins against one loss. It was the fourth defeat in six outings for Arkansas.

Score by quarters:

Vanderbilt	7	0	7	0	—14
Arkansas	0	0	6	7	—13

Vanderbilt scoring: touchdowns, Davidson, Curtis; Conversions, McCarter 2.

Arkansas scoring: touchdowns, Rinehart, Rogers, Conversions, Thomason.

Washington And Lee Holds Favored Tennessee To 27-20 Triumph

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 28 —(AP)— Washington and Lee made a gallant bid to upset Tennessee today but three long scoring runs and a blocked kick gave the Vols a 27 to 20 victory.

The W. & L. Generals literally swept the favored Vols off their feet in every department except the scoring column. Two sensational runs by Halfback Bert Rechichar and an 83-yard scoring sprint by Quarterback Jimmy Hahn turned the tide in favor of the Vols.

Rechichar brought the listless crowd of 18,000 to its feet with a 100-yard scoring dash the first time Tennessee got the ball. He took Ray Leister's kick in the end zone and sprinted for the touchdown.

The run set a new Southeastern Conference record for punt returns, eclipsing by two yards the previous mark established by Mississippi's Ray Hapes in 1935.

The Vols packed all their scoring into an explosive first half. After Rechichar's spectacular sprint, Hahn got into the cast early in the second period when he took a kickoff and raced 83 yards for a six-pointer.

Rechichar wound up Tennessee's scoring by grabbing quarterback Dave Water's pass in midfield and racing down the sideline for the touchdown. Pat Shires converted for his third in four tries.

W. & L. marched 43 yards for its first score early in the second stanza. Fullback Walt Michaels, the game's leading individual ground gainer with 78 yards, rammed over from the two for the score.

After a fairly even scoreless third quarter, W. & L. turned two Tennessee fumbles into touchdowns in the fourth period.

Halfback Jim Stark recovered Paynes' fumble on Tennessee's 17 and in six plays the Generals punched over. Leister pounced on Charlie Holt's fumble in the end zone for the touchdown. The final tally came in the fading minutes of play when Michaels plunged one yard for his second six-pointer.

W. & L.	0	6	0	14	—20

The W. & L. Generals literally swept the favored Vols off their feet in every department except the scoring column. Two sensational runs by Halfback Bert Rechichar and an 83-yard scoring sprint by Quarterback Jimmy Hahn turned the tide in favor of the Vols.

Rechichar brought the listless crowd of 18,000 to its feet with a 100-yard scoring dash the first time Tennessee got the ball. He took Ray Leister's kick in the end zone and sprinted for the touchdown.

The run set a new Southeastern Conference record for punt returns, eclipsing by two yards the previous mark established by Mississippi's Ray Hapes in 1935.

The Vols packed all their scoring into an explosive first half. After Rechichar's spectacular sprint, Hahn got into the cast early in the second period when he took a kickoff and raced 83 yards for a six-pointer.

Rechichar wound up Tennessee's scoring by grabbing quarterback Dave Water's pass in midfield and racing down the sideline for the touchdown. Pat Shires converted for his third in four tries.

W. & L. marched 43 yards for its first score early in the second stanza. Fullback Walt Michaels, the game's leading individual ground gainer with 78 yards, rammed over from the two for the score.

After a fairly even scoreless third quarter, W. & L. turned two Tennessee fumbles into touchdowns in the fourth period.

Halfback Jim Stark recovered Paynes' fumble on Tennessee's 17 and in six plays the Generals punched over. Leister pounced on Charlie Holt's fumble in the end zone for the touchdown. The final tally came in the fading minutes of play when Michaels plunged one yard for his second six-pointer.

CHEMIST TESTIFIES IN MURDER TRIAL

Witness For State Claims Knockout Drops Found In Body Of Man

New Orleans, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A state witness who specializes as a chemist and toxicologist testified today he found knockout drops (chloral hydrate) in the exhumed body of Robert Dunn, Jr., Hashville contractor found dead in a French quarter night club here last New Year's day.

Hooberry was the first witness today in the trial of Carlo Quarteraro and Lucille Cotta who are charged jointly with murder in Dunn's death. The state is asking the death penalty for both defendants.

Quartararo owned the night club where Dunn was found dead the morning after he arrived in New Orleans for the Jan. 2 Sugar Bowl football game.

Hooberry testified he found the knockout drops — which the state contends caused death—in Dunn's body after it was exhumed.

"There must have been chloral hydrate," Hooberry said. "There probably was a large dose because of the amount still present when the specimen was turned over to me. Chloral hydrate decomposes rapidly once it is consumed."

Earlier when the witness was testifying as to his qualifications as a technical expert, he said he had attended Peabody College and Vanderbilt University.

Stanley produced telegrams which he said came from Peabody and Vanderbilt and stated that Hooberry was not known at either school.

The jury was removed from the courtroom while the attorneys argued the toxicologist's qualifications. Judge Oser ruled the deputy coroner was an expert witness.

Hooberry was the second state witness to testify regarding the knockout drops. Dr. W. J. Core, Nashville coroner's physician, said yesterday that Dunn died of a lethal dose of the drug and that there was no visible evidence that Dunn's death resulted from natural causes.

Tennessee State Police Sgt. T. G. Fite, who accompanied Dunn to New Orleans, testified that his (Fite's) money and valuables were missing when he awoke in the Latin quarter club on Jan. 1. Missing, he told the jury, were $170, a wrist watch, a $10 gold piece and a silver dollar. Fite said he wrote a check for $20 to pay a bill for $18.10 which he was told he owed in the place.

The officer testified that the last thing he remembered before falling asleep in the place was being in the company of two women.

Fite said he last saw Dunn in the bar of the Roosevelt Hotel several hours before Dunn was found dead in the Latin quarter club.

Collision On DeSiard Street Causes Damage

Early Saturday morning, an automobile driven by L. S. Heyer of Monroe went out of control on DeSiard street near North Second and collided with the store front of the Toggery causing some property damage.

The driver said that the car skidded on the pavement, which had been wet by the city sprinkler truck immediately before, when he started into DeSiard from North Second. There were no injuries.

Member Of Parliament Steamed Up Over Baths

Newcastle on Tyne, Eng., Oct. 28—(AP)—A lady member of Parliament is all steamed up over the bath situation in some hotels run by the British Railways.

She is Miss Irene Ward, Conservative M. P. for Tynemouth.

Miss Ward told the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs that she went into the government - run Great Northern Hotel at London's King's Cross Railway Station and was told that baths were for men only.

Miffed but determined, Miss Ward marched to one of the vacant bathrooms and proceeded to soak to her heart's content.

Later, she wrote the Chairman of the British Tax Commission, complaining that as a taxpayer she didn't feel like subsidizing men's baths.

"He wrote back a nice letter saying that if I put myself in the hands of the hotel management in the future I should be able to get a bath," she said, amid laughter.

"I wrote again," she said, "pointing out the principle I was pursuing and asking what would happen if any American tourist and his wife came to the hotel from the night sleeper and he could have a bath but she could not."

"And you know what Americans think of baths," she said.

CHEMIST TESTIFIES IN MURDER TRIAL

Witness For State Claims Knockout Drops Found In Body Of Man

New Orleans, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A state witness who specializes as a chemist and toxicologist testified today he found knockout drops (chloral hydrate) in the exhumed body of Robert Dunn, Jr., Hashville contractor found dead in a French quarter night club here last New Year's day.

Hooberry was the first witness today in the trial of Carlo Quarteraro and Lucille Cotta who are charged jointly with murder in Dunn's death. The state is asking the death penalty for both defendants.

Quartararo owned the night club where Dunn was found dead the morning after he arrived in New Orleans for the Jan. 2 Sugar Bowl football game.

Hooberry testified he found the knockout drops — which the state contends caused death—in Dunn's body after it was exhumed.

"There must have been chloral hydrate," Hooberry said. "There probably was a large dose because of the amount still present when the specimen was turned over to me. Chloral hydrate decomposes rapidly once it is consumed."

Defense attorneys challenged Hooberry's qualifications as an expert witness and attempted to have his testimony ruled as not expert.

Earlier when the witness was testifying as to his qualifications as a technical expert, he said he had attended Peabody College and Vanderbilt University.

Stanley produced telegrams which he said came from Peabody and Vanderbilt and stated that Hooberry was not known at either school.

The jury was removed from the courtroom while the attorneys argued the toxicologist's qualifications. Judge Oser ruled the deputy coroner was an expert witness.

Hooberry was the second state witness to testify regarding the knockout drops. Dr. W. J. Core, Nashville coroner's physician, said yesterday that Dunn died of a lethal dose of the drug and that there was no visible evidence that Dunn's death resulted from natural causes.

Tennessee State Police Sgt. T. G. Fite, who accompanied Dunn to New Orleans, testified that his (Fite's) money and valuables were missing when he awoke in the Latin quarter club on Jan. 1. Missing, he told the jury, were $170, a wrist watch, a $10 gold piece and a silver dollar. Fite said he wrote a check for $20 to pay a bill for $18.10 which he was told he owed in the place.

The officer testified that the last thing he remembered before falling asleep in the place was being in the company of two women.

Fite said he last saw Dunn in the bar of the Roosevelt Hotel several hours before Dunn was found dead in the Latin quarter club.

Collision On DeSiard Street Causes Damage

Early Saturday morning, an automobile driven by L. S. Heyer of Monroe went out of control on DeSiard street near North Second and collided with the store front of the Toggery causing some property damage.

The driver said that the car skidded on the pavement, which had been wet by the city sprinkler truck immediately before, when he started into DeSiard from North Second. There were no injuries.

Member Of Parliament Steamed Up Over Baths

Newcastle on Tyne, Eng., Oct. 28—(AP)—A lady member of Parliament is all steamed up over the bath situation in some hotels run by the British Railways.

Miss Ward told the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs that she went into the government - run Great Northern Hotel at London's King's Cross Railway Station and was told that baths were for men only.

Miffed but determined, Miss Ward marched to one of the vacant bathrooms and proceeded to soak to her heart's content.

Later, she wrote the Chairman of the British Tax Commission, complaining that as a taxpayer she didn't feel like subsidizing men's baths.

"He wrote back a nice letter saying that if I put myself in the hands of the hotel management in the future I should be able to get a bath," she said, amid laughter.

"I wrote again," she said, "pointing out the principle I was pursuing and asking what would happen if any American tourist and his wife came to the hotel from the night sleeper and he could have a bath but she could not."

"And you know what Americans think of baths," she said.

HOME OWNERS
You will like everything about this spacious home on a quiet shady street—everything from the gray carpeted living room to the flood-lighted barbecue pit in the back yard, made private by mas plantings of shrubs and trees.
The dining room is also carpeted and the separate breakfast room has a large built-in china cabinet with glass doors.
The bedrooms are extra large with ample closet space. One bedroom has a built-in desk arrangement any man will appreciate.
We could go ond and on, but you would still want to see this comfortable home with two floor furnaces, attic fan, ventilating kitchen fan, disappearing stairway, etc., etc.
The lot is 70 by 150 and the price is only $12,500. Already financed, no closing costs.

THE PERFECT LOCATION
FOR DISCRIMINATING
HOME OWNERS
You will like everything about this spacious home on a quiet shady street—everything from the gray carpeted living room to the flood-lighted barbecue pit in the back yard, made private by mas plantings of shrubs and trees.
The dining room is also carpeted and the separate breakfast room has a large built-in china cabinet with glass doors.
The bedrooms are extra large with ample closet space. One bedroom has a built-in desk arrangement any man will appreciate.

RAYVILLE BRIDE

Mrs. William Harrison Doughtie, formerly Miss Elsie Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Duncan of Rayville, whose marriage took place in Rayville October 12. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lois Benson Doughtie and the late Mr. John H. Doughtie, also of Rayville.

MISS ELSIE DUNCAN MARRIES WILLIAM HARRISON DOUGHTIE

The Methodist Church of Rayville was the scene of a beautiful wedding ceremony on Thursday, October 12, at seven o'clock, uniting in marriage Miss Elsie Duncan and William Harrison Doughtie. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Duncan of Rayville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lois Denson Doughtie and the late Mr. John H. Doughtie.

The Rev. Earl Emmerick was the officiating minister. Mrs. Will Calhoune, at the organ, beautifully rendered the traditional wedding marches and the following pre-nuptial music; "Loves Old Sweet Song," "O' Promise Me," and "One Alone." "Always," was played while Duprey ONeal Jr. and Carey ONeal, Jr. lighted the candles. "Clair-de-Lune" was played softly during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was a picture of loveliness in a gown of bridal white satin fashioned with net yoke embroidered in threads of silver. The bodice of satin was fastened in back with self covered buttons as were the long, close fitting sleeves which came to a point over the hands. The pointed basque was fastened to a full skirt, trimmed with pleated ruffles down the front and entirely around the long court train. Her finger tip veil, with small pleated ruffle framing the face, was caught to a coronet of tuberoses. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white Chrysanthemums and tuberoses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Robert Sale of this city, the bride's sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Dwayne Bowden of Thibodaux, a sister of the bride and the groom's sister, Miss Jean Doughtie. Junior bridesmaid was Mitsy Sale of this city, neice of the bride. The attendants wore dresses fashioned alike and were changeable taffeta, with tight basques, stiff Victorian collars and three-quarter length sleeves, full crownless hats, trimmed with pleated ruffles and velvet bows and each carried yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. The matron of honor wore a gown of autumn rose, the bridesmaids were in forest green and sage purple and the petite Junior bridesmaid was in orchid.

John Doughtie served his brother as best man. The groomsmen were Dwayne Bowden and Carey O'Neal. Ushers were L. Yancey, Dewey Baker and Malcolm Hutchison.

The bride's mother wore a lovely dress of cherry crepe. The mother of the groom was gowned in navy crepe. Both wore corsages of split carnations.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents was held immediately following the ceremony. Tall baskets of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums flanked the living room mantle and marked the place for the bridal party.

The bride's table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth and centered with gardenias and maiden hair fern, encircled with burning white tapers. At one end of the table, the beautiful tiered wedding cake, embossed in pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom was cut by the bride and groom and served to the guests by Miss Jackie Guynes and Mrs. Foster Jones, Jr. and Mrs. McConothy. Miss Nitsy Guynes presided over the crystal punch bowl. Miss Josephine Mendolia had charge of the bride's book. The lovely gifts were on display in the dining room.

The bride's bouquet was thrown and was caught by Miss Nitsy Guynes.

For their honeymoon to the Gulf Coast, the bride was lovely in a Chocolate brown suit, with pink blouse, hat and gloves and other accessories of brown. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

The bride is a graduate of Rayville High School. The groom is also a graduate of Rayville High School and attended Louisiana Tech at Ruston.

The couple will reside in Rayville.

Mrs. L. Johnson of Baskin was guest speaker when the Mangham P.-T. A. unit met for their regular meeting Oct. 24 in the school auditorium. Other guests included the Boy Scouts of Winnsboro, whose leader is the Rev. Bingston, and the Mangham School band whose director is Mr. Bennie Hixon.

The minutes of the Sept. 26 meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. John Holiness and were approved and accepted by the unit.

During the business session a room count was taken and Mrs. Theo Jones' 4th grade, Mrs. W. O. Jones' 3rd grade, and Mr. Rushing's 8th grade had the same number of parents represented. Mrs. Etier, room representative chairman, had the teachers use a number game to determine to whom the prize would be awarded. Mrs. W. O. Jones' 3rd grade won and was presented a potted plant.

Mrs. Joe Freund of Alto gave a report on the activity of the district meeting in Collingston Oct. 17.

Mrs. Johnson's topic for the evening was "Community Responsibility for Proper Development of Youth." She said in part, "We are very careful to select the best plot to plant seeds for a garden—we select a pattrn suitable for our needs and one to fit when making a dress. We should select a perfect pattern toward which to rear our children. Jesus was the only perfect human so it is only natural to choose Him as a pattern for the proper development of our youth. In Luke 2:52 we read "And Jesus increased in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man." Mentally in wisdom, physically in stature, spiritually with God and socially in favor with man."

The Boy Scouts gave their plan of work, the activity of their troop the games they used and in closing they gave in unison the scout motto, "Be Prepared." These boys make us realize the potentialities of our youth and create within the adults a desire to help.

The school band rendered two numbers. Miss Nancy Faye Holiness expressed appreciation in behalf of the band to the P.-T.A. for financial help given recently. After the last selection the band was called back for one more number, by an overwhelming applause from an appreciative audience.

The meeting was then adjourned.

Instructions Given For Handling And Sewing On Fabrics

"Sew right with the nap," says Mrs. Mildred Swift, from the agricultural extension department, "when sewing on pile fabrics such as velveteen, corduroy and velvet. Tricks in handling and sewing, as well as proper selection of pattern, bring lasting beauty and long wear to garments made from nap or pile fabrics."

The agent further states to choose patterns which are as simple as possible. Designs with a minimum of seams hidden by folds or soft pleats are best. Use darts and tucks sparingly; avoid center front seams. Top stitching is not too satisfactory on materials with nap.

Direction of the nap is absolutely essential when cutting. The question of whether the nap should go up or down is one of taste. The appearance of the luster and tone of the pile on the wearer is the determining factor. Stand before a mirror with the length of fabric draped so that the nap runs upward over one arm and downward over the other. Study the fabric and luster under the light. If you like a shimmering effect, turn the nap down. If you prefer the rich deep color of the pile, the direction of the nap should be turned up.

Lay the pattern pieces on the wrong side of fabric with all pieces following the chosen direction of nap. Be sure to place on the true grain of the fabric. Hold the pattern in place with slim sharp pins or needles. Make all pattern markings on the wrong side of the fabric with chalk or silk thread. It is best to baste materials having a nap. This will keep the fabric from creeping away from the presser and leaving puckered seams. Machine stitch with a fine needle, lengthening the stitch and using a loose tension. Use mercerized thread for velveteen and corduroy; silk thread for velvet.

Care after wearing will preserve the beauty of nap garments. Remove dust and lint with a soft brush after each wearing. Rain spots can usually be rubbed away with a small scrap of matching dampened fabric. Matting of the pile can be removed by frequent steaming.

CLAUDE HARRISON TOBACCO SPEAKER

Los Angeles, Oct. 28—(AP)—Claude Harrison, president of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors, told a regional convention yesterday that America is now consuming 400,000,000,000 cigarettes a year. That figures out to 2,667 roughly, for every man, woman and child—or 133 packs per year and 2½ per week.

"The industry is capable of producing double that quantity, too," Harrison, of Monroe, La., said, giving assurance that there is no shortage in sight. He says the industry has $1,500,000,000 worth of tobacco in storage.

Prominent New Orleans Woman Addresses Delta Rho Delta Sorority

Mrs. Rodney D. Toups Speaks On Volunteer Responsibility Of Women In The Community

Stability, understanding, dependability and sincerity were listed as the most important attributes to volunteer workers by Mrs. Rodney D. Toups, Louisiana state advisor on women's activities for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., and chairman of volunteer services of the New Orleans chapter of the American National Red Cross, in a speech delivered on Monday evening in the Cameo Room of the Virginia Hotel to members of the Delta Rho Delta business women's sorority.

The program of volunteer work has been accelerated during the war, although prior to World War II, only one or two groups had been serving in hospitals, etc. The average person used to regard such hospitals as institutions and stayed away from them, the speaker declared.

"After the war, General Bradley fell the need for community integration and set up the program of voluntary services, Mrs. Toups recalled. In the spring of 1946, he met with officers of six large national civic, service and welfare organizations, and from this meeting developed the present program of having volunteer advisory committees at each of the 140 veterans' hospitals' in the country."

"An orientation or indoctrination course of about 10 hours is held for volunteer workers and those who offer to do volunteer work are carefully screened before being admitted to the course." Self analysis is probably the best way for a prospective worker to determine if she would fit into this type of work.

A woman can serve as a volunteer under several different organizations, she noted. Many types of voluntary services are needed at the hospitals, according to Mrs. Toups. Women can serve in the library, recreation, entertainment, occupational therapy, physical therapy, music or social service programs. There are 100 different types of work open for volunteers.

The American business woman is portrayed as the sort of a woman who keeps her sense of humor no matter how tough the going and there are millions of American business women doing just that. Husbands are sometimes inclined to smile lightly at their wive's club activities. But actually, American women's organizations today know what they are doing and how to do it. Internationally, nationally, and locally they are carrying heavy responsibilities unselfishly in many fields.

"Life, if we make the most of it, is intense, abundant, engrossing, adventuresome, a continuous challenge and demands the best that we can give of ourselves—that of working hard and unselfishly through civic organizations or individually for others."

The following words of a letter from Dr. John J. Osborn, Children's Medical Service, Bellevue Hospital to the volunteers there is worth remembering: "The work you do with these children is as much medicine for them as if it came out of a battle. You can cure and keep well children no doctor can cure. I think of you as being as much a part of the prescription for the hospitalized child as penecillin or sulfa drug. So don't think you are here only to make children happy, though that is important, you are here to make children well."

The following members and guests were present to hear this outstanding speaker: Miss Bernice McCrary, Miss Lillian Glenn, Miss Sara Guy, Miss Dorothy Horton, Miss Ann Mickel, Mrs. Coralee Adams, Mrs. Cascille Golson, Miss Theresa Thomisee, Miss Marjorie Ewing, Miss Mary Elizabeth Stringer, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, Miss Bess Sharp, Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick, Miss Johnnie Floyd, Miss Mary Ann Ashford, Mrs. Bertha Patterson, Mrs. LeVerne Riddle, Mrs. Gladys Collins, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Stringer, Miss Mary Riser and Miss Freeda Mickel.

The Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico are estimated to be 200,000,000 years old and have not yet been completely explored. The deepest passage uncovered at present is 1150 feet under ground.

RAYVILLE BRIDE

Mrs. William Harrison Doughtie, formerly Miss Elsie Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Duncan of Rayville, whose marriage took place in Rayville October 12. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lois Benson Doughtie and the late Mr. John H. Doughtie, also of Rayville.

MISS ELSIE DUNCAN MARRIES WILLIAM HARRISON DOUGHTIE

The Methodist Church of Rayville was the scene of a beautiful wedding ceremony on Thursday, October 12, at seven o'clock, uniting in marriage Miss Elsie Duncan and William Harrison Doughtie. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Duncan of Rayville and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lois Denson Doughtie and the late Mr. John H. Doughtie.

Cathedral candles in floor candelabra and specimen chrysanthemums in tall baskets under an arch festooned with trailing southern smilax caught at intervals with butterfly bows of white satin ribbon formed a beautiful setting for the bridal party. The couple stood under a smaller vine entwined arch to exchange their vows. Butterfly bows of white satin ribbon were used as aisle markers for the family pews.

The Rev. Earl Emmerick was the officiating minister. Mrs. Will Calhoune, at the organ, beautifully rendered the traditional wedding marches and the following pre-nuptial music: "Loves Old Sweet Song," "O' Promise Me," and "One Alone." "Always," was played while Duprey ONeal Jr. and Carey ONeal, Jr. lighted the candles. "Clair-de-Lune" was played softly during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was a picture of loveliness in a gown of bridal white satin fashioned with net yoke embroidered in threads of silver. The bodice of satin was fastened in back with self covered buttons as were the long, close fitting sleeves which came to a point over the hands. The pointed basque was fastened to a full skirt, trimmed with pleated ruffles down the front and entirely around the long court train. Her finger tip veil, with small pleated ruffle framing the face, was caught to a coronet of tuberoses. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white Chrysanthemums and tuberoses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Robert Sale of this city, the bride's sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Dwayne Bowden of Thibodaux, a sister of the bride and the groom's sister, Miss Jean Doughtie. Junior bridesmaid was Mitsy Sale of this city, neice of the bride. The attendants wore dresses fashioned alike and were changeable taffeta, with tight basques, stiff Victorian collars and three-quarter length sleeves, full crownless hats, trimmed with pleated ruffles and velvet bows and each carried yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. The matron of honor or wore a gown of autumn rose, the bridesmaids were in forest green and sage purple and the petite Junior bridesmaid was in orchid.

John Doughtie served his brother as best man. The groomsmen were Dwayne Bowden and Carey O'Neal. Ushers were L. Yancey, Dewey Baker and Malcolm Hutchison.

The bride's mother wore a lovely dress of cherry crepe. The mother of the groom was gowned in navy crepe. Both wore corsages of split carnations.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents was held immediately following the ceremony. Tall baskets of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums flanked the living room mantle and marked the place for the bridal party.

The bride's table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth and centered with gardenias and maiden hair fern, encircled with burning white tapers. At one end of the table, the beautiful tiered wedding cake, embossed in pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom was cut by the bride and groom and served to the guests by Miss Jackie Guynes and Mrs. Foster Jones, Jr. and Mrs. McConothy. Miss Nitsy Guynes presided over the crystal punch bowl. Miss Josephine Mendolia had charge of the bride's book. The lovely gifts were on display in the dining room.

The bride's bouquet was thrown and was caught by Miss Nitsy Guynes.

For their honeymoon to the Gulf Coast, the bride was lovely in a Chocolate brown suit, with pink blouse, hat and gloves and other accessories of brown. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

The bride is a graduate of Rayville High School. The groom is also a graduate of Rayville High School and attended Louisiana Tech at Ruston.

The couple will reside in Rayville.

Parents, Teachers To Be Partners To Obtain Best Results

"Parents and Teachers as Partners for Better Education" was the subject for discussion when the Georgia Tucker P. T. A. held their monthly meeting Thursday, Oct. 26, at 3:15 p.m. Mrs. Darwin Nichols opened the meeting with the P. T. A. prayer. The room count was taken by Mrs. Hammond. The two rooms having the largest parent attendance were Miss Windes' first grade, and Miss Riser's fifth grade.

Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal, spoke in place of Miss Marjorie Oliver who was unable to attend the meeting. Miss Rodgers stated that as late as 1870 there were just four months of free school. She said that parents used to educate their children more at home, and that they turned out fine men and women as shown by the leadership in the past history of our nation.

As the years passed there has been more and more pressure put on the schools to put in more subjects and to provide a wider range of activities for the children.

With the longer school term and more responsibilities of child instruction being taken on by the school the mothers have had more time for personal enjoyment. Miss Rodgers urged the parents to realize that their importance to the welfare of their children is just as great today as in years past.

At this time the parents went to the various rooms where room mothers held discussions on growth emotional stability, enlarging the vocabulary and the system of grading. During this time parents met with their children's teachers for progress reports.

COOPERATION IS URGED IN SCHOOL

Parents, Teachers To Be Partners To Obtain Best Results

"Parents and Teachers as Partners for Better Education" was the subject for discussion when the Georgia Tucker P. T. A. held their monthly meeting Thursday, Oct. 26, at 3:15 p.m. Mrs. Darwin Nichols opened the meeting with the P. T. A. prayer. The room count was taken by Mrs. Hammond. The two rooms having the largest parent attendance were Miss Windes' first grade, and Miss Riser's fifth grade.

Miss Myrtle Rodgers, principal, spoke in place of Miss Marjorie Oliver who was unable to attend the meeting. Miss Rodgers stated that as late as 1870 there were just four months of free school. She said that parents used to educate their children more at home, and that they turned out fine men and women as shown by the leadership in the past history of our nation.

As the years passed there has been more and more pressure put on the schools to put in more subjects and to provide a wider range of activities for the children.

With the longer school term and more responsibilities of child instruction being taken on by the school the mothers have had more time for personal enjoyment. Miss Rodgers urged the parents to realize that their importance to the welfare of their children is just as great today as in years past.

At this time the parents went to the various rooms where room mothers held discussions on growth emotional stability, enlarging the vocabulary and the system of grading. During this time parents met with their children's teachers for progress reports.

NEW BOOKS ADDED TO LIST AT OUACHITA PUBLIC LIBRARY

During the months of October and November a great many new books are published each year. This fall has been no exception. The Ouachita Parish Public Library has so many new books that it is hard to decide just which ones to mention in this article.

One of the most popular and prolific of modern authors is Harnett Kane of New Orleans, who uses the amazing stories of Louisiana history as a background for his books. "Pathway to the Stars" which was released last week, is a novel based on the life of John McDonough. Mr. Kane is improving as a novelist. This book is by far the best novel that he has written. He presents a fascinating picture of New Orleans at the beginning of the 19th century, when it was not certain as to whether it would belong to Spain, France or the growing United States. His love for the young daughter of the almonaster family and her treatment of him had a remarkable effect upon an already stern character. This is a book that every Louisianian will want to read.

Thomas B. Costain, who has written a number of fascinating historical novels, has turned to the days at the beginning of the 20th century as a scene of his latest work. "Son of a Hundred Kings." The place is a small Canadian town. The story is well written and the characters are excellently portrayed, but somehow I believe Mr. Costain would do well to stick to historical novels. He is better in that field than in a more modern one.

"Blandings Way" by Eric Hodgins is the sequel to the very popular "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House." In this book we see what happened to the Blandings family, after the house was completed and they settled down to country life in Connecticut. A most amazing series of events was started when Mr. Blandings decided that he must do something for his community. This is a book that provides a great deal of merriment, with an underlying layer of sound common sense. Don't miss it.

"The Grand Sophy" by Georgette Heyer is another of her novels of life in Regency England. It is well done and extremely amusing. Another English novel which will be widely read by Thirkell fans is "County Chronicle," another of Angela Thirkell's stories of the Barsetshire country. "My Lord America" by Alex Rackowe is a novel of the early days of this country as is "Bennett's Welcome" by Inglis Fletcher. "So Great A Queen" by Paul Frishcauer is a novel based on the life of Queen Esther in the Bible.

"Brave Company" by Guthrie Wilson has the last war for its background. "A Blaze of Glory" by Agatha Young is based on the career of a famous actress. "Jubelo's Children" by Lenard Kaufman is the story of an immigrant family in America. "Beyond Defeat" by Hans Richter is another story with a World War II basis. This one is laid in Germany. "Cornbread Aristocrat" by Claud Garner is laid in Arkansas and is the story of a man who thought that money could buy aristocracy.

Readers of mystery stories will be interested in the following titles: "At Last Mr. Tolliver" by William Wiegand; "The People Against O'Hara" by Eleazar Lipsky; "The Red Tassel" by David Dodge; "Through the Wall" by Patricia Wentworth; "The Bachelors of Broken Hill" by Arthur William Upfield; and "The Case of the One Eyed Witness" by Earle Stanley Gardner.

Readers of western stories will like "The Golden Herd" by Curt Carroll and "Mesquiteer Mavericks" by William Colt McDonald.

Other interesting new books by well known authors are: "Rainbow in the Royals" by Garland Roark; "Clearing in the Sky and Other Stories" by Jesse Stuart; "Christmas Without Johnny" by Bess Streeter Aldrich; "The Sign of Jonah" by Nancy Hale; "The City of the Flags" by Clark McMeekin; "The Infinite Woman" by Edison Marshall; "We Have Given Our Hearts Away" by Helen Topping Miller and "The Story of Andrea Fields" by Elizabeth Seifert.

These books and many others can be borrowed from your branch of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Be sure to take advantage of the resources of the library.

Rayville Coach Tells Of Need For Physical Education In School

Holly Ridge, Oct. 28.—(Special)—Coach "Red" Campbell, of Rayville High School, emphasized the role of physical education in the school of today at the regular Holly Ridge P.-T. A. meeting held here. Stating that physical education is tied up very closely with wars, he reminded his audience that it took Germany to teach the United States the value of physical training in World War II. As a result of their athletic training they had the best physically trained army in the world.

In an informal manner of speaking, he continued with, "The primary purpose of a good physical education program is to develop the body simultaneously with the mind. . . . Organized play helps children to grow up, get along with other people. Three-fourths of the delinquency of our country today can be attributed to idleness. A well rounded physical education program takes away children's idle time.

"A community and school can be drawn closer together through sports. They can learn good team work from the football team. Anybody can carry the ball, but it takes a lot of blocking while it's being carried."

Protesting against commercialized football he said, "It isn't fair to boys of your own town to go out and hire a better player with more experience to take his place just for the sake of a winning team."

In concluding his speech, Coach Campbell called attention to the lack of facilities for organized athletics in the parish.

Mrs. Dorothy Lee gave an interesting report from the district meeting in Collinston. She informed the unit that Mrs. L. L. Cobb, president of Holly Ridge's unit was elected to serve on the nominating committee for the coming year in this district.

After Mrs. Agnes Strong told of a meeting of parents and daughters with Miss Klie, district leader of Girl Scouts, Monroe, the unit voted to sponsor a Girl Scout troop for Holly Ridge in the near future.

Favorable comments were voiced on the newsletter that the unit is getting out between meetings to keep members informed of school and P.-T. A. news.

Officers inducted were: President, Mrs. Ora Beasley; past president, Mrs. Jewel Earl; first vice-president, Mrs. Mary Willet; second vice-president, Mrs. Almeda Mary Kirkpatrick; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Opal Thompson; treasurer, Mrs. Annie Boler; auditor, Mrs. Maggie Beasly; chaplain, Mrs. Daisy Wetzel; attendant, Mrs. Thelma Edwards; assistant attendant, Mrs. Mildred Batten; musician, Mrs. Isabel Gibbs; captain, Mrs. Nancy Neyland.

Refreshments were served at the close.

'SHARE THE FLOWER DAY' TO BE OBSERVED BY Y. W. C. A.

Monroe's building room has grown to great proportions. One has only to drive over the suburban districts to see the vast numbers of new homes that have sprung up. Some are already beautifully landscaped, but many are bare of any shrubs or flowers. Hence our "Share the Flowers" plan.

Each year at this time the Y. W. C. A. has flower day. All who have flowers to spare are invited to bring or send them two days before the date, to the Y. Any evergreen shrubs, plants, or bulbs will be gratefully received.

Those wishing plants for their homes are invited to come Wednesday any time after 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Mildred Swift will be there to give advice on planting.

The plants most desired are: ligustrums, cherry laurels, red bud, English ivy, nandina spirea, flowering quince, day lily bulbs, daffodils, etc.

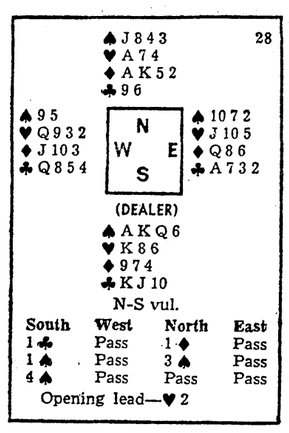

If you have plants to give but cannot bring them to the Y please call one of the following names and your plants will be picked up: Mrs. R. C. Brice, Mrs. P. B. Snodgrass, Mrs. H. A. McDonald, Mrs. John Lewis, or Mrs. E. K. Flournoy.

Here's A Lesson In Percentage Play

By Oswald Jacoby

"Please settle a question of percentages," requests a Brooklyn reader. "When this hand was played, South won the opening lead with the king of hearts. He drew three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and tried the club finesse.

This lost to West's queen, and another heart knocked out dummy's ace. When East took the ace of clubs, he cashed a heart trick. Then the defenders could sit back and wait for a diamond trick.

"After the contract had been set, everybody joined in a discussion of how it should have been played. North said that declarer should have led out three rounds of diamonds after drawing trumps. Then, if diamonds broke 3-3 (as they did, of course) South could get rid of his losing heart on dummy's last diamond.

"South said that a diamond break of this kind could be expected only 36 per cent of the time. The finesse in clubs he said, gave him a 50 per cent chance.

"Is this true, and was he therefore following percentage in trying for the club finesse?"

South's statement about the percentages was absolutely correct, but his conclusions were wrong. The club finesse was more likely to succeed than the diamond break, but it was nevertheless better to try for the diamonds.

The reason is that the contract is set automatically if South goes after the clubs and loses to the queen. However, if South tries out the diamonds and finds that they do not break he can still fall back on the clubs.

For example, suppose South wins the first trick with the king of hearts, draws three rounds of trumps, and then gives up a diamond trick at once. Somebody returns a heart (best defense), knocking out dummy's ace. Declarer then cashes dummy's top diamonds to see if the suit breaks. If diamonds break, the last diamond is cashed, and South discards his losing heart. The rest is then easy, even if two clubs are lost.

If the diamonds do not break, the contract is far from set. Declarer must lead a club from dummy. If East follow with a low club, South must then deicde whether to play the king or the tricks; he simply has to win tricks; he simply as to win the first or the second trick in the suit. If South is a good player, he should have somewhat better than a 50 per cent chance to make the correct play in this situation.

In short, there is no need for declarer to choose either the diamonds or the clubs as his best chance for the contract. His best plan is to try both suits, and this can be done only by trying the diamonds first.

Then, if diamonds broke 3-3 (as they did, of course) South could get rid of his losing heart on dummy's last diamond.

"South said that a diamond break of this kind could be expected only 36 per cent of the time. The finesse in clubs he said, gave him a 50 per cent chance.

"Is this true, and was he therefore following percentage in trying for the club finesse?"

South's statement about the percentages was absolutely correct, but his conclusions were wrong. The club finesse was more likely to succeed than the diamond break, but it was nevertheless better to try for the diamonds.

The reason is that the contract is set automatically if South goes after the clubs and loses to the queen. However, if South tries out the diamonds and finds that they do not break he can still fall back on the clubs.

For example, suppose South wins the first trick with the king of hearts, draws three rounds of trumps, and then gives up a diamond trick at once. Somebody returns a heart (best defense), knocking out dummy's ace. Declarer then cashes dummy's top diamonds to see if the suit breaks. If diamonds break, the last diamond is cashed, and South discards his losing heart. The rest is then easy, even if two clubs are lost.

If the diamonds do not break, the contract is far from set. Declarer must lead a club from dummy. If East follow with a low club, South must then deicde whether to play the king or the tricks; he simply has to win tricks; he simply as to win the first or the second trick in the suit. If South is a good player, he should have somewhat better than a 50 per cent chance to make the correct play in this situation.

In short, there is no need for declarer to choose either the diamonds or the clubs as his best chance for the contract. His best plan is to try both suits, and this can be done only by trying the diamonds first.

ALL FOR LOVE

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Today is a big day in the Girl Scout calendar, the beginning of Girl Scout Week. Two events scheduled for today are church attendance by troops and visitor's day at the site of the troop camp being built near Ouachita City. The camp committee assures us that green arrows will point the way from the intersection of highways 815 and 11, north of Sterlington, to the camp, so no one should get lost. From highway 11, a little more than a mile from this intersection the motorist should turn right at the Ouachita City sign and continue to follow the arrows to Ouachita City and on to the camp.

What we think is a mighty nice gesture on the part of our Boy Scout friends is the invitation to take part in their weekly broadcast Monday night at 7:45. Be sure to listen. Listen also next Thursday at 5:30.

The most fun we've had in ages, and all free, too, was watching 82 union painters paint the Girl Scout house in five minutes and three seconds. With big fire department floodlights on the house, and a police siren signalling the start, a large crowd watched the demonstration, which was a part of the Community Day observance in the Jaycee Democracy Week. Drive by and see how the house shines.

Community visits, especially appropriate last week during Democracy Week, were carried out by several troops. Troop 40, accompanied by Mrs. Andy Conoway, Mrs. R. W. Rogers and Mrs. O. Willis, went to the fire department, where the girls were very interested in the fire-fighting equipment.

Troop 1, Mrs. R. E. Harrell and Mrs. L. F. Wilhite, leaders, went on a Saturday hike to Halsell's dairy near West Monroe, where they saw milking machines and learned something about what happens to milk before it gets to us in bottles or cartons. The Halsell twins are members of the troop.

Accompanied by Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, Mrs. A. W. Wiley and Mrs. H. E. Lyons, the girls of Troop 27 were conducted on a tour of the Louisiana Power and Light Company Saturday. Asked what impressed them most, they said they noticed how clean everything was. We hope the girls now know more about what happens when we turn on a light switch than we do. From Sterlington the group went to the campsite near Ouachita City where they had lunch and explored the surrounding woods. They came back most enthusiastic about the possibilities of the camp.

So many interesting and worthwhile activities are going on in troops that we can't tell you about all of them.

More next Sunday.

After Mrs. Loftin served refreshments to the group, Mrs. DeWitt Henry outlined the league's program for the year. CHINA COMPLAINS AGAIN OF PLANES

Moscow, Oct. 28—(AP)—Pravda today reported that the Chinese charged the U. S. air force with nine new violations of the China-Korea border.

The Communist party newspaper, summarizing a telegram from Peiping Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai to United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie, said the incidents involved 25 American planes between October 13 and October 25.

Chou's telegram, Pravda said, accused the Americans of deliberately violating China's frontiers for the purpose of spreading the Korean war to northeast China.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Answer To Question No. 1

1. Yes, almost, but in somewhat different order. 200 men and women students of Brooklyn College rated ten traits in "friends of their own sex," as follows (M for men; W for women) 1. Loyalty, M 1—W1; 2. Ability to be confided in, M 2—W 3; 3. Frankness, M 3—W 4; 4. Ability to take criticism, M 4—W 7; 5. Good sportsmanship, M 5—W 2; 6. Good social manners, 6— W(not mentioned!) 7. Abil ity to be critical of you, M 7—W 6; 8. Neatness, M 8—W 5; 9. Equal intelligence, M 9—W 9; 10. Poise self-possession, M 10—W (not mentioned!). Looks didn't count with either sex.

Answer To Question No. 2

2. Yes, a very simple one. You are too darn lazy to practice. The first step—absolutely essential—is to learn the multiplication table up to 25 times 25. Second, practice mental arithmetic. I doubt that one reader in 1000 can instantly tell me the product of 17 times 23. It shows you just lazy—not stupid.

Answer To Question No. 3

3. Yes. A careful study of 100 good and bad readers, matched for right and left-handedness, revealed no important differences. Our booklet, 'How To Read Faster and Better" has helped thousands of poor readers. Sent at cost, 15 cents (coin only) plus self-addressed, stamped envelope. Six persons out of ten—even college graduates—are rotten readers!

A Gift That Can Be Yours

To be a good conversationalist is to be a sought for partner in any gathering. Many great advantages will be yours. For the benefit of readers of Let's Explore Your Mind Dr. Wiggam offers a remarkable booklet, "The Art of Conversation" by Milton Wright.

This interesting and instructive booklet contains 12 great chapters brimming with examples, rules and principles of conversation, used by every fluent conversationalist. Become one yourself. Included are ten tests of a good conversationalist with complete information for answering them. This remarkable booklet is yours for 15 cents in coin—less than actual cost. To get your copy address Dr. A. E. Wiggam, care of this newspaper. Include a stamped (3 cent) self-addressed return envelope. The supply is limited.

War Trials

Washington.—(AP)—As soon as possible after the Korean war is ended, any leaders of the Korean Communist army who are caught will be tried as war criminals. Both United Nations and American teams are now hunting the criminals in Korea and gathering the evidence. State department officials think it possible that the trials will be held before the international court, since the forces which opposed the north Koreans were a United Nations army.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Easy To Keep Canasta Score

Written for NEA Service

A simple little matter like keeping score shouldn't bother canasta players, but judging by my mail it does. Here are a few questions and answers.

Q—At the start of the last hand my side had a score of 4860 and the opponents 4240. They went out and also gained points on us on the next hand. When we totaled the score we had 5390 and they had 5200. They claim that they win the game since they went out and outscored us on the last hand. Are they right?

A—They could not be more wrong. The laws of canasta clearly provide that if both sides cross the 5000 point mark the side with the greater number of points wins the game.

Q—The other night we played four games against another couple. We won the first three by small scores and they slaughtered us in the last game. As a result we lost points on the evening. Should not there be a bonus awarded to the side that wins the game?

A—The laws commission believes that canasta is a game of points and that the addition of a game bonus would not improve the game. Of course, you were out of luck on this particular occasion but the chances are that the next time you play you may reverse the procedure and win the big game.

Q—When the hand is over do you get credit both for your canastas and for the cards in them?

A—Yes. You enter your score in two parts. First your bonus count representing your canasta and other bonuses. Second your card count representing a plus for all your melded cards and a minus for all your unmelded cards. The net card count is usually plus.

Q—When our opponents went out we had melded a canasta of five kings and two deuces. Our only other meld was three jacks. The cards left in our hands counted 90 against us. Our opponents claimed that we were not entitled to the canasta bonus because we had to use some of the cards in our canasta to pay for the cards left in our hands. Will you comment?

A—The opponents are wrong. Once you make a canasta the bonus is yours. Of course, if the count of the cards left in your hand is more than the count of the cards left on the table you must subtract this card count from your score. In this particular case you had a bonus count of 500 and a plus card count of 30, or a total of 330.

Q—The hand ended before our side had made any meld but we did have three red treys on the table. Our opponents claimed that we should have 300 points subtracted from our score for the red treys. Were they correct?

A—Yes, they were. Your red treys are a liability until you have made a regular meld. However, once you make any regular meld your red treys become an asset. You do not need a canasta to get credit for them.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

REPRESENTS LOUISIANA CLUB

Miss Carolyn Bell, Baylor University coed from Monroe, will representing the Louisiana club in Baylor's annual homecoming parade Saturday, October 28. Miss Bell is one of 24 nominees for the homecoming queen, who will be crowned at ceremonies between halves of the Baylor-Texas A. and M. football game Saturday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bell of Balboa, Canal Zone and the sister of Mrs. C. S. Cadwallader of this city. A junior student in Baylor, Miss Bell is majoring in home economics and minoring in education.

MISS MYRTLE COX IS BRIDE OF MR. WILLIAM H. STROUD

In a ceremony of quiet simplicity, Miss Myrtle Cox and William H. Stroud were united in marriage, Saturday evening October 21, at 6:30 o'clock in the home of the bride on Grammont street.

The bride was lovely in a suit of navy blue wool, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of white baby mums and tube roses. Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Vernon B. Bull. Mr. Stroud's best man was Mr. Vernon V. Bull.

The bride's table was covered in white linen cloth, where at one end was a white iced wedding cake topped with white rosebuds and nestled in a ruffle of tule. On the other end of the table, wine that had been made 30 years ago by the bride's mother, was served in tall crystal glasses. Mrs. C. L. Blanks of Shreveport, sister of the bride, presided at the cake service.

The bride is a native of Monroe and is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Cox. The bridegroom is a native of Mississippi and is connected with the city of Winnsboro, La.

After the wedding trip the couple will reside in Monroe.

CHINA COMPLAINS AGAIN OF PLANES

Moscow, Oct. 28—(AP)—Pravda today reported that the Chinese charged the U. S. air force with nine new violations of the China-Korea border.

The Communist party newspaper, summarizing a telegram from Peiping Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai to United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie, said the incidents involved 25 American planes between October 13 and October 25.

Chou's telegram, Pravda said, accused the Americans of deliberately violating China's frontiers for the purpose of spreading the Korean war to northeast China.

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Answer To Question No. 1

1. Yes, almost, but in somewhat different order. 200 men and women students of Brooklyn College rated ten traits in "friends of their own sex," as follows (M for men; W for women) 1. Loyalty, M 1—W1; 2. Ability to be confided in, M 2—W 3; 3. Frankness, M 3—W 4; 4. Ability to take criticism, M 4—W 7; 5. Good sportsmanship, M 5—W 2; 6. Good social manners, M 6— W(not mentioned!) 7. Ability to be critical of you, M 7—W 6; 8. Neatness, M 8—W 5; 9. Equal intelligence, M 9—W 9; 10. Poise self-possession, M 10—W (not mentioned!). Looks didn't count with either sex.

Answer To Question No. 2

2. Yes, a very simple one. You are too darn lazy to practice. The first step—absolutely essential—is to learn the multiplication table up to 25 times 25. Second, practice mental arithmetic. I doubt that one reader in 1000 can instantly tell me the product of 17 times 23. It shows you just lazy—not stupid.

Answer To Question No. 3

3. Yes. A careful study of 100 good and bad readers, matched for right and left-handedness, revealed no important differences. Our booklet, 'How To Read Faster and Better" has helped thousands of poor readers. Sent at cost, 15 cents (coin only) plus self-addressed, stamped envelope. War Trials

Washington.—(AP)—As soon as possible after the Korean war is ended, any leaders of the Korean Communist army who are caught will be tried as war criminals. Both United Nations and American teams are now hunting the criminals in Korea and gathering the evidence. State department officials think it possible that the trials will be held before the international court, since the forces which opposed the north Koreans were a United Nations army.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Easy To Keep Canasta Score

Written for NEA Service

A simple little matter like keeping score shouldn't bother canasta players, but judging by my mail it does. Here are a few questions and answers.

Q—At the start of the last hand my side had a score of 4860 and the opponents 4240. They went out and also gained points on us on the next hand. When we totaled the score we had 5390 and they had 5200. They claim that they win the game since they went out and outscored us on the last hand. Are they right?

A—They could not be more wrong. The laws of canasta clearly provide that if both sides cross the 5000 point mark the side with the greater number of points wins the game.

Q—The other night we played four games against another couple. We won the first three by small scores and they slaughtered us in the last game. As a result we lost points on the evening. Should not there be a bonus awarded to the side that wins the game?

A—The laws commission believes that canasta is a game of points and that the addition of a game bonus would not improve the game. Of course, you were out of luck on this particular occasion but the chances are that the next time you play you may reverse the procedure and win the big game.

Q—When the hand is over do you get credit both for your canastas and for the cards in them?

A—Yes. You enter your score in two parts. First your bonus count representing your canasta and other bonuses. Second your card count representing a plus for all your melded cards and a minus for all your unmelded cards. The net card count is usually plus.

Q—When our opponents went out we had melded a canasta of five kings and two deuces. Our only other meld was three jacks. The cards left in our hands counted 90 against us. Our opponents claimed that we were not entitled to the canasta bonus because we had to use some of the cards in our canasta to pay for the cards left in our hands. Will you comment?

A—The opponents are wrong. Once you make a canasta the bonus is yours. Of course, if the count of the cards left in your hand is more than the count of the cards left on the table you must subtract this card count from your score. In this particular case you had a bonus count of 300 and a plus card count of 30, or a total of 330.

Q—The hand ended before our side had made any meld but we did have three red treys on the table. Our opponents claimed that we should have 300 points subtracted from our score for the red treys. Were they correct?

A—Yes, they were. Your red treys are a liability until you have made a regular meld. However, once you make any regular meld your red treys become an asset. You do not need a canasta to get credit for them.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Deaf Children Learn Under Modern Training Methods

New York.—"Mommy." "Daddy." "Bye-bye."

Three simple words, spoken in a muffled tone, were the entire vocabulary of five-year-old Kay. The brown-eyed, dark haired little girl had been hard of hearing since birth.

Unable to hear spoken words, she could not understand the meaning of sounds and therefore was unable to speak. She had learned those three words painfully through constant practice.

Today, little Kay could deliver a speech with all the words she has learned at Manhattan's Junior High School 47, one of the largest public schools in the world for the education of the deaf and hard of hearing. Here Kay and six hundred other children learn how to talk and interpret speech along with the three R's.

Even the tiny tots in their preschool nursery have little hearing aids strapped on to their waists. Every classroom is equipped with an amplifier. Maximum use is made of the smallest amount of hearing which a child may have. The Hearing Foundation of New York, non-profit informaton bureau, says that no child is born totally deaf but that there is always some hearing. Ability to use this hearing will deteriorate rapidly unless it is stimulated.

Children who are unable to make sounds overcome the handicap by blowing feathers across their desk. The teachers carefully act out different vowels until the children can pronounce them. That feat is the first step toward speech. Parents are encouraged to sit in on this training when the child first enters the school. "The improvement in my little girl's speech is a miracle," little Kay's mother said at the end of her first year.

When a child enters the school, extensive tests determine how much her hearing was impaired. The school also maintains a testing clinic for the entire city, testing over 4,000 children each year. Doctors contend that half the cases of deafness, which generally begin in childhood years, could be cured or at least arrested if given immediate medical attention. It has been estimated that three million children in this country are hard of hearing, half of them needlessly so because of ignorance or neglect. The Hearing Foundation figures that one-third or approximately one million need special aid to get through school.

Also included in the school program is work with children who have normal hearing but speech defects. Muscular training is given to cerebral palsy victims to help them also learn to speak.

Sister Act Is Silent

By Cynthia Lowry

New York—The Harris sisters, Mary and Frances, are brunette, smart, good-looking and normally talkative. At home, however, they are as close-mouthed and mysterious as a pair of international spies.

It is stark necessity. Miss Mary Harris is the talent buyer for the advertising agency of Young and Rubicam. Miss Frances Harris is the talent buyer for the advertising agency of McCann-Erickson.

It is quite a job, in addition to having a nice salary check attached to it. There may be an occasional exception, but most individuals who want to sell entertainment talent have to undergo the professional gaze of the agency talent buyer. It is a job requiring one to know just about everything going on in the field, whether it concerns the buyers' agency or not The buyer must always be on the look-out for new talent, available talent or unhappy talent which can be wooed away from a rival.

The job is to find entertainment for the masses which will enchant said masses sufficiently to listen to the commercials and then rush out and buy the product.

Competition between the major advertising agencies is keen. Radio and television being as unstable as the masses' tastes, most dickering and negiotiating is carried on in great secrecy until signatures are on contracts.

Therefore, the Harris sisters try very hard to keep each other from knowing what they are up to during business hours. But occasionally odd situations occur. Although they are not twins, there is a strong family resemblence. This is bad enough, but they have to compunction about trying to pick each other's brains, using fair or foul means.

When they are at home, it is the habit of both sisters to keep the radio turned on constantly. This is not because they love to listen to radio, but because there's always a chance they might want to listen to a certain program. Maybe Mary wants to hear a show at 7:30 p.m. of a Saturday. Mary turns on her radio around 10 a.m. Saturday, figuring that Fran won't know which program she wants to catch.

A spell back, both girls heard about a Chicago show which was causing mid-western listeners to cheer. Each went to work. This involved finding the right client for the show, attending numerous conferences with the agents of the Chicago program, and attending "creative meetings," which to advertising is what a story conference is to Hollywood. Everything went swimmingly until they both were seeking an option.

At this crucial point, Miss Mary Harris couldn't seem to make any further progress. The people she had been dealing with suddenly became as slippery as quick-silver.

Then one morning at breakfast, Miss Frances Harris remarked casually but with a smirk: "Having a little trouble with that Chicago package?"

"Huh?" replied Miss Mary Harris, startled. "Oh, no, not you, anyone but you."

"Yes," said Miss Frances Harris happily, "we optioned it yesterday.'

Retaliation was not long in arriving. Under the protocol of the trade, agents call the sisters and keep them in touch with what's going on. An agent calling Miss Mary Harris one day, gave her a quick fill-in on the trade gossip and then briskly told her terms, dates, prices and other interesting data on a radio show Miss Mary Harris hadn't heard was in the market. She scribbled furiously on a scratch pad, and then said to her agent sweetly: "Thanks a million, Al, but I think my sister Fran would be interested in that offer, too."

Al, who had telephoned the wrong sister in connection with a deal well on the fire, muttered something about suicide and the rumor has gone around that he has become a hermit.

Mary, slightly older than her sister, broke into radio as a show secretary. This is a job where you do a little of everything, from helping the writers and finding lost props to administering soothing libations to hangover victims. From there she moved into the producing field, which carried her west to Hollywood and the weekly Art Linkletter program.

Human Pain Still Mystery

By Howard W. Blakeslee

New York.—The mystery of pain is explained in a new book Principles of Internal Medicine. (Blakiston Co., Philadelphia). It tells the entire story of medicine almost wholly in language that even a doctor must read slowly to understand.

The pain section is much clearer to laymen, possibly because even today scientists know little about pain.

The book says that the nerves that carry pain are different from those conducting cold, touch and pressure. Exactly what these pain nerves are is not known. They may not even be special nerves, but some sort of a combination.

At least two pain-nerve pathways are identified. One carries "bright pricking" pain that is likely to make you jump.

This pain travels through some of the thick nerve fibers. When you burn your skin the pain is carried by a different set of nerves. They are smaller and they carry the pain sensation more slowly. The differences in speed are small fractions of seconds only.

This duel pathway for pain does not tell much of the puzzle, because each nerve is made of two thousand fibers.

Pain is due in part to the kind of tissues and their arrangement. What would cause pain on your skin does not hurt intestine or the membranes that hold them.

A cut in a muscle does not cause much pain. But strong solutions getting into muscles, for example in a hypodermicy, cause severe pain. Muscles are most likely to hurt when they are rigid, a condition that doctors call spasm or cramps.

Arteries and veins, but particularly arteries, may find needle punctures very painful.

One of the worst pains of all, from the heart condition known as angina pectoris, is a sensation of aching and burning, which does not stop for even an instant. It is due to lack of enough oxygen in heart muscles.

Finally there are emotions, Most pain is partly emotional. The emotions are apt to make it hurt worse.

Monks Count 1,400 Years

AP Newsfeatures

They are Greek Orthodox monks of the rule of St. Basil. The weather-worn monastery of St. Catherine in which they live is built around the spot where God is believed to have spoken to Moses from a burning brush.

The chapel itself is believed to have been erected about 337 A. D. by St. Helena, mother of Emperor Constantine the Great.

Pilgrims have traveled the desert route to this isolated monastery for centuries. The trip is not an easy one, however, and there are few visitors.

The great Moslem prophet, Mohammed, is said to have granted the Christian monks a covenant whereby their lives and property secure under Moslem rule.

Effectively isolated from the rest of the world, the monks lead a life of poverty and austerity, spending long hours at prayer.

The American Foundation for the Study of Man has just completed micro-filming the entire library. One set of prints will go to the Library of Congress in Washington.

Alas, poor Yorick—Father Basil holds one of the skulls in the pile where the bones of St. Catherine monks are stored. This picture was taken in 1947. Father Basil has since died and his skull has become a part of the pile.

St. Francis' Needs Will Be Pointed Out To Community

By Jim Reynolds

(Of The Morning World Staff)

Before anyone donates to a cause, he wants to ask why . . . what will his money do . . . is it really needed?

Those are the questions faced now by the managers of the fund-raising campaign for the construction of expanded facilities at St. Francis Sanitarium.

"Does Monroe and the surrounding area need a new hospital addition?"

"Does St. Francis represent a real service to me, as a member of the community?"

"Does the St. Francis drive need my support?"

Those are the questions we ask ourselves. Those are the questions we asked the fund campaigners. And the answers were all "yes."

That the Twin Cities need expanded hospital facilities is a fact that you and I could discover easily. Overcrowded conditions at St. Francis and the other hospitals in the area are no secret. Dangerous, unhealthy crowding occurs now in many hospitals throughout the country. Conditions at St. Francis, your hospital, will be examined in more detail, with a background of facts and figures, in the next article on this theme a week from today. Call it an expose if you will—it will shock you.

On the subject of community service. St. Francis proves itself a welcome member of the Twin Cities family . . . an institution of importance to every citizen.

Many non-Catholics in this predominantly Protestant area may ask, "Why should I give to a Catholic hospital?" The answer is that St. Francis, though Catholic operated, numbers only about 15 per cent Catholics among its patients. More than three times as many Baptists and almost as many Methodists and Presbyterians utilize the facilities at the hospital as Catholics. In 1949, for example, 1,509 Catholics were patients at St. Francis. During that same year, 5,034 Baptists, 50 per cent of the year's in-patients, more than 1000 Methodists and about the same number of Presbyterians were admitted to the hospital.

From January, 1949 to January, 1950, 16,810 patients were treated by the St. Francis staff . . . approximately one-third of the entire population of the Twin Cities. Of that number, 1,102 were treated free. Over a 20 year period, the free treatment given by the sanitarium amounts to well over $110,000.

St. Francis also represents a considerable market for Twin Cities goods and services. In one year, 1949-50, St. Francis spent $528,391.87 in the Twin Cities, an investment of more than a half million dollars in local businesses.

The need for expansion is dictated not only by the present overcrowded conditions, but also by the conditions of the federal grant of funds toward construction of the new wing. The government, in the announcement of the grant, specified that the building in its entirety must be completely fireproof. The cost of fireproofing and improving the old wing, built in 1913, would be so high that it is cheaper in the long run to tear it down and build a completely new section. The total for this work runs to $1,600,000.

Of this sum, the federal government will give approximately $487,500, the Franciscan Sisters will add $512,000, and the citizens of the Twin Cities area are expected to add $600,000 in the campaign.

The request to the people of the area for funds for the construction and expansion program marks the first time since its beginning in 1913 that the hospital has made an appeal for funds. Operated on a non-profit basis, all the past income has been put back into the sanitarium in the form of expansions such as the wing built in 1929 and new equipment.

Plans so far published include the razing of the original old wing and the construction of a new, modern building on the site of the original structure.

Present plans call for an overall increase in the number of patients who can be treated with the newer facilities. A total of 60 beds will be added, and new facilities and equipment will be available to patients.

In later articles on the impending drive, we will examine with what we hope will be a critical eye present overcrowding and lack of adequate facilities at St. Francis. Next week's article will deal specifically with the overcrowding and fire danger.

FLAG COSTS MOUSTACHE

Brooklyn, N. Y.—(AP)—Frank Yeutter lost his moustache when the Phillies won the National League pennant. The new president of the Baseball Writer's Association of America told the Phillies they could have his moustache if they won the pennant. Soon after they beat the Dodgers, 4-1, some of the players ganged up on the Philadelphia Bulletin writer and shaved his upper lip clean in the dressing room.

Farmer Gets Ahead Despite Cotton Loss

Although boll weevils and bad weather took half of Robert Ford's cotton crop this year, he still will be able to pay his bills and keep two daughters in college.

This is made possible for the Bosco, La., Negro family as a result of their extra income from hogs, cattle, and other sideline crops, says a report received last week by the U. S. department of agriculture from the Louisiana State Extension Service.

"Our farmers home administration supervisor and our county agent have been encouraging us to raise more than one cash crop," says Ford, "and this year, it really saved the day."

Last year, Ford grossed a little more than $6,000 off cotton, hogs, calves, and poultry, but he would have been up against it this year, if he hadn't increased his livstock enterprises, the report points out.

Ford started in farming as a sharecropper during World War I.

Twenty years later, when he applied to the farmers home for a lion to buy a farm of his own, he had become a cash renter on 50 acres, owned two mules, and was rearing 11 children. He now has 14.

A loan of $6,300 was approved for a modern new home, a barn, and 86 acres a few miles from where the family then lived, which is 14 mils south of Monroe.

When a FHA official assessed the value of their two mules, pig, cow, and a wagon-load of furniture, he generously put down $600. Today, the Fords' property is worth more than $12,000. And their total indebtedness to FHA is only $1,515, which they still have thirty years to pay off.

"We are going to cut it down some more this year," asserts Ford, "even though the boll weevils took just about half of our cotton."

Whn the Fords begin to try to account for their success, they first credit FHA for giving them a start and for showing them improved management practices — making out a budget, keeping books, and studying production methods and production costs.

To their county agent, Benjamin F. Martin, they give credit for helping them to increase their corn yld from 15 to 50 bushels per acre, for urging them to raise more of their own food, and for showing them how to develop improved pastures for their cattle and hogs.

The Production and Marketing Administration and the Soil Conservation Service are credited with helping to construct drainage system on their farm and encouraging them to plant legumes to increase the fertility of their land.

This year, the cropping program on the Fords' 117 acres—they rent 31 and own 86—provided for 31 acres of cotton, 40 acres of corn, 20 acres of soybeans, 10 acres of improved pastures, and 15 acres of woodland. Their home and barn occupy the remaining acre. In their pastures are 19 head of beef cattle and 32 hogs.

Assistant State Extension Agent R. J. Courtney says the Fords operate one of the most efficient small farms in the state. "Every acre of their land is put to good use."

Of the Fords' 14 children, eight are at home, two are away at college, one has been graduated from college, and their oldest son is operating a 108-acre farm.

Scouts Explore Tech Saturday

Over 100 explorers of the Ouachita Valley Council are attending a special event for explorer scouts being held at Louisiana Tech in Ruston this week end. These older scouts were invited by college officials to be the guests of Louisiana Tech for a two-day exploration program.

Scouts from all areas of the Ouachita Valley Council registered for this scouting event early Saturday morning under the supervision of the Alpha Phi Omega Scout fraternity. At 11:00 a.m. Saturday the group was welcomed to the college by President Ropp. After lunch in the Tech dining hall, the group was shown movies of a recent Tech football game in the Little Theater auditorium. The remainder of Saturday afternoon was spent touring all of the departments of the school which had been kept open for the Scout visitation.

One of the main program features was the opportunity for the explorers to see the Louisiana Tech Louisiana College football game Saturday night. For this game the Scouts selected their own cheer leaders and had their own cheering section.

The scheduled program for Sunday included church services early Sunday morning for both Protestant and Catholic Scouts.

CHAMPAGNE OVER DAM

Las Vegas, N. M.—Thirty years ago E. A. Bradner put away a bottle of champagne to dedicate a dam that would assure the Las Vegas' water supply.

Bradner died in 1945 after 26 years as manager of the Public Service company's Las Vegas division. But plans for the dam were underway and the company completed it this fall.

At the dedication of the E. A. Bradner $100,000 dam, the bottle of champagne was used.

Three tablespoons of butter added to a quart of skim milk will make it virtually the same as a quart of whole milk.

Seek Revenue Channels While Unplugged Loopholes Exist

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, written by Congressman Noah M. Mason, is reprinted from Reader's Digest with permission of that magazine and that of American Magazine, from which it was condensed. The article is reprinted by request of several persons, and the copy was furnished by M. C. Adams, of Alto.)

Administration leaders today are frantically searching for new ways to raise revenue. I maintain we can raise at least one billion dollars in new revenue merely by plugging the loopholes in our present tax laws that permit U. S. businesses to hide behind tax-exempt fronts. And we can raise this revenue without adding a single cent to the bill of the regular taxpayers.

Our tax laws, as now written, exempt charitable, educational and religious organizations, cooperatives, labor unions and many others. When these exemptions were granted, many years ago, our lawmakers did not dream that they would be used to shield vast corporate, profit-making enterprises. But that is precisely what has happened. By various means—all perfectly legal—thousands of organizations are escaping the normal 38 percent tax on their business profits, forcing numberless conscientious tax-paying businessmen to the wall and shrinking the pool of taxable U. S. wealth.

Here are the five devices most widely used to escape taxes:

The Charity Trust Device. There are many conscientious trusts and foundations dedicated to public service. But thousands have sprung up in recent years that are little more than pawns in the game of outsmarting the tax collector. The Russell Sage Foundation, a conscientious organization, has made a study of some of the newcomers. Its report states: "A disturbing number of such 'foundations' . . . appear to have no headquarters other than the office of a law firm, to be modest to the point of complete silence about any program for social or public welfare, and indeed to be making no present contributions of any sort from their accumulated and accumulating wealth."

The fabulous 95,000-acre Montana wheat ranch of Tom Campbell, America's largest wheat farmer, has been sold to a "charitable" trust in Omaha for $2,000,000. Its earnings, which have been sunject to a 38 percent tax, now go tax-free. Mr. Campbell continues to manage his ranch at a handsome income.

An enterprising young Omaha lawyer named Gordon Diesing bought the ranch on behalf of the "U. S. Wheat Corporation," which Diesing set up last April "exclusively for charitable purposes." This corporation's profits, after paying Diesing's salary, expenses, ect., go to another charitable corporation, the Sacred Heart Foundation Fund, which is capitalized at $10.

Mr. Diesing is listed as its president, secretary, treasurer, chairman of the trustees, general counsel and resident agent. In effect, his second corporation, capitalized at $10, bought control of a $2,000,000 ranch. Evidently not much money changed hands.

Mr. Diesing also has "bought," for $4,800,000, the 55,000 acres of cotton land in the San Joaquin Valley run by California's cotton king, Russell Giffen. For this he set up anotner "charitable, nonprofit corporation," which he heads. Giffen remains as manager.

A significant aspect of these deals is that the two ranches in the past year have drawn almost $5,000,000 in U. S. Government farm loans. Thus, in effect, the U. S. Government guarantees that they make a profit, while not being able to tax those profits.

Then there are the six tax-exempt "charitable" trusts set up by President Royal Little and his aides in the $60,000,000 Textron Corporation. To these trusts was given title to much of the Textron empire. A Senate subcommittee which investigated this setup reported: "Many millions of dollars have been received by the trusts and but an infinitesimal portion thereof has been paid to the beneficiaries. . . . It is clear that (Textron) has made wide use of so-called charitable trusts as a means of providing risk capital to itself. . . . These trusts have never paid a cent of income tax."

The Educational Device. Our founding fathers decided, properly, that education should not be burdened with taxes. But they had no notion that universities would go into business in direct competition with taxpaying companies — as several dozen have done.

The University of Michigan now owns Willow Run Airport. Wittenberg College in Springfield, Ohio, has purchased a $200,000 supermarket. Girard College, Philadelphia, through a trustee foundation operates coal mines. Oberlin College owns five-and-ten stores. Washington University in St. Louis has money invested in 51 business buildings, a railroad freight station and a switching yard. The University of Louisville is in the horse-racing business. A tax-free foundation which will have the university as a beneficiary has bought the famous Churchill Downs track, the profits of which no longer will be taxable.

Yale University (through a subsidiary called Connecticut Boola, Inc.) recently bought a new $4,500,000 department-store building which R. H. Macy and Co. had built for itself in San Francisco. Then Yale leased the building back to Macy's for 31 years, at an average annual rental of $240,000. This "sale-and-lease-back" procedure is today fairly common.

Both sides win: the business firm involved gets cash for expansion; the educational institution gets a tax-free real estate investment. The U. S. Treasury, of course, loses.

The C. F. Mueller Co., macaroni manufacturer, sold out to a "non-profit" foundation acting in behalf of New York University. New York University and its affiliated foundations own and operate, in addition to the macaroni factory, a $3,000,000 piston-ring factory in Missouri, a $3,300,000 pottery factory and a vast $35,000,000 leather-goods company. A spokesman for the university has admitted that these four companies would have to pay $1,500,000 in U. S. taxes each year if they were not under the university's protective wing.

The Religious Device. Churches are taking millions of dollars' worth of property off the tax rolls with their investments. Father Divine has bought a large hotel in Newark, N. J., giving it tax-free status. It is estimated that Milwaukee is losing $2,500,000 a year in real estate taxes because churches and fraternal organizations have become such large property owners. Methodist officials are disturbed over the untaxed profits some of their churches are making on properties which have such nonreligious tenants as taverns and pool halls. Samuel Cardinal Stritch of Chicago denied permission to the Catholic order that sought to purchase real estate in Lake County near the city; one factor in his decision was that the county already was seriously burdened by tax-exempt properties.

It is my belief that churches should be taxed on all profits from nonreligious enterprises. The Mormon Church engages in a great variety of commercial businesses, yet has always insisted on paying its full share of taxes on profits.

The Cooperative Device. Co-ops were given their privileged tax-exempt status in 1916, when they were merely small groups of neighboring farmers trying to get a better return on their crops. The federal tax then was only one per cent. Today, however, the tax concession is 38 per cent, and many co-ops are monster corporations performing multimillion - dollar transactions in fierce competition with taxpaying businessmen.

A spectacular example is the California & Hawaii Sugar Refining Company, which operates the biggest sugar refinery in the world at Crockett, Calif. Dominated by businessmen who also operate plantations, department stores, etc., in Hawaii, C&H makes millions of dollars in profits but hasn't paid a federal income tax since 1927. In that year it became a "farmers' cooperative," simply by changing its corporate structure. It remained, however, a corporation, with many of the same stockholders.

Independent oil jobbers in the midwest have had a desperate time surviving in the face of a great upsurge of tax-free co-ops, which are buying up hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of oil wells, pipe lines and refineries. One single co-op owns 805 wells.

Co-ops run vast machine-assembly factories, chemical plants, phosphate mines. They handle 75 per cent of the nation's fluid milk, operate vast feed mills and the biggest grain elevators in America.

One of the so-called farmer co-ops is the California Fruit Growers Exchange, which did a $300,000,000 business last year. It markets the famous Sunkist orange and 85 per cent of America's lemons. One of its subsidiaries, the Fruit Growers Supply Company, in 1944 bought the entire lumbering town of Westwood, Calif., for $11,000,000. The purchase included lumber mills, veneer mills, box factories and valuable timber.

There are today at least a dozen co-ops that would have to pay the treasury an average of a million dollars each per year if they were taxed on the same basis as their competitors. Yet they escape most taxes because they claim to be nonprofit. When co-ops split a melon at the end of a year they say they are handing out a "rebate" or a "refund" or a "final payment due."

The Labor Union Device. When tax exemption was granted to labor unions, I'm sure the lawmakers did not anticipate that unions would branch out into commercial enterprises having no relation to union needs. In many cities unions receive rentals on store and office buildings they own, and pay no tax on the income. In LaSalle, Ill., a local union is even in the saloon-renting business.

Our biggest unions are plannig to operate giant co-op supermarkets in union towns throughout America, in competition with taxpaying grocers. C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers already have a dozen oc-op stores in the Detroit area, selling groceries, appliances, clothing, etc. Their announced aim is to capture 50 per cent of all local retail trade.

Some small progress is being made in getting tax-exempt organizations to pay their fair share of taxes. The treasury department has finally forced a showdown with the Mueller macaroni firm, contending that there is nothing "charitable, scientific, literary or educational" in noodle-making, even though the profits go to New York University. The issue is now in the courts. Also, a few states are taking action. Indiana, for example, has a law taxing business income of all churches, colleges, foundations, co-ops, etc. The law has produced no noticeable hardship. And—partly because of public outcry—a few farm co-ops are now voluntarily paying some taxes.

'Letters From America,' New Cold War Weapon Urges 35 Million To Write Relatives Abroad

By Richard Kleiner

New York—(NEA)—A man who escaped from a Hungarian prison camp writes back to Hungary every week to a man he despises—to "make him writhe with envy."

The letters describe the ex-prisoner's new life in America, his $99-a-week job, his home, his car, his freedom. But it is not a one-man campaign. These weekly letters are part of America's newest weapon in the cold war, a written partner to the Voice of America.

"Letters from America," the new American natural resource—people like the ex-Hungarian prisoner and 35,000,000 other first and second generation Americans who have relatives and friends abroad.

The tactic of encouraging these people to write to their folks abroad is not a new one. It was employed during the last Italian election, in a succesful effort to defeat communism at the polls.

But, under the sponsorship of the Common Council for American Unity, directed by Read Lewis, the current campaign is the biggest effort in that direction. And it is the first to enlist the support of foreign language newspapers and radio stations throughout America.

The council publishes a weekly release for these newspapers and radio stations. These messages suggest topics to be mentioned in letters and emphasize the advantages of living under a democracy. The council translates them into 20 different languages, and says that they regularly appear in about 27 languages.

The releases are published regularly in 229 newspapers and broadcast over about 200 foreign language radio stations. The council estimates that some 8,000,000 people read or hear them each week.

Written in simple terms, the messages stress the interest Europeans have in every-day life in America. A Sunday drive in the country, for example, seems commonplace to Americans, but to Europeans it is a fabulous thing. It means the writer has a car, that he is free to drive about as he pleases, that he has leisure and relaxation.

One release discusses the movies, and urges letter writers to tell European relatives and friends that the films don't show America in "a true light." Other releases talk of labor agreements, American weddings, graduation, the Fourth of July, American culture, vacations, and serious subjects like the Korean war and inflation.

Still other council releases are signed articles on the meaning of Democracy, written by such people as Bernard Baruch, James B. Carey, the C. I. O.'s secretary-treasurer, Eleanor Roosevelt and former Secretary of War Robert Patterson.

A pro-Communist Hungarian paper in New York editorially blasted the "Letters from America" campaign, saying that it would be used by the "fascist and reactionary" press to make "a tool of propaganda for the Cold War" out of Hungarian-Americans.

But the non-Communist foreign language papers have praised the plan. And the Council hopes that the 250,000,000 letters that are annually sent to Europe from America will become bullets in the Cold War.

Deaf Children Learn Under Modern Training Methods

New York.—"Mommy." "Daddy." "Bye-bye."

Three simple words, spoken in a muffled tone, were the entire vocabulary of five-year-old Kay. The brown-eyed, dark haired little girl had been hard of hearing since birth.

Unable to hear spoken words, she could not understand the meaning of sounds and therefore was unable to speak. She had learned those three words painfully through constant practice.

Today, little Kay could deliver a speech with all the words she has learned at Manhattan's Junior High School 47, one of the largest public schools in the world for the education of the deaf and hard of hearing. Here Kay and six hundred other children learn how to talk and interpret speech along with the three R's.

Even the tiny tots in their preschool nursery have little hearing aids strapped on to their waists. Every classroom is equipped with an amplifier. Maximum use is made of the smallest amount of hearing which a child may have. The Hearing Foundation of New York, non-profit informaton bureau, says that no child is born totally deaf but that there is always some hearing. Ability to use this hearing will deteriorate rapidly unless it is stimulated.

Children who are unable to make sounds overcome the handicap by blowing feathers across their desk. The teachers carefully act out different vowels until the children can pronounce them. That feat is the first step toward speech. Parents are encouraged to sit in on this training when the child first enters the school. "The improvement in my little girl's speech is a miracle," little Kay's mother said at the end of her first year.

When a child enters the school, extensive tests determine how much her hearing was impaired. The school also maintains a testing clinic for the entire city, testing over 4,000 children each year. Doctors contend that half the cases of deafness, which generally begin in childhood years, could be cured or at least arrested if given immediate medical attention. It has been estimated that three million children in this country are hard of hearing, half of them needlessly so because of ignorance or neglect. The Hearing Foundation figures that one-third or approximately one million need special aid to get through school.

Also included in the school program is work with children who have normal hearing but speech defects. Muscular training is given to cerebral palsy victims to help them also learn to speak.

Sister Act Is Silent

By Cynthia Lowry

New York—The Harris sisters, Mary and Frances, are brunette, smart, good-looking and normally talkative. At home, however, they are as close-mouthed and mysterious as a pair of international spies.

It is stark necessity. Miss Mary Harris is the talent buyer for the advertising agency of Young and Rubicam. Miss Frances Harris is the talent buyer for the advertising agency of McCann-Erickson.

It is quite a job, in addition to having a nice salary check attached to it. There may be an occasional exception, but most individuals who want to sell entertainment talent have to undergo the professional gaze of the agency talent buyer. It is a job requiring one to know just about everything going on in the field, whether it concerns the buyers' agency or not. The buyer must always be on the look-out for new talent, available talent or unhappy talent which can be wooed away from a rival.

The job is to find entertainment for the masses which will enchant said masses sufficiently to listen to the commercials and then rush out and buy the product.

Competition between the major advertising agencies is keen. Radio and television being as unstable as the masses' tastes, most dickering and negiotiating is carried on in great secrecy until signatures are on contracts.

Therefore, the Harris sisters try very hard to keep each other from knowing what they are up to during business hours. But occasionally odd situations occur. Although they are not twins, there is a strong family resemblence. This is bad enough, but they have to compunction about trying to pick each other's brains, using fair or foul means.

When they are at home, it is the habit of both sisters to keep the radio turned on constantly. This is not because they love to listen to radio, but because there's always a chance they might want to listen to a certain program. Maybe Mary wants to hear a show at 7:30 p.m. of a Saturday. Mary turns on her radio around 10 a.m. Saturday, figuring that Fran won't know which program she wants to catch.

A spell back, both girls heard about a Chicago show which was causing mid-western listeners to cheer. Each went to work. This involved finding the right client for the show, attending numerous conferences with the agents of the Chicago program, and attending "creative meetings," which to advertising is what a story conference is to Hollywood. Everything went swimmingly until they both were seeking an option.

At this crucial point, Miss Mary Harris couldn't seem to make any further progress. The people she had been dealing with suddenly became as slippery as quick-silver.

Then one morning at breakfast, Miss Frances Harris remarked casually but with a smirk: "Having a little trouble with that Chicago package?"

"Huh?" replied Miss Mary Harris, startled. "Oh, no, not you, anyone but you."

"Yes," said Miss Frances Harris happily, "we optioned it yesterday."

Retaliation was not long in arriving. Under the protocol of the trade, agents call the sisters and keep them in touch with what's going on. An agent calling Miss Mary Harris one day, gave her a quick fill-in on the trade gossip and then briskly told ner terms, dates, prices and other interesting data on a radio show Miss Mary Harris hadn't heard was in the market. She scribbled furiously on a scratch pad, and then said to her agent sweetly: "Thanks a million, Al, but I think my sister Fran would be interested in that offer, too."

Al, who had telephoned the wrong sister in connection with a deal well on the fire, muttered something about suicide and the rumor has gone around that he has become a hermit.

Mary, slightly older than her sister, broke into radio as a show secretary. This is a job where you do a little of everything, from helping the writers and finding lost props to administering soothing libations to hangover victims. From there she moved into the producing field, which carried her west to Hollywood and the weekly Art Linkletter program.

Human Pain Still Mystery

By Howard W. Blakeslee

New York.—The mystery of pain is explained in a new book Principles of Internal Medicine. (Blakiston Co., Philadelphia). It tells the entire story of medicine almost wholly in language that even a doctor must read slowly to understand.

The pain section is much clearer to laymen, possibly because even today scientists know little about pain.

The book says that the nerves that carry pain are different from those conducting cold, touch and pressure. Exactly what these pain nerves are is not known. They may not even be special nerves, but some sort of a combination.

At least two pain-nerve pathways are identified. One carries "bright pricking" pain that is likely to make you jump.

This pain travels through some of the thick nerve fibers. When you burn your skin the pain is carried by a different set of nerves. They are smaller and they carry the pain sensation more slowly. The differences in speed are small fractions of seconds only.

This duel pathway for pain does not tell much of the puzzle, because each nerve is made of two thousand fibers.

Pain is due in part to the kind of tissues and their arrangement. What would cause pain on your skin does not hurt intestine or the membranes that hold them.

A cut in a muscle does not cause much pain. But strong solutions getting into muscles, for example in a hypodermicy, cause severe pain. Muscles are most likely to hurt when they are rigid, a condition that doctors call spasm or cramps.

Arteries and veins, but particularly arteries, may find needle punctures very painful.

One of the worst pains of all, from the heart condition known as angina pectoris, is a sensation of aching and burning, which does not stop for even an instant. It is due to lack of enough oxygen in heart muscles.

Finally there are emotions. Most pain is partly emotional. The emotions are apt to make it hurt worse.

Monks Count 1,400 Years

AP Newsfeatures

They are Greek Orthodox monks of the rule of St. Basil. The weather-worn monastery of St. Catherine in which they live is built around the spot where God is believed to have spoken to Moses from a burning brush.

The chapel itself is believed to have been erected about 337 A. D. by St. Helena, mother of Emperor Constantine the Great.

Pilgrims have traveled the desert route to this isolated monastery for centuries. The trip is not an easy one, however, and there are few visitors.

The great Moslem prophet, Mohammed, is said to have granted the Christian monks a covenant whereby their lives and property secure under Moslem rule.

Effectively isolated from the rest of the world, the monks lead a life of poverty and austerity, spending long hours at prayer.

The American Foundation for the Study of Man has just completed micro-filming the entire library. One set of prints will go to the Library of Congress in Washington.

Alas, poor Yorick—Father Basil holds one of the skulls in the pile where the bones of St. Catherine monks are stored. This picture was taken in 1947. Father Basil has since died and his skull has become a part of the pile.

St. Francis' Needs Will Be Pointed Out To Community

By Jim Reynolds

(Of The Morning World Staff)

Before anyone donates to a cause, he wants to ask why . . . what will his money do . . . is it really needed?

Those are the questions faced now by the managers of the fund-raising campaign for the construction of expanded facilities at St. Francis Sanitarium.

"Does Monroe and the surrounding area need a new hospital addition?"

"Does St. Francis represent a real service to me, as a member of the community?"

"Does the St. Francis drive need my support?"

Those are the questions we ask ourselves. Those are the questions we asked the fund campaigners. And the answers were all "yes."

That the Twin Cities need expanded hospital facilities is a fact that you and I could discover easily. Overcrowded conditions at St. Francis and the other hospitals in the area are no secret. Dangerous, unhealthy crowding occurs now in many hospitals throughout the country. Conditions at St. Francis, your hospital, will be examined in more detail, with a background of facts and figures, in the next article on this theme a week from today. Call it an expose if you will—it will shock you.

On the subject of community service, St. Francis proves itself a welcome member of the Twin Cities family . . . an institution of importance to every citizen.

Many non-Catholics in this predominantly Protestant area may ask, "Why should I give to a Catholic hospital?" The answer is that St. Francis, though Catholic operated, numbers only about 15 per cent Catholics among its patients. More than three times as many Baptists and almost as many Methodists and Presbyterians utilize the facilities at the hospital as Catholics. In 1949, for example, 1,509 Catholics were patients at St. Francis. During that same year, 5,034 Baptists, 50 per cent of the year's in-patients, more than 1000 Methodists and about the same number of Presbyterians were admitted to the hospital.

From January, 1949 to January, 1950, 16,810 patients were treated by the St. Francis staff . . . approximately one-third of the entire population of the Twin Cities. Of that number, 1,102 were treated free. Over a 20 year period, the free treatment given by the sanitarium amounts to well over $110,000.

St. Francis also represents a considerable market for Twin Cities goods and services. In one year, 1949-50, St. Francis spent $528,891.87 in the Twin Cities, an investment of more than a half million dollars in local businesses.

The need for expansion is dictated not only by the present overcrowded conditions, but also by the conditions of the federal grant of funds toward construction of the new wing. The government, in the announcement of the grant, specified that the building in its entirety must be completely fireproof. The cost of fireproofing and improving the old wing, built in 1913, would be so high that it is cheaper in the long run to tear it down and build a completely new section. The total for this work runs to $1,600,000.

Of this sum, the federal government will give approximately $487,500, the Franciscan Sisters will add $512,000, and the citizens of the Twin Cities area are expected to add $600,000 in the campaign.

The request to the people of the area for funds for the construction and expansion program marks the first time since its beginning in 1913 that the hospital has made an appeal for funds. Operated on a non-profit basis, all the past income has been put back into the sanitarium in the form of expansions such as the wing built in 1929 and new equipment.

Plans so far published include the razing of the original old wing and the construction of a new, modern building on the site of the original structure.

Present plans call for an overall increase in the number of patients who can be treated with the newer facilities. A total of 60 beds will be added, and new facilities and equipment will be available to patients.

In later articles on the impending drive, we will examine with what we hope will be a critical eye present overcrowding and lack of adequate facilities at St. Francis. Next week's article will deal specifically with the overcrowding and fire danger.

FLAG COSTS MOUSTACHE

Brooklyn, N. Y.—(AP)—Frank Yeutter lost his moustache when the Phillies won the National League pennant. The new president of the Baseball Writer's Association of America told the Phillies they could have his moustache if they won the pennant. Soon after they beat the Dodgers, 4-1, some of the players ganged up on the Philadelphia Bulletin writer and shaved his upper lip clean in the dressing room.

Farmer Gets Ahead Despite Cotton Loss

Although boll weevils and bad weather took half of Robert Ford's cotton crop this year, he still will be able to pay his bills and keep two daughters in college.

This is made possible for the Bosco, La., Negro family as a result of their extra income from hogs, cattle, and other sideline crops, says a report received last week by the U. S. department of agriculture from the Louisiana State Extension Service.

"Our farmers home administration supervisor and our county agent have been encouraging us to raise more than one cash crop," says Ford, "and this year, it really saved the day."

Last year, Ford grossed a little more than $6,000 off cotton, hogs, calves, and poultry, but he would have been up against it this year, if he hadn't increased his livstock enterprises, the report points out.

Ford started in farming as a sharecropper during World War I.

Twenty years later, when he applied to the farmers home for a lion to buy a farm of his own, he had become a cash renter on 50 acres, owned two mules, and was rearing 11 children. He now has 14.

A loan of $6,300 was approved for a modern new home, a barn, and 86 acres a few miles from where the family then lived, which is 14 mils south of Monroe.

When a FHA official assessed the value of their two mules, pig, cow, and a wagon-load of furniture, he generously put down $600. Today, the Fords' property is worth more than $12,000. And their total indebtedness to FHA is only $1,515, which they still have thirty years to pay off.

"We are going to cut it down some more this year," asserts Ford, "even though the boll weevils took just about half of our cotton."

Whn the Fords begin to try to account for their success, they first credit FHA for giving them a start and for showing them improved management practices — making out a budget, keeping books, and studying production methods and production costs.

To their county agent, Benjamin F. Martin, they give credit for helping them to increase their corn yld from 15 to 50 bushels per acre, for urging them to raise more of their own food, and for showing them how to develop improved pastures for their cattle and hogs.

The Production and Marketing Administration and the Soil Conservation Service are credited with helping to construct drainage system on their farm and encouraging them to plant legumes to increase the fertility of their land.

This year, the cropping program on the Fords' 117 acres—they rent 31 and own 86—provided for 31 acres of cotton, 40 acres of corn, 20 acres of soybeans, 10 acres of improved pastures, and 15 acres of woodland. Their home and barn occupy the remaining acre. In their pastures are 19 head of beef cattle and 32 hogs.

Assistant State Extension Agent R. J. Courtney says the Fords operate one of the most efficient small farms in the state. "Every acre of their land is put to good use."

Of the Fords' 14 children, eight are at home, two are away at college, one has been graduated from college, and their oldest son is operating a 108-acre farm.

CHAMPAGNE OVER DAM

Las Vegas, N. M.—Thirty years ago E. A. Bradner put away a bottle of champagne to dedicate a dam that would assure the Las Vegas water supply.

Bradner died in 1945 after 26 years as manager of the Public Service company's Las Vegas division. But plans for the dam were underway and the company completed it this fall.

Three tablespoons of butter added to a quart of skim milk will make it virtually the same as a quart of whole milk.

Seek Revenue Channels While Unplugged Loopholes Exist

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, written by Congressman Noah M. Mason, is reprinted from Reader's Digest with permission of that magazine and that of American Magazine, from which it was condensed. The article is reprinted by request of several persons, and the copy was furnished by M. C. Adams, of Alto.)

Administration leaders today are frantically searching for new ways to raise revenue. I maintain we can raise at least one billion dollars in new revenue merely by plugging the loopholes in our present tax laws that permit U. S. businesses to hide behind tax-exempt fronts. And we can raise this revenue without adding a single cent to the bill of the regular taxpayers.

Our tax laws, as now written, exempt charitable, educational and religious organizations, cooperatives, labor unions and many others. When these exemptions were granted, many years ago, our lawmakers did not dream that they would be used to shield vast corporate, profit-making enterprises. But that is precisely what has happened. By various means—all perfectly legal—thousands of organizations are escaping the normal 38 percent tax on their business profits, forcing numberless conscientious tax-paying businessmen to the wall and shrinking the pool of taxable U. S. wealth.

Here are the five devices most widely used to escape taxes:

The Charity Trust Device. There are many conscientious trusts and foundations dedicated to public service. But thousands have sprung up in recent years that are little more than pawns in the game of outsmarting the tax collector. The Russell Sage Foundation, a conscientious organization, has made a study of some of the newcomers. Its report states: "A disturbing number of such 'foundations' . . . appear to have no headquarters other than the office of a law firm, to be modest to the point of complete silence about any program for social or public welfare, and indeed to be making no present contributions of any sort from their accumulated and accumulating wealth."

The fabulous 95,000-acre Montana wheat ranch of Tom Campbell, America's largest wheat farmer, has been sold to a "charitable" trust in Omaha for $2,000,000. Its earnings, which have been sunject to a 38 percent tax, now go tax-free. Mr. Campbell continues to manage his ranch at a handsome income.

An enterprising young Omaha lawyer named Gordon Diesing bought the ranch on behalf of the "U. S. Wheat Corporation," which Diesing set up last April "exclusively for charitable purposes." This corporation's profits, after paying Diesing's salary, expenses, ect., go to another charitable corporation, the Sacred Heart Foundation Fund, which is capitalized at $10.

Mr. Diesing is listed as its president, secretary, treasurer, chairman of the trustees, general counsel and resident agent. In effect, his second corporation, capitalized at $10, bought control of a $2,000,000 ranch. Evidently not much money changed hands.

Mr. Diesing also has "bought," for $4,800,000, the 55,000 acres of cotton land in the San Joaquin Valley run by California's cotton king, Russell Giffen. For this he set up another "charitable, nonprofit corporation," which he heads. Giffen remains as manager.

A significant aspect of these deals is that the two ranches in the past year have drawn almost $5,000,000 in U. S. Government farm loans. Thus, in effect, the U. S. Government guarantees that they make a profit, while not being able to tax those profits.

Then there are the six tax-exempt "charitable" trusts set up by President Royal Little and his aides in the $60,000,000 Textron Corporation. To these trusts was given title to much of the Textron empire. A Senate subcommittee which investigated this setup reported: "Many millions of dollars have been received by the trusts and but an infinitesimal portion thereof has been paid to the beneficiaries. . . . It is clear that (Textron) has made wide use of so-called charitable trusts as a means of providing risk capital to itself. . . . These trusts have never paid a cent of income tax."

The Educational Device. Our founding fathers decided, properly, that education should not be burdened with taxes. But they had no notion that universities would go into business in direct competition with taxpaying companies — as several dozen have done.

The University of Michigan now owns Willow Run Airport. Wittenberg College in Springfield, Ohio, has purchased a $200,000 supermarket. Girard College, Philadelphia, through a trustee foundation operates coal mines. Oberlin College owns five-and-ten stores. Washington University in St. Louis has money invested in 51 business buildings, a railroad freight station and a switching yard. The University of Louisville is in the horse-racing business. A tax-free foundation which will have the university as a beneficiary has bought the famous Churchill Downs track, the profits of which no longer will be taxable.

Yale University (through a subsidiary called Connecticut Boola, Inc.) recently bought a new $4,500,000 department-store building which R. H. Macy and Co. had built for itself in San Francisco. Then Yale leased the building back to Macy's for 31 years, at an average annual rental of $240,000. This "sale-and-lease-back" procedure is today fairly common.

Both sides win: the business firm involved gets cash for expansion; the educational institution gets a tax-free real estate investment. The U. S. Treasury, of course, loses.

The C. F. Mueller Co., macaroni manufacturer, sold out to a "non-profit" foundation acting in behalf of New York University. New York University and its affiliated foundations own and operate, in addition to the macaroni factory, a $3,000,000 piston-ring factory in Missouri, a $3,300,000 pottery factory and a vast $35,000,000 leather-goods company. A spokesman for the university has admitted that these four companies would have to pay $1,500,000 in U. S. taxes each year if they were not under the university's protective wing.

The Religious Device. Churches are taking millions of dollars' worth of property off the tax rolls with their investments. Father Divine has bought a large hotel in Newark, N. J., giving it tax-free status. It is estimated that Milwaukee is losing $2,500,000 a year in real estate taxes because churches and fraternal organizations have become such large property owners. Methodist officials are disturbed over the untaxed profits some of their churches are making on properties which have such nonreligious tenants as taverns and pool halls. Samuel Cardinal Stritch of Chicago denied permission to the Catholic order that sought to purchase real estate in Lake County near the city; one factor in his decision was that the county already was seriously burdened by tax-exempt properties.

It is my belief that churches should be taxed on all profits from nonreligious enterprises. The Mormon Church engages in a great variety of commercial businesses, yet has always insisted on paying its full share of taxes on profits.

The Cooperative Device. Co-ops were given their privileged tax-exempt status in 1916, when they were merely small groups of neighboring farmers trying to get a better return on their crops. The federal tax then was only one per cent. Today, however, the tax concession is 38 per cent, and many co-ops are monster corporations performing multimillion - dollar transactions in fierce competition with taxpaying businessmen.

A spectacular example is the California & Hawaii Sugar Refining Company, which operates the biggest sugar refinery in the world at Crockett, Calif. Dominated by businessmen who also operate plantations, department stores, etc., in Hawaii, C&H makes millions of dollars in profits but hasn't paid a federal income tax since 1927. In that year it became a "farmers' cooperative," simply by changing its corporate structure. It remained, however, a corporation, with many of the same stockholders.

Independent oil jobbers in the midwest have had a desperate time surviving in the face of a great upsurge of tax-free co-ops, which are buying up hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of oil wells, pipe lines and refineries. One single co-op owns 805 wells.

Co-ops run vast machine-assembly factories, chemical plants, phosphate mines. They handle 75 per cent of the nation's fluid milk, operate vast feed mills and the biggest grain elevators in America.

One of the so-called farmer co-ops is the California Fruit Growers Exchange, which did a $300,000,000 business last year. It markets the famous Sunkist orange and 85 per cent of America's lemons. One of its subsidiaries, the Fruit Growers Supply Company, in 1944 bought the entire lumbering town of Westwood, Calif., for $11,000,000. The purchase included lumber mills, veneer mills, box factories and valuable timber.

There are today at least a dozen co-ops that would have to pay the treasury an average of a million dollars each per year if they were taxed on the same basis as their competitors. Yet they escape most taxes because they claim to be nonprofit. When co-ops split a melon at the end of a year they say they are handing out a "rebate" or a "refund" or a "final payment due."

The Labor Union Device. When tax exemption was granted to labor unions, I'm sure the lawmakers did not anticipate that unions would branch out into commercial enterprises having no relation to union needs. In many cities unions receive rentals on store and office buildings they own, and pay no tax on the income. In LaSalle, Ill., a local union is even in the saloon-renting business.

Our biggest unions are plannig to operate giant co-op supermarkets in union towns throughout America, in competition with taxpaying grocers. C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers already have a dozen co-op stores in the Detroit area, selling groceries, appliances, clothing, etc. Their announced aim is to capture 50 per cent of all local retail trade.

Some small progress is being made in getting tax-exempt organizations to pay their fair share of taxes. The treasury department has finally forced a showdown with the Mueller macaroni firm, contending that there is nothing "charitable, scientific, literary or educational" in noodle-making, even though the profits go to New York University. The issue is now in the courts. Also, a few states are taking action. Indiana, for example, has a law taxing business income of all churches, colleges, foundations, co-ops, etc. The law has produced no noticeable hardship. And—partly because of public outcry—a few farm co-ops are now voluntarily paying some taxes.

'Letters From America,' New Cold War Weapon Urges 35 Million To Write Relatives Abroad

By Richard Kleiner

New York—(NEA)—A man who escaped from a Hungarian prison camp writes back to Hungary every week to a man he despises—to "make him writhe with envy."

The letters describe the ex-prisoner's new life in America, his $90-a-week job, his home, his car, his freedom. But it is not a one-man campaign. These weekly letters are part of America's newest weapon in the cold war, a written partner to the Voice of America.

"Letters from America," the new American natural resource—people like the ex-Hungarian prisoner and 35,000,000 other first and second generation Americans who have relatives and friends abroad.

The tactic of encouraging these people to write to their folks abroad is not a new one. It was employed during the last Italian election, in a succesfsul effort to defeat communism at the polls.

But, under the sponsorship of the Common Council for American Unity, directed by Read Lewis, the current campaign is the biggest effort in that direction. And it is the first to enlist the support of foreign language newspapers and radio stations throughout America.

The council publishes a weekly release for these newspapers and radio stations. These messages suggest topics to be mentioned in letters and emphasize the advantages of living under a democracy. The council translates them into 20 different languages, and says that they regularly appear in about 27 languages.

The releases are published regularly in 229 newspapers and broadcast over about 200 foreign language radio stations. The council estimates that some 8,000,000 people read or hear them each week.

Written in simple terms, the messages stress the interest Europeans have in every-day life in America. A Sunday drive in the country, for example, seems commonplace to Americans, but to Europeans it is a fabulous thing. It means the writer has a car, that he is free to drive about as he pleases, that he has leisure and relaxation.

One release discusses the movies, and urges letter writers to tell European relatives and friends that the films don't show America in "a true light." Other releases talk of labor agreements, American weddings, graduation, the Fourth of July, American culture, vacations, and serious subjects like the Korean war and inflation.

Still other council releases are signed articles on the meaning of Democracy, written by such people as Bernard Baruch, James B. Carey, the C. I. O.'s secretary-treasurer, Eleanor Roosevelt and former Secretary of War Robert Patterson.

A pro-Communist Hungarian paper in New York editorially blasted the "Letters from America" campaign, saying that it would be used by the "fascist and reactionary" press to make "a tool of propaganda for the Cold War" out of Hungarian-Americans.

But the non-Communist foreign language papers have praised the plan. And the Council hopes that the 250,000,000 letters that are annually sent to Europe from America will become bullets in the Cold War.

Bible Comments

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The Bible, both in the Old Testament and the New, lays great stress upon the inner life. Old Testament writers, whose words of devotion and wisdom were the heritage of New Testament writers, were constantly insistnt upon the fact that the true life did not consist in outward appearance, nor even in a display of good works.

"As man thinketh in his heart so is he"; "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life" (Proverbs 4:23). Not only were such thoughts constantly expressed in various ways, but a repeated and most distinctive prayer of these Old Testament saints was that God would serch their hearts. "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me and know my thoughts" (Psalm 139:23).

It is a solemn thought, that whatever we may appear to others, or even to ourselves (Paul admonished early Christians not to think of thmselves more highly than they ought to think), we cannot hide from God. But it requires courage, as well as faith, to face that fact, and pry in sincerity that our hearts and lives may be open to that searching, but loving, all-seeing eye of God.

The late Dr. James Stalker, eminent Scottish minister, once published a sermon under the title, "The Four Men." The four, as he identified them, may be found in II Corinthians 4:3-4. They are: 1. The man his friends see, "that I should be judged of you." 2. The man the word sees, "or of man's judgment." 3. The man as he sees himself, "yea, I udge not mine own self." 4. The man God sees, "He that judgeth me is the Lord."

It is to know and be that last man, the man God knows, that is the true end and purpose of all a Christian's thought, prayer, and mediation. In achieving that, there are many aids to thought and devotion. The late George Matheson, the famous blind preacher of Scotland, and author of the hymn, "O love that wilt not let me go," published a series of what he called "devotional meditations," some under the title of "Moments on the Mount."

There are standard devotional aids, both in Roman Catholic and Protestant literature, and there are current booklets from which many derive help. I edited for several years the little manual, "Daily Devotions" for the Congregational Christian churches, and one of the best known, and widely used among those of all denominations, is the Methodist booklet, "The Upper Room."

I do not disparage these, but it is my conviction that the best aid to Christian thought and devotion is the New Testament itself, and all other aids are of value only as they help to bring light and undrstanding to what is there. It is my belief, also, that much reading and meditation upon the Scriptures, even without any other aid, brings its own reward.

John Robinson, pastor of the pilgrims in Holland, before they came to Plymouth, warned them that there was more light to break from God's word; and there is even more such light to break for those who seek it.

MEN IN ARMED SERVICE

Technical Sergeant George L. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams, RFD 1, West Monroe, Louisiana, returned recently to McClellan Air Force Base from Saudi Arabia where he had been on temporary duty with a WB-29 detachment of aircraft and personnel from the 374th Reconnaissance Squadron (VLR) Weather.

While in Saudi Arabia Sergeant Williams performed duties as aircraft inspector. Since his return he is performing similar duties with his squadron.

The 374th Reconnaissance Squadron, Very Long Range, Weather, is based at McClellan Air Force Base, Sacramento, Cal., and is responsible for gathering weather information a thousand miles off the west coast of the United States. Inflight weather information is determined at one hundred nautical mile intervals, which after each observation is transmitted by the aircraft's radio operator to control stations for monitoring and subsequent re-transmission over a large area.

COOPERATIVE COLLEGES

Use plentiful applies in a tapioca dessert. Just cut cored red (unpeeled) apples in matchstick size pieces and fold a cup of the apple sticks and a quarter teaspoon grated orange rind into the standard recipe for tapioca cream. Garnish the pudding top with a little extra grated orange rind.

Jimmie Fidler:

IN HOLLYWOOD

Despite all the talk about a movieography of the late Helen Morgan, her daughter, Rena (now Mrs. William Lundigan) says no producer has ever discussed story rights with her. . . . Understand Princess Fahlia, sister of King Farouk of Egypt, is flirting with movie offers, not because she's ambitious for a screen career, but because she wants to embarrass his majesty, who's been sorta nasty about her marriage to a commoner. . . . Romantic: Peggy Ann Garner and Singer Richard Hayes.

Hollywood's most noted physical culturist, Terry Hunt, who was wounded in World War II, is pulling wires to get back into the service despite the fact he's overage. . . . On the comeback trail: Hoot Gibson, former cowboy hero, inked for a supporting role in RKO's "Cowpoke." . . . There's a reason why Danny Kaye's wife, Sylvia Fine, has not been seen on the 20th Century set where he's starring in "On The Riviera"; her presence is barred by a special clause in Danny's contract.

Preview nights: Pic of a very lack-lustre week: Columbia's "He's Cockeyed Wonder" (Mickey Rooney-Terry Moore). It's a wonder, all right, that one movie could present so many cockeyed situations and still be so genuinely funny. . . . Fair: Republic's "Hit Parade of 1951" (John Carroll-Marie McDonald-Estelita Rodriguez). A modest filmusical that offers the average audience an enjoyable evening. . . . Sub-par: Universal-International's "Deported" (Marta Toren-Jeff Chandler). An over-long, over-written, yarn about a deported gangster—a la "Lucky" Luciano. . . . Monogram's "Hot Rod" (James Lydon-Art Baker). This one offers a commendable warning to speed-mad kids to slow down, but the picture itself sadly needs acceleration. . . . Low bridge: Columbia's "The Texan Meets Calamity Jane" (Evelyn Ankers-James Ellison). The greatest "calamity" involved was the decision to film so weak a story. . . . Best performance:Let's skip it.

Having thoroughly enjoyed the Loretta Young-Celeste Holm picture, "Come to the Stable," I suppose I should welcome the news that 20th Century-Fox is planning the production of a sequel. But I'm getting decidedly cagey where sequels are concerned. No mater how good the idea for the original picture may have been, or how interesting the characters, the sequel is almost invariably poor entertainment. Off-hand, I can't think of better evidence to demonstrate the truth of Shakespeare's memorable contention that "the story is the thing." The first picture in any Hollywood "series" is usually the work of a thoroughly competent author; the follow-ups are "copy-jobs," ground out by studio writers who, too frequently, seem unable to generate any enthusiasm for the assignment. It would be difficult, for instance, to find a more odious comparison than the one offered by "Mrs. Miniver" and its sequel, "The Miniver Story" which now awaits release at MGM. The original was great; the sequel is so bad that it approaches burlesque.

The Ingrid Bergman case may serve, after all, as an eye-opener for those cynical Hollywoodites who argue that scandal helps, rather than hurts, a stellar career. A few day sago, trade papers revealed some rather startling statistics. "Joan of Arc," in release at the time Ingrid "eloped" with her Roberto, has played only 3000 theaters, and has grossed only one-fifth of the amount needed to get it out of the red. "Stromboli" with only one-fifth of the bookings ordinarily obtained for feature-length pictures released by RKO, is also a dismal financial flop.

Admittedly, neither picture can be calssed as outstanding screen fare, but it takes more than lack of entertainment quality to explain such miserabl e box-office records. Obviously, resentment of the scandal, both by the public, and by exhibitors, must be taken into account.

If variety i sindeed the spice of life, Pat di Cicco is a man to be regarded with envy. As you probably remember, he used to date Gussie Moran, an extreme extrovert—and as you've probably read in the current gossip columns, he's now dating Greta Garbo, an extrem eintrovert who has always refused to appear in public, let along publicly parading a pair of lace-trimmed panties.

INVITE CHURCH ATTENDANCE

The Boeuf River Baptist Church voted last Sunday to extend to those attending the Franklin Parish Singing Convention, meeting at Ogden High School, Liddieville, on Sunday, an invitation to attend Sunday School at 9:45 and the worship service at 11:00 o'clock at that church. The invitation will be extended in person by J. E. Richardson, convention president, when the convention opens on Saturday night.

James Marlow:

THE NATION TODAY

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Guided missiles are red hot stuff with military men, and they're always getting into the news, but the idea of guided missiles is ancient history.

This week General George Marshall, secretary of defense, appointed K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, to be director of the government's guided missiles program.

This made front pages. Missiles have been in the news on and off since World War II days when the Germans cut loose with them at England. When the Nazis were defeated, American scientists were able to learn the results of German experiments in jet and rocket developments.

And the U. S. has been working on guided missiles ever since. Now apparently the program is making pretty good progress—maybe ready for mass production—because Keller is a mass production expert.

The U. S. air force people have done some digging into the history of missiles and came up with a study which traces the idea—or the daddy of the idea—back quite a ways in history.

The daddy of the guided missile idea was rocketry. There's a legend dating back to 360 B. C. about a wooden pigeon which was sent flying by a stream of compressed air.

In 53 B. C. a Greek philosopher invented a jet engine, which included a boiler, filled with water, over a fire, using the resulting steam to whirl a metal ball around.

But it wasn't until 1232 A. D. that practical use of the jet principle was made. The Chinese used it in war with the Tatars. The weapon used by Chinsese, according to the air force report, was:

"An arrow with a rocket propelling device tied to it, a true rocket in whcih the propelling charge sent the rocket on its way." These rockets were called "arrows of flying fire."

By the beginning of the 15th century rockets were widely known in Europe and were used on 15th century battlefields. By the latter part of the 18th century India had developed rockets well enough to have a rocket corps with 1,200 men who used it successfully against the British.

In 1801 an Englishman developed a successful rocket weapon which the British used to bombard the French coast when Napoleon was preparing for the invasion of Britain.

The British progressed so much in the development of their rocket weapons that they were able to hurl 25,000 of them against Copenhagen alone, practically destroying the city by fire.

When this country went to war with Britain in 1812 the British brought up rockets against the American defenders of Washington, turning the American flank, and were able to march into the capital.

And the air force report adds this:

"Though their rockets were not effective enough to win the war of 1812 for the British, they did make a spectacular display. Their brilliance so impressed Francis Scott Key, that he wrote his great poem:

" 'And the rockets red glare,
" 'The bombs bursting in air
" 'Gave proof through the night
" 'That our flag was still there.' "

And so on and on, with more developments. The torpedo, developed in the civil war is listed as the first guided missile. Americans made big strides in rocket development, particularly Dr. Robert H. Goddard of Clark University. He died in 1945. He developed the basic idea of the bazooka.

He was the first to develop a rocket motor using liquid fuels and used it successfully in 1926, nearly 18 years before the Germans came up with their V-2 in World War II.

There's not room here to list various developments. But German V-1 and V-2 rockets, captured by the allies when they invaded the continent in World War II, were reassembled and used in experiments.

IN MOVIELAND

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 28—(AP)—Looking at the week's news:

The death of Al Jolson Monday night was a grave loss to the magic of the show world. His tireless singing and jesting will be missed by the nation.

After the first shock of Jolson's passing was over, Hollywood observers discussed the significance of it. They concluded that a great era of American show business is fading.

It's true that Jolson could keep up with today's popular favorites — the Hopes, the Crosbys, the Bennys and Sinatras. But actually he harked to the time when our national amusement was not as mechanized and standardized as it is today.

Jolson got his start in minstrel shows and vaudeville. He climbed to top fame in Broadway shows at the Winter Garden. Among his contemporaries were such great names as Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Lillian Russell, George M. Cohan, Eddie Foy, Bert Williams, Marilyn Miller, Weber and Fields. All are now dead.

And minstrel shows and vaudeville are dead, too. The question arises: Where will the Jolsons of the future come from?

Speaking of oldtimers, there are still some around and they're going strong. People like Eddie Cantor, Jimmy Durante, Ed Wynn, Bobby Clark, George Jessel and Sophie Tucker. And speaking of Sophie Tucker recalls this week's rumor that Judy Garland will play the Red Hot Mama's life on the screen. Vocally, that sounds like a good idea, but the makeup men will have to work miracles to supply a resemblance. . . . .

Title of the week is "Love Is Better Than Ever," which will star Elizabeth Taylor and Larry Parks. Like the industry's current slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever." this brings up a number of issues.

Did love, like the movies, hit a slump after the war? If love is better than ever, how much better? What has brought the improvement? This is very confusing. Maybe they'd better call the picture "Love Is As Good As It Ever was".

At the risk of sounding like Johnny-one-note, I would like to point out Hollywood's latest mishandling of the newspaper profession. In "September Affair," Joan Fontaine returns from a disappearance. She is surrounded by reporters at the airport and all of them throw questions at her at once.

Bible Comments
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The Bible, both in the Old Testament and the New, lays great stress upon the inner life. Old Testament writers, whose words of devotion and wisdom were the heritage of New Testament writers, were constantly insistnt upon the fact that the true life did not consist in outward appearance, nor even in a display of good works.

"As man thinketh in his heart so is he"; "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life" (Proverbs 4:23). Not only were such thoughts constantly expressed in various ways, but a repeated and most distinctive prayer of these Old Testament saints was that God would serch their hearts. "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me and know my thoughts" (Psalm 139:23).

It is a solemn thought, that whatever we may appear to others, or even to ourselves (Paul admonished early Christians not to think of thmselves more highly than they ought to think), we cannot hide from God. But it requires courage, as well as faith, to face that fact, and pry in sincerity that our hearts and lives may be open to that searching, but loving, all-seeing eye of God.

The late Dr. James Stalker, eminent Scottish minister, once published a sermon under the title, "The Four Men." The four, as he identified them, may be found in II Corinthians 4:3-4. They are: 1. The man his friends see, "that I should be judged of you." 2. The man the word sees, "or of man's judgment." 3. The man as he sees himself, "yea, I udge not mine own self." 4. The man God sees, "He that judgeth me is the Lord."

It is to know and be that last man, the man God knows, that is the true end and purpose of all a Christian's thought, prayer, and mediation. In achieving that, there are many aids to thought and devotion. The late George Matheson, the famous blind preacher of Scotland, and author of the hymn, "O love that wilt not let me go," published a series of what he called "devotional meditations," some under the title of "Moments on the Mount."

There are standard devotional aids, both in Roman Catholic and Protestant literature, and there are current booklets from which many derive help. I edited for several years the little manual, "Daily Devotions" for the Congregational Christian churches, and one of the best known, and widely used among those of all denominations, is the Methodist booklet, "The Upper Room."

I do not disparage these, but it is my conviction that the best aid to Christian thought and devotion is the New Testament itself, and all other aids are of value only as they help to bring light and undrstanding to what is there. It is my belief, also, that much reading and meditation upon the Scriptures, even without any other aid, brings its own reward.

John Robinson, pastor of the pilgrims in Holland, before they came to Plymouth, warned them that there was more light to break from God's word; and there is even more such light to break for those who seek it.

MEN IN ARMED SERVICE

Technical Sergeant George L. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams, RFD 1, West Monroe, Louisiana, returned recently to McClellan Air Force Base from Saudi Arabia where he had been on temporary duty with a WB-29 detachment of aircraft and personnel from the 374th Reconnaissance Squadron (VLR) Weather.

While in Saudi Arabia Sergeant Williams performed duties as aircraft inspector. Since his return he is performing similar duties with his squadron.

The 374th Reconnaissance Squadron, Very Long Range, Weather, is based at McClellan Air Force Base, Sacramento, Cal., and is responsible for gathering weather information a thousand miles off the west coast of the United States. Inflight weather information is determined at one hundred nautical mile intervals, which after each observation is transmitted by the aircraft's radio operator to control stations for monitoring and subsequent re-transmission over a large area.

COOPERATIVE COLLEGES

Use plentiful applies in a tapioca dessert. Just cut cored red (unpeeled) apples in matchstick size pieces and fold a cup of the apple sticks and a quarter teaspoon grated orange rind into the standard recipe for tapioca cream. Garnish the pudding top with a little extra grated orange rind.

Jimmie Fidler:

IN HOLLYWOOD

Despite all the talk about a movieography of the late Helen Morgan, her daughter, Rena (now Mrs. William Lundigan) says no producer has ever discussed story rights with her. . . . Understand Princess Fahlia, sister of King Farouk of Egypt, is flirting with movie offers, not because she's ambitious for a screen career, but because she wants to embarrass his majesty, who's been sorta nasty about her marriage to a commoner. . . . Romantic: Peggy Ann Garner and Singer Richard Hayes.

Hollywood's most noted physical culturist, Terry Hunt, who was wounded in World War II, is pulling wires to get back into the service despite the fact he's overage. . . . On the comeback trail: Hoot Gibson, former cowboy hero, inked for a supporting role in RKO's "Cowpoke." . . . There's a reason why Danny Kaye's wife, Sylvia Fine, has not been seen on the 20th Century set where he's starring in "On The Riviera"; her presence is barred by a special clause in Danny's contract.

Preview nights: Pic of a very lack-lustre week: Columbia's "He's Cockeyed Wonder" (Mickey Rooney-Terry Moore). It's a wonder, all right, that one movie could present so many cockeyed situations and still be so genuinely funny. . . . Fair: Republic's "Hit Parade of 1951" (John Carroll-Marie McDonald-Estelita Rodriguez). A modest filmusical that offers the average audience an enjoyable evening. . . . Sub-par: Universal-International's "Deported" (Marta Toren-Jeff Chandler). An over-long, over-written, yarn about a deported gangster—a la "Lucky" Luciano. . . . Monogram's "Hot Rod" (James Lydon-Art Baker). This one offers a commendable warning to speed-mad kids to slow down, but the picture itself sadly needs acceleration. . . . Low bridge: Columbia's "The Texan Meets Calamity Jane" (Evelyn Ankers-James Ellison). The greatest "calamity" involved was the decision to film so weak a story. . . . Best performance:Let's skip it.

Having thoroughly enjoyed the Loretta Young-Celeste Holm picture, "Come to the Stable," I suppose I should welcome the news that 20th Century-Fox is planning the production of a sequel. But I'm getting decidedly cagey where sequels are concerned. No mater how good the idea for the original picture may have been, or how interesting the characters, the sequel is almost invariably poor entertainment. Off-hand, I can't think of better evidence to demonstrate the truth of Shakespeare's memorable contention that "the story is the thing." The first picture in any Hollywood "series" is usually the work of a thoroughly competent author; the follow-ups are "copy-jobs," ground out by studio writers who, too frequently, seem unable to generate any enthusiasm for the assignment. It would be difficult, for instance, to find a more odious comparison than the one offered by "Mrs. Miniver" and its sequel, "The Miniver Story" which now awaits release at MGM. The original was great; the sequel is so bad that it approaches burlesque.

The Ingrid Bergman case may serve, after all, as an eye-opener for those cynical Hollywoodites who argue that scandal helps, rather than hurts, a stellar career. A few day sago, trade papers revealed some rather startling statistics. "Joan of Arc," in release at the time Ingrid "eloped" with her Roberto, has played only 3000 theaters, and has grossed only one-fifth of the amount needed to get it out of the red. "Stromboli" with only one-fifth of the bookings ordinarily obtained for feature-length pictures released by RKO, is also a dismal financial flop.

Admittedly, neither picture can be calssed as outstanding screen fare, but it takes more than lack of entertainment quality to explain such miserable box-office records. Obviously, resentment of the scandal, both by the public, and by exhibitors, must be taken into account.

For variety sindeed the spice of life, Pat di Cicco is a man to be regarded with envy. As you probably remember, he used to date Gussie Moran, an extreme extrovert—and as you've probably read in the current gossip columns, he's now dating Greta Garbo, an extremeintrovert who has always refused to appear in public, let along publicly parading a pair of lace-trimmed panties.

INVITE CHURCH ATTENDANCE

The Boeuf River Baptist Church voted last Sunday to extend to those attending the Franklin Parish Singing Convention, meeting at Ogden High School, Liddieville, on Sunday, an invitation to attend Sunday School at 9:45 and the worship service at 11:00 o'clock at that church. The invitation will be extended in person by J. E. Richardson, convention president, when the convention opens on Saturday night.

James Marlow:

THE NATION TODAY

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Guided missiles are red hot stuff with military men and they're always getting into the news, but the idea of guided missiles is ancient history.

This week General George Marshall, secretary of defense, appointed K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, to be director of the government's guided missiles program.

This made front pages. Missiles have been in the news on and off since World War II days when the Germans cut loose with them at England. When the Nazis were defeated, American scientists were able to learn the results of German experiments in jet and rocket developments.

And the U. S. has been working on guided missiles ever since. Now apparently the program is making pretty good progress—maybe ready for mass production—because Keller is a mass production expert.

The U. S. air force people have done some digging into the history of missiles and came up with a study which traces the idea—or the daddy of the idea—back quite a ways in history.

The daddy of the guided missile idea was rocketry. There's a legend dating back to 360 B. C. about a wooden pigeon which was sent flying by a stream of compressed air.

In 53 B. C. a Greek philosopher invented a jet engine, which included a boiler, filled with water, over a fire, using the resulting steam to whirl a metal ball around.

But it wasn't until 1232 A. D. that practical use of the jet principle was made. The Chinese used it in war with the Tatars. The weapon used by Chinsese, according to the air force report, was:

"An arrow with a rocket propelling device tied to it, a true rocket in whcih the propelling charge sent the rocket on its way." These rockets were called "arrows of flying fire."

By the beginning of the 15th century rockets were widely known in Europe and were used on 15th century battlefields. By the latter part of the 18th century India had developed rockets well enough to have a rocket corps with 1,200 men who used it successfully against the British.

In 1801 an Englishman developed a successful rocket weapon which the British used to bombard the French coast when Napoleon was preparing for the invasion of Britain.

The British progressed so much in the development of their rocket weapons that they were able to hurl 25,000 of them against Copenhagen alone, practically destroying the city by fire.

When this country went to war with Britain in 1812 the British brought up rockets against the American defenders of Washington, turning the American flank, and were able to march into the capital.

And the air force report adds this:

"Though their rockets were not effective enough to win the war of 1812 for the British, they did make a spectacular display. Their brilliance so impressed Francis Scott Key, that he wrote his great poem:

" 'And the rockets red glare,
" 'The bombs bursting in air
" 'Gave proof through the night
" 'That our flag was still there.' "

And so on and on, with more developments. The torpedo, developed in the civil war is listed as the first guided missile. Americans made big strides in rocket development, particularly Dr. Robert H. Goddard of Clark University. He died in 1945. He developed the basic idea of the bazooka.

He was the first to develop a rocket motor using liquid fuels and used it successfully in 1926, nearly 18 years before the Germans came up with their V-2 in World War II.

There's not room here to list various developments. But German V-1 and V-2 rockets, captured by the allies when they invaded the continent in World War II, were reassembled and used in experiments.

IN MOVIELAND

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 28—(AP)—Looking at the week's news:

The death of Al Jolson Monday night was a grave loss to the magic of the show world. His tireless singing and jesting will be missed by the nation.

After the first shock of Jolson's passing was over, Hollywood observers discussed the significance of it. They concluded that a great era of American show business is fading.

It's true that Jolson could keep up with today's popular favorites — the Hopes, the Crosbys, the Bennys and Sinatras. But actually he harked to the time when our national amusement was not as mechanized and standardized as it is today.

Jolson got his start in minstrel shows and vaudeville. He climbed to top fame in Broadway shows at the Winter Garden. Among his contemporaries were such great names as Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Lillian Russell, George M. Cohan, Eddie Foy, Bert Williams, Marilyn Miller, Weber and Fields. All are now dead.

And minstrel shows and vaudeville are dead, too. The question arises: Where will the Jolsons of the future come from?

Speaking of oldtimers, there are still some around and they're going strong. People like Eddie Cantor, Jimmy Durante, Ed Wynn, Bobby Clark, George Jessel and Sophie Tucker. And speaking of Sophie Tucker recalls this week's rumor that Judy Garland will play the Red Hot Mama's life on the screen. Vocally, that sounds like a good idea, but the makeup men will have to work miracles to supply a resemblance. . . . .

Title of the week is "Love Is Better Than Ever," which will star Elizabeth Taylor and Larry Parks. Like the industry's current slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever," this brings up a number of issues.

Did love, like the movies, hit a slump after the war? If love is better than ever, how much better? What has brought the improvement? This is very confusing. Maybe they'd better call the picture "Love Is As Good As It Ever was" . . .

At the risk of sounding like Johnny-one-note, I would like to point out Hollywood's latest mishandling of the newspaper profession. In "September Affair," Joan Fontaine returns from a disappearance. She is surrounded by reporters at the airport and all of them throw questions at her at once.

Naturally she can't hear any of them and she shrugs off the whole thing. Oh, really!

FRAKES STARRED IN 'THRILLCADE'

His Act One Of Many Thrillers To Be Presented Here Today

He'll enter a coffin-like box, placed before the grandstand, and touch off seven sticks of explosive which will blow the casket to bits. He was hospitalized in St. Louis earlier this year when the stunt backfired and frequently is left dazed and stunned by the blast.

Frakes was a demolitoon expert in World War I and began his thrill career in earnest after the big hassle was over. He first was an aerial barnstormer with Gates Flying Circus; began crashing planes deliberately in 1926. He made 99 such crashes before the CAA stopped him.

He was with the British RAF in World War II and conceived his present stunt during that time. For a time he had a girl assistant, Helen Howe, performing the stunt, but when Frakes wanted to add more dynamite the girl resigned. He's been doing the trick himself since then.

In case of rain, the show will be staged tonight.

Of Girls and Bees

New York. —(AP)— Honey bees probably will buzz up 234,000,000 pounds of honey this year—about three per cent more than last year. In 1939 the bees put away only about 180,000,000 pounds. In ever-booming Texas the bee men say their bees will jump production 20 per cent this year—and 1949 was a big honey year in Texas.

New York.—(AP)—Office equipment makers these days have women on their minds. They are tending to style things to please the girls—such items as dictating machines, chairs and even accessories like drapes and floor coverings.

SONGGRAM LONGS FOR THREE WIVES

Former Strong Man Of Thailand Has Only One Spouse With Him

By Milton Marmor

Hong Kong, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Ten months in exile have left Thailand's former strong man, Gen. Kach Songgram, homesick and pining for three of his four wives.

He has the fourth, a fine Cambodian beauty, with him.

But last January he was hustled out of the country, unceremoniously. His old friend, Premier P. Pibulsonggram, suspected him of plotting a coup.

Stern-faced General Kach has a bad ear. It looks as if it might have been chewed in a fight. It was not too noticeable when he was well groomed.

But today, in his destitute life, it is accentuated—a sort of reminder of the many fights he nas had for his country, his politics and his Siamese way of life.

Once he lived in a fine palace, Suan Kularb, in Bangkok. Today he lives in a three-room flat.

Three bolts bar the entrance to his secret Kowloon district home. To see him one must pass scrutiny through a peep-hole.

Only wife No. 4 is with him. All his other relatives, his three other wives and 11 children, are in Thailand. And there is where Kach's heart and thoughts are.

In halting English General Kach speaks only of returning to Thailand and resuming his military life. To hear him talk one would never suspect there were any differences between him and Pibulsonggram, the man Kach made premier in 1947 with a brilliant coup.

General Kach has lost none of his soldierly bearing. His personal bravery has never been doubted. He is firmly anti-Communist.

The general has asked his government for permission to fight in Korea with Siamese troops. If that is not grantd, he's like some soldierly job for Thailand, perhaps somewhere with the United Nations.

He has faced shot and shell for Pibulsonggram.

His only mistake, they say in Thailand, was this—he tried to get rid of Pibulsonggram himself.

And in the words the Siamese choose to describe political maneuvering that backfired—that was "a sad misunderstanding."

Aviation

Washington.—(AP)—Look for something new in combat planes, said Gen. Mark W. Clark last week to the National Guard convention. Army field force men aren't fully satisfied with jets now in use, he said. They want, among other things, aircraft with more pay load, longer range and shorter take-off runs. It's up to American brains and ingenuity to find out how to make the improvements, he said, predicting that the way would be found.

Clyde Beatty, Master Of Beasts, Coming Here On Monday, Nov. 6

If you've never sat, weak at the knees and with your heart in your throat while Clyde Beatty cracks a blacksnake whip in the face of a fighting jungle-bred tiger, and some thirty other tigres and lions as they snarl from their pedestals—you don't know what circus thrills are.

And, that is just what happens at each performance of the huge Clyde Beatty circus, coming to Monroe for afternoon and night performances at the Plum street show grounds Monday, Nov. 6.

For fifteen minutes, while Beatty battles the beasts in the steel arena, his life isn't worth a plugged nickel. It is definitely the most hazardous feat ever known to man.

There is no question about the position the fearless Beatty holds for, no other man or woman in the rank of wild animal trainers, ever before dared to enter an arena with thirty-seven wild and ferocious, jungle-bred lions and tigers—the most treacherous beasts known to man.

Beatty is essentially a product of the American circus. He was born near Chillicothe, Ohio, and began his career as an animal trainer in 1922, although at that time, he had no idea that he would today be acknowledged the greatest wild animal trainer in the world—and, in addition to that, own and operate one of the three biggest shows in America, which, of course, means the world.

The performances starting 3:15 and 8 p.m. daily, open with gorgeously produced procession entitled, "Spangleland On March," in which masses of pe ple and animals take part.

Justice department peop are helping to settle the issue, a a good guess is that the federal come tax will be imposed in Gua about January 1.

His Act One Of Many Thrillers To Be Presented Here Today

He's Capt. Frank F. Frakes of Columbia, Tenn., whose stunting career dates back to 1913. His age is a secret, but it's believed the scarred veteran of many crashes is crowding 60.

He'll enter a coffin-like box, placed before the grandstand, and touch off seven sticks of explosive which will blow the casket to bits. He was hospitalized in St. Louis earlier this year when the stunt backfired and frequently is left dazed and stunned by the blast.

Frakes was a demolitoon expert in World War I and began his thrill career in earnest after the big hassle was over. He first was an aerial barnstormer with Gates Flying Circus; began crashing planes deliberately in 1926. He made 99 such crashes before the CAA stopped him.

He was with the British RAF in World War II and conceived his present stunt during that time. For a time he had a girl assistant, Helen Howe, performing the stunt, but when Frakes wanted to add more dynamite the girl resigned. He's been doing the trick himself since then.

In case of rain, the show will be staged tonight.

Of Girls and Bees

New York. —(AP)— Honey bees probably will buzz up 234,000,000 pounds of honey this year—about three per cent more than last year. In 1939 the bees put away only about 180,000,000 pounds. In ever-booming Texas the bee men say their bees will jump production 20 per cent this year—and 1949 was a big honey year in Texas.

New York.—(AP)—Office equipment makers these days have women on their minds. They are tending to style things to please the girls—such items as dictating machines, chairs and even accessories like drapes and floor coverings.

SONGGRAM LONGS FOR THREE WIVES

Former Strong Man Of Thailand Has Only One Spouse With Him

By Milton Marmor

Hong Kong, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Ten months in exile have left Thailand's former strong man, Gen. Kach Songgram, homesick and pining for three of his four wives.

He has the fourth, a fine Cambodian beauty, with him.

But last January he was hustled out of the country, unceremoniously. His old friend, Premier P. Pibulsonggram, suspected him of plotting a coup.

Stern-faced General Kach has a bad ear. It looks as if it might have been chewed in a fight. It was not too noticeable when he was well groomed.

But today, in his destitute life, it is accentuated—a sort of reminder of the many fights he nas had for his country, his politics and his Siamese way of life.

Once he lived in a fine palace, Suan Kularb, in Bangkok. Today he lives in a three-room flat.

Three bolts bar the entrance to his secret Kowloon district home. To see him one must pass scrutiny through a peep-hole.

He leaves the flat only for short daily walks. Each is down a different path. Assassination is an old Oriental custom.

Only wife No. 4 is with him. All his other relatives, his three other wives and 11 children, are in Thailand. And there is where Kach's heart and thoughts are.

In halting English General Kach speaks only of returning to Thailand and resuming his military life. To hear him talk one would never suspect there were any differences between him and Pibulsonggram, the man Kach made premier in 1947 with a brilliant coup.

General Kach has lost none of his soldierly bearing. His personal bravery has never been doubted. He is firmly anti-Communist.

The general has asked his government for permission to fight in Korea with Siamese troops. If that is not grantd, he's like some soldierly job for Thailand, perhaps somewhere with the United Nations.

He has faced shot and shell for Pibulsonggram.

His only mistake, they say in Thailand, was this—he tried to get rid of Pibulsonggram himself.

And in the words the Siamese choose to describe political maneuvering that backfired—that was "a sad misunderstanding."

Aviation

Washington.—(AP)—Look for something new in combat planes, said Gen. Mark W. Clark last week to the National Guard convention. Army field force men aren't fully satisfied with jets now in use, he said. They want, among other things, aircraft with more pay load, longer range and shorter take-off runs. It's up to American brains and ingenuity to find out how to make the improvements, he said, predicting that the way would be found.

Clyde Beatty, Master Of Beasts, Coming Here On Monday, Nov. 6

If you've never sat, weak at the knees and with your heart in your throat while Clyde Beatty cracks a blacksnake whip in the face of a fighting jungle-bred tiger, and some thirty other tigres and lions as they snarl from their pedestals—you don't know what circus thrills are.

And, that is just what happens at each performance of the huge Clyde Beatty circus, coming to Monroe for afternoon and night performances at the Plum street show grounds Monday, Nov. 6.

For fifteen minutes, while Beatty battles the beasts in the steel arena, his life isn't worth a plugged nickel. It is definitely the most hazardous feat ever known to man.

There is no question about the position the fearless Beatty holds for, no other man or woman in the rank of wild animal trainers, ever before dared to enter an arena with thirty-seven wild and ferocious, jungle-bred lions and tigers—the most treacherous beasts known to man.

Beatty is essentially a product of the American circus. He was born near Chillicothe, Ohio, and began his career as an animal trainer in 1922, although at that time, he had no idea that he would today be acknowledged the greatest wild animal trainer in the world—and, in addition to that, own and operate one of the three biggest shows in America, which, of course, means the world.

In all, 267 men and women arenic stars and performers go to make up this year's exciting program.

The performances starting at 3:15 and 8 p.m. daily, open with a gorgeously produced processional entitled, "Spangleland On the March," in which masses of people and animals take part.

Taxes In Eden

Washington.—(AP)—Guam residents, long exempted from federal income taxes because Guam is neither a state nor a territory, probably will no longer be exempt after this year, interior department insiders say. Treasury department officials are now arguing that they should continue tax-free; but interior men interpret the recently enacted organic act, giving Guam a government of its own, as providing for taxation of the residents. Justice department people are helping to settle the issue, and a good guess is that the federal income tax will be imposed in Guam about January 1.

Overseas

Belgrade.—(AP)—Sponge fishermen soon will be harvesting sponges from the Adriatic sea. Marshal Tito's government reported recently the discovery of "enormous" sponge fields near the seaport of Rijeka.

Gordon MacRae and Doris Day provide the music and romance in "Tea For Two," Warner Bros.' musical spectacle in color by Technicolor. Gene Nelson, Billy De Wolfe and Eve Arden are also starred in the film which begins a four day engagement at the Paramount Theater today.

'Tea For Two,' Stellar Musical, Opening Today At The Paramount

Doris Day And Gordon MacRae Starred In Outstanding Warner Hit

"Tea for Two," from the studio that produced some of the greatest musical films the screen has ever seen through the years, from "42nd Street" to "Look for the Silver Lining," opens its local engagement at the Paramount Theatre today for a four-day engagement.

Starring Doris Day and Gordon MacRae, the Warner Bros. Technicolor extravaganza has been spared nothing in the way of production values, and big numbers, gay tunes and beautiful chorus lines fill the screen, according to the glowing advance reports. The film also introduces two outstanding Broadway musical stars, Patrice Wymore and Virginia Gibson, fresh from recent successes on the New York stage.

Most of the hit songs in the film are handled by MacRae, as a singing composer, and Miss Day, in the role of a career-bent heiress who loses her money in the stock market crash.

Gene Nelson, who won acclaim for his nimble footwork in 'Rosie O'Grady,' is highlighted in an amazing staircase dance and unusual African rhythm number atop a huge drum, while comedians Billy De Wolfe and Eve Arden go through their respective routines to key the film's laughs.

"Tea for Two" is set in the nostalgic 1929 period, and concerns a band of vaudevillians whose efforts to produce a show are hampered by the Wall Street panic. It's the events leading up to their finding a backer that makes for the romance and music that predominate in the story.

Among the songs heard are "Oh Me! Oh My!," "Do, Do, Do," "I Know That You Know," "Crazy Rhythm," "I Want To Be Happy," then, "No, No, Nanette" and the title song number, "Tea for Two."

David Butler directed the film for Warner Bros.

'711 Ocean Travel' At Paramount Thursday

Illegal in every state except Nevada, the nation's bookmaking industry—America's most vicious eight-billion dollar racket—is considered the very life-blood of organized crime. The inside story of the infamous syndicate and its hoodlum empire, with its terror and violence, has been told on the screen for the first time in the powerful, entertaining "711 Ocean Drive," the Columbia Pictures' release produced by Frank N. Seltzer, currently starring Edmond O'Brien and Joanne Dru opening a three day run at the Paramount Theater Thursday.

"711 Ocean Drive" was filmed under armed police protection, against the threats of sabotage, reprisal and physical harm to production personnel and players. Inside story of an eight-billion dollar racket, "711 Ocean Drive" forcefully reveals the many facets of the bookmaking business which takes millions of dollars daily from thousands of small bettors: housewives, mechanics, office workers, students.

Horse-racing itself is legal in 26 states, and definitely belongs in the "big business" category. In addition to the actual track operations there is the tremendous breeding industry with its vast investment in ranchlands and their upkeep. Legal pari-mutuel betting at the tracks brings in a total of more than $1,600,000,000, with state revenues amounting to approximately $100,000,000.

"711 Ocean Drive" is concerned, as congress and the nation's press are becoming increasingly concerned, with the illegal betting operation. As one of its victims once declared of the syndicate and its hoodlum empire, shortly before he was found murdered, "their money has made the mob stronger than the U. S| army."

Anywehre from three to 15 million persons bet, away from the tracks, regularly. They bet with bookmakers whose agents handle the bets—as low as 50 cents in some instances!—and solicit new business. Bookmakers, for their part, usually subscribe to one or more "wire services," which keep them immediately informed as to the conditions on the track, betting odds, racing results, etc. It is estimated that there are in the neighborhood of 20,000 subscribers to these services and something like twice as many nonsubscribing bookmakers.

The 50-cent-or-more bet, while it sometimes pays off to the bettor, more often then not doesn't. It simply adds up, over the year, to an estimated $8,000,000,000 siphoned from the pockets of millions of Americans. Not all of this money is clear profit for the syndicate and its hoodlum empire, of course. A small fraction is returned to winning bettors.

Pair Gives Home To 43 Children

Belmont, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—In their 50 years of married life, Nora and Frederick Canfield have provided a foster home for 38 boys and five girls, besides four sons and a daughter of their own.

STARTS TODAY AT THE JOY

Abbott And Costello Rate High On Filmdom's Comedy Parade

'Abbott And Costello In The Foreign Legion' Opens Today At Joy

Like "O' Man River," Bud Abbott and Lou Costello just keep rolling along.

When the comics scored their first big hit in "Buck Privates" they were regarded by Hollywood experts as a novelty team that would fade as rapidly as they had soared to the top.

That was in 1940 and during the following ten years they have made 25 comedies, their latest being "Abbott and Costello in the Foreign Legion," opening today at the Joy Theater. For five of those ten years they have ranked among the ten top boxoffice stars, and have headed that exclusive list on three different occasions.

Their current film is their first trip before the cameras in a year, the comedians being sidelined for that period because of an illness suffered by Costello.

During the years since Hollywood became the world's movie capital, numerous comedy teams have been brought to the screen—among them Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, Laurel and Hardy, Wheeler and Woolsey and Olsen and Johnson, and numerous others.

All of those teams enjoyed brilliant successes, then faded into obscurity. Today, Abbott and Costello are the only top ranking comedy team on the screen. And there is no indication that they are reaching the end of their deserved popularity. They have their own particular brand of comedy—always getting into scrapes and barely getting out of them, plus fast-talking routines.

Their current comedy, "Abbott and Costello in the Foreign Legion," actually takes them right back to their beginning in "Buck Privates," still rated as one of the funniest comedies of all time. In their new picture they are in the Foreign Legion instead of the United States army. However, the situations follow the same general pattern, thus affording the same hilarious type comedy.

When asked recently when they were going to retire, Bud and Lou replied in unison, "When people stop laughing at us."

That means they will be around for some time to come because Mr. and Mrs. Public doesn't want to stop laughing at the fun-makers.

Sheridan And Mature Coming In 'Stella'

Ann Sheridan and Victor Mature topline the cast of "Stella," Twentieth Century-Fox's new comedy romance arriving Thursday at the Joy Theatre. Miss Sheridan fills the title part, and unquestionably fills it beautifully, of Stella, who gets involved in an insurance policy covering her accidentally killed Uncle Joe. The cashing of the policy becomes complicated by her zany family's haste in covering up the circumstances of Uncle Joe's death. Ann, or Stella, also gets involved, romantically involved that is, with the handsome young insurance adjustor who comes to town to look into the peculiar case of Uncle Joe. That would be Mature's role.

With this fresh and funny premise, and the talented writer-director Claude Binyon to carry it out, "Stella" looms as a major attack on the funnybone, in the offbeat tradition of "Arsenic and Old Lace" and other farces that have parlayed laughs and chills to exciting, comic effect.

Supporting Cast

Supporting case members in "Stella" include David Wayne, whose rapid rise to screen stardom in "Adam's Rib" follows on his New York stage triumphs as the leprechaun in "Finian's Rainbow" and Ensign Pulver in "Mister Roberts"; lovely starlets Randy Scott and Marion Marshall, making quick strides on the Twentieth Century-Fox lot; and vaudeville knockabout comic Frank Fontaine, staging his much heralded movie bow in this. Other players in "Stella" include Leif Erickson, Evelyn Varden, remembered for her sterling work in "Pinky" and "When Willie Comes Marching Home" as well as on Broadway in "Dream Girl," Lea Penman from the Broadway cast of "Annie Get Your Gun," beauteous Joyce MacKenzie of "Twelve O'Clock High" fame and the late, beloved comedian, Hobart Cavanaugh, here making his last screen appearance.

Happy Vehicle

For Ann Sheridan, "Stella" serves as a happy returning vehicle after some period off the screen, and for Victor Mature the film is a change-of-pace return to modern dress after the period films "Samson and Delilah" and "Wabash Avenue." At the top of their popularity now, the stars have added support in the fast-rising Wayne, easily the most promising young comedian and musical comedy entertainer of recent Broadway years, and vaudevillian Fontaine, whose act has proven irresistibly funny to audiences for years.

Binyon directed "Stella" and wrote its screen play from a novel by Doris Miles Disney. Long famed as a writer-director of top comedy pictures, "Stella" is his first since "Mother Didn't Tell Me." Veteran producer Sol C. Siegel handled the reins for Twentieth Century-Fox in the production of "Stella."

The 50-cent-or-more bet, while it sometimes pays off to the bettor, more often then not doesn't. It simply adds up, over the year, to an estimated $8,000,000,000 siphoned from the pockets of millions of Americans. Not all of this money is clear profit for the syndicate and its hoodlum empire, of course. A small fraction is returned to winning bettors.

Pair Gives Home To 43 Children

Belmont, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—In their 50 years of married life, Nora and Frederick Canfield have provided a foster home for 38 boys and five girls, besides four sons and a daughter of their own.

STARTS TODAY AT THE JOY

Abbott And Costello Rate High On Filmdom's Comedy Parade

'Abbott And Costello In The Foreign Legion' Opens Today At Joy

Like "O' Man River," Bud Abbott and Lou Costello just keep rolling along.

When the comics scored their first big hit in "Buck Privates" they were regarded by Hollywood experts as a novelty team that would fade as rapidly as they had soared to the top.

That was in 1940 and during the following ten years they have made 25 comedies, their latest being "Abbott and Costello in the Foreign Legion," opening today at the Joy Theater. For five of those ten years they have ranked among the ten top boxoffice stars, and have headed that exclusive list on three different occasions.

Their current film is their first trip before the cameras in a year, the comedians being sidelined for that period because of an illness suffered by Costello.

During the years since Hollywood became the world's movie capital, numerous comedy teams have been brought to the screen—among them Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, Laurel and Hardy, Wheeler and Woolsey and Olsen and Johnson, and numerous others.

All of those teams enjoyed brilliant successes, then faded into obscurity. Today, Abbott and Costello are the only top ranking comedy team on the screen. And there is no indication that they are reaching the end of their deserved popularity. They have their own particular brand of comedy—always getting into scrapes and barely getting out of them, plus fast-talking routines.

Their current comedy, "Abbott and Costello in the Foreign Legion," actually takes them right back to their beginning in "Buck Privates," still rated as one of the funniest comedies of all time. In their new picture they are in the Foreign Legion instead of the United States army. However, the situations follow the same general pattern, thus affording the same hilarious type comedy.

When asked recently when they were going to retire, Bud and Lou replied in unison, "When people stop laughing at us."

That means they will be around for some time to come because Mr. and Mrs. Public doesn't want to stop laughing at the fun-makers.

Sheridan And Mature Coming In 'Stella'

Ann Sheridan and Victor Mature topline the cast of "Stella," Twentieth Century-Fox's new comedy romance arriving Thursday at the Joy Theatre. Miss Sheridan fills the title part, and unquestionably fills it beautifully, of Stella, who gets involved in an insurance policy covering her accidentally killed Uncle Joe. The cashing of the policy becomes complicated by her zany family's haste in covering up the circumstances of Uncle Joe's death. Ann, or Stella, also gets involved, romantically involved that is, with the handsome young insurance adjustor who comes to town to look into the peculiar case of Uncle Joe. That would be Mature's role.

With this fresh and funny premise, and the talented writer-director Claude Binyon to carry it out, "Stella" looms as a major attack on the funnybone, in the offbeat tradition of "Arsenic and Old Lace" and other farces that have parlayed laughs and chills to exciting, comic effect.

Supporting Cast

Happy Vehicle

For Ann Sheridan, "Stella" serves as a happy returning vehicle after some period off the screen, and for Victor Mature the film is a change-of-pace return to modern dress after the period films "Samson and Delilah" and "Wabash Avenue." At the top of their popularity now, the stars have added support in the fast-rising Wayne, easily the most promising young comedian and musical comedy entertainer of recent Broadway years, and vaudevillian Fontaine, whose act has proven irresistibly funny to audiences for years.

Binyon directed "Stella" and wrote its screen play from a novel by Doris Miles Disney. Long famed as a writer-director of top comedy pictures, "Stella" is his first since "Mother Didn't Tell Me." Veteran producer Sol C. Siegel handled the reins for Twentieth Century-Fox in the production of "Stella."

Read the complete list of prizes in the panel at the left. Then try solving the sample puzzle printed at the right. Isn't it EASY? Isn't it FUN? Don't you think you would have a wonderfully enjoyable time solving such puzzles — trying for the biggest cash first prize ever given?

The Reason Why We Offer This Contest

This is not one of the ordinary little contests you see every now and then in the newspapers. This one is being presented by one of the largest and most famous book-publishing firms in America — the publishers of the NEW FUNK & WAGNALLS ENCYCLOPEDIA — the magnificent new encyclopedia that is selling like wildfire because it is the BEST — AT LEAST COST!

This contest has been devised by the editors of that great encyclopedia to enchant every family in America — and thus to publicize the encyclopedia, and let EVERYONE know how easy it is to own one, and how wonderful it would be to have one right in his own home.

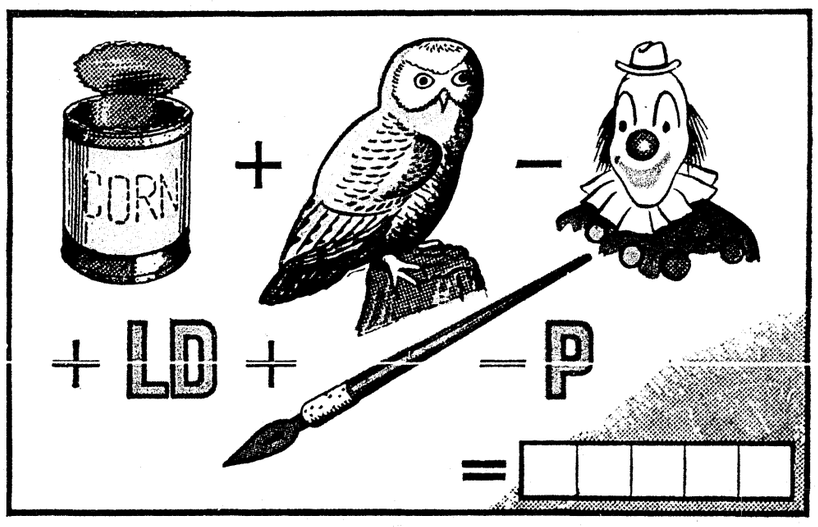

That is the reason for this contest, and for that purpose the publishers are willing to GIVE AWAY 210 big cash prizes, including a cash first prize of $102,500.00 — more money than any business firm ever gave as a first prize in such a contest in the history of the world!

The contest is designed to give EVERYONE a fair and square chance to win, with no tricks or catches, and to amuse and entertain your whole family for week after week while you are trying for that big first prize.

Can You Solve This Puzzle?

THIS IS THE KIND OF PUZZLE IN THIS CONTEST

The solution to the puzzle below is the name of a Pilgrim Father who came over on the Mayflower in 1620.

Here Is How You Solve This Sample Puzzle

First of all, note that there are a CAN, OWL, CLOWN and PEN in this puzzle. Note also that there are some letters of the alphabet. There are also some plus and minus signs, which mean that you are to add and subtract. To solve the puzzle, write down the letters CAN. Next, add OWL, giving you a total of CANOWL. Next, subtract CLOWN, which leaves you with A. Then add LD, giving you ALD. Next, add PEN, giving you ALDPEN. Next, subtract P, leaving you with ALDEN, which is the solution to this sample puzzle.

Here Is How You Enter The Contest – Send In Coupon Today!

There is a tremendous and marvelous surprise for you. Merely send in your name and address on the coupon below TODAY, and by return mail you will receive ABSOLUTELY FREE the very first Puzzle-Quiz in the contest, with the entry form, and the Official Rules, so that you can enter the contest RIGHT AWAY!

And that's not all. Here's the big surprise.

With the first Puzzle-Quiz you will receive a magnificent big book, also ABSOLUTELY FREE. That book is the very first volume of the wonderful New Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopedia. But we don't charge you for it. We don't ask you to pay a cent for it, even though it's worth all of FIVE DOLLARS. We give it to you ABSOLUTELY FREE with your first Puzzle-Quiz, and it doesn't cost you a penny!

Book Free—To Help Answer Puzzle-Quiz

The reason we give you this wonderful book as an outright gift is first of all because the first Puzzle-Quiz is based on the book. The answer to each puzzle in the Puzzle-Quiz is the title of one of the subjects in the book. Also, the Puzzle-Quiz will contain a number of quiz-questions, just like the questions asked today in the quiz programs on radio and television. AND RIGHT IN THE BOOK IS THE INFORMATION TO HELP YOU ANSWER EVERY QUIZ-QUESTION CORRECTLY!

That means you NEED THE BOOK TO HELP YOU WIN A PRIZE! And we give you the book absolutely free with the first Puzzle-Quiz!

Another Reason Why

But there is another reason why we want to give you the book absolutely free. It is the first volume of a world-famous set of books — the New Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopedia — the one set of books every forward-looking American family cannot afford to be without, for the help it can be to them, socially and financially.

By giving you the first volume we hope to interest you in the rest of the set! We give you the free book really as a sample. We think the book is so terrific that once you get it into your hands, you will want all the other volumes! And we are willing to take the gamble of giving you one book to PROVE TO YOU why you need the others.

The Puzzle-Quizzes

In this contest will be a series of Puzzle-Quizzes, with each one based on a volume of the encyclopedia. With the free Volume 1 and the first Puzzle-Quiz we will send you full details about the contest and how you can get the other volumes of the encyclopedia. After you have read all these details we ask you just one favor. We ask you merely to LET US KNOW what you want to do.

Enclosed with the free book and the first Puzzle-Quiz will be a postcard which we ask you to send back to us. On it you will indicate your decision. You can check off "YES" — that you want to stay in the contest and get the other volumes of the set. Or you can check off "NO" — that you do not want to stay in the contest, or get any other volumes.

That's all we ask. And remember, no matter how you decide, the big, beautiful Volume 1, worth $5.00, STILL BELONGS TO YOU!

Act At Once-Today!

So act immediately. Fill out the coupon TODAY and send it off to us. By return mail you get the free first Puzzle-Quiz and the free Volume 1. You also receive full details about the contest, and full details as to how you can buy the other volumes of the set at the rate of three each month at a MIRACULOUSLY low price. And each new volume will contain another Puzzle-Quiz in the contest.

All you do in return is send us a postcard saying "YES", that you want more Puzzle-Quizzes and books — or "NO", that you do not. We gamble EVERYTHING and you gamble NOTHING — and you keep the free book in any case.

The Reason Why We Offer This Contest

This is not one of the ordinary little contests you see every now and then in the newspapers. This one is being presented by one of the largest and most famous book-publishing firms in America — the publishers of the NEW FUNK & WAGNALLS ENCYCLOPEDIA — the magnificent new encyclopedia that is selling like wildfire because it is the BEST — AT LEAST COST!

This contest has been devised by the editors of that great encyclopedia to enchant every family in America — and thus to publicize the encyclopedia, and let EVERYONE know how easy it is to own one, and how wonderful it would be to have one right in his own home.

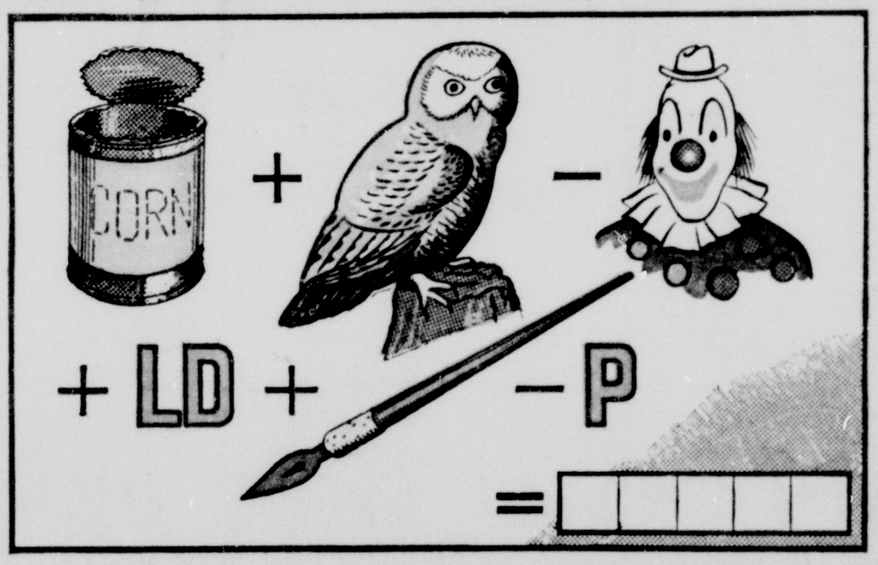

That is the reason for this contest, and for that purpose the publishers are willing to GIVE AWAY 210 big cash prizes, including a cash first prize of $102,500.00 — more money than any business firm ever gave as a first prize in such a contest in the history of the world!

The contest is designed to give EVERYONE a fair and square chance to win, with no tricks or catches, and to amuse and entertain your whole family for week after week while you are trying for that big first prize.

THIS IS THE KIND OF PUZZLE IN THIS CONTEST

The solution to the puzzle below is the name of a Pilgrim Father who came over on the Mayflower in 1620.

First of all, note that there are a CAN, OWL, CLOWN and PEN in this puzzle. Note also that there are some letters of the alphabet. There are also some plus and minus signs, which mean that you are to add and subtract. To solve the puzzle, write down the letters CAN. Next, add OWL, giving you a total of CANOWL. Next, subtract CLOWN, which leaves you with A. Then add LD, giving you ALD. Next, add PEN, giving you ALDPEN. Next, subtract P, leaving you with ALDEN, which is the solution to this sample puzzle.

Book Free—To Help Answer Puzzle-Quiz

The reason we give you this wonderful book as an outright gift is first of all because the first Puzzle-Quiz is based on the book. The answer to each puzzle in the Puzzle-Quiz is the title of one of the subjects in the book. Also, the Puzzle-Quiz will contain a number of quiz-questions, just like the questions asked today in the quiz programs on radio and television. Another Reason Why

But there is another reason why we want to give you the book absolutely free. It is the first volume of a world-famous set of books — the New Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopedia — the one set of books every forward-looking American family cannot afford to be without, for the help it can be to them, socially and financially.

By giving you the first volume we hope to interest you in the rest of the set! We give you the free book really as a sample. Enclosed with the free book and the first Puzzle-Quiz will be a postcard which we ask you to send back to us. On it you will indicate your decision. You can check off "YES" — that you want to stay in the contest and get the other volumes of the set. Or you can check off "NO" — that you do not want to stay in the contest, or get any other volumes.
